BROCK, SCHLEE BEGIN RETURN TRIP AFTER SETTING SPEED MARK

Fliers Clip Seven Hours From Cross-Country Nonstop Record.

AVERAGE 152 MILES PER HOUR FOR TRIP

Hop From Jacksonville to San Diego Made in About 14 Hours.

DODGED TWO STORMS ON JOURNEY ACROSS

Aviators Hope to Land Again on East Coast Within 30-Hour Period.

San Diego, Calif., June 17 (A.P.).—Having set a new record for the West-bound crossing from Jacksonville, Fla., to San Diego, Calif., Aviators Edward F. Schlee and William A. Brock took the air tonight at 5:11 o'clock on the return trip, hoping to reach the Florida seaport within 30 hours of their hop-off westward at 5:04 a. m.

The fliers made the trip from Jacksonville to San Diego in 13 hours 55 minutes 30 seconds, breaking all records for the transcontinental crossing. They averaged 152 miles an hour in rushing across the 2,100-mile course to the Pacific.

"We had good weather all the way across," said Brock, "except over Arizona, New Mexico and Imperial Valley. We had to dodge storms in those areas. The last was a dust storm over Imperial Valley."

Refueling of the big Lockheed-Vega plane began almost as soon as the occupants left the machine. The fliers decided not to change the lubricating oil in the 450-horsepower Wasp engine.

"Lets let good enough alone," said Brock with a laugh. "The motor is working fine."

Schlee grinned and agreed.

The aviators said they had maintained an altitude ranging from 2,000 to 8,000 feet. They had no serious trouble and hoped they would have none on the way back.

A crowd of 250 gave the two a cheer as they landed. They came in rapidly and landed two minutes after appearing over the field.

Brock and Schlee cut more than seven hours off the East-West record made by Lieut. James H. Doolittle, flying in 1922 from Jacksonville to this city.

After Macauley Record.

The West to East record is held by Maj. T. C. Macauley, of San Diego. He made the run from San Diego to Jacksonville in 1919 in 19 hours and 10 minutes.

Capt. Frank Hawks made the round trip from New York to Los Angeles and back in January, 1929, in 43 hours and 59 minutes, taking a longer route than that between Jacksonville and San Diego.

Westward bound the aviators were first reported at 11:10 a. m. over Abilene, Tex. Thirty-eight minutes later they passed over Big Springs.

Their monoplane carried 450 gallons of gasoline at the take-off from Jacksonville.

Eat Frugal Luncheon.

Brock and Schlee ate a frugal luncheon here sitting in an automobile near the runway, while mechanics put 353 gallons of fuel into their plane. There were 187 gallons of gasoline in the machine when it landed.

Brock estimated it would take about 50 gallons less for the flight to Jacksonville than coming West, be-

BOLIVIA IS REPORTED SWEPT BY UPRISING

Dispatches State Radicals in League With Reds Lead Revolt.

LEGATION ISSUES DENIAL

Buenos Aires, June 17 (A.P.).—The Argentine vice consul at Villazon, Bolivia, today telegraphed the chancellery from La Quiaca that a serious revolutionary situation existed throughout Bolivia. He heard reports that insurrection had broken out in all the big cities.

His message said Roberto Hinojosa, Radical leader, whose followers this morning captured Villazon, was acting in conjunction with a revolutionary coalition from northern Bolivia. "Soviet agents" were said to have instigated the attack.

The Bolivian government this afternoon began enforcing a censorship on foreign dispatches at La Paz.

The Argentine vice consul informed his chancellery that "a revolution has broken out at Villazon, on the Bolivian frontier, under leadership of Roberto Hinojosa, collaborating with a revolutionary coalition driving from northern parts.

"All government authorities were forcibly removed from office at Villazon and three persons were slightly wounded. Great tension reigns there. Commercial houses and two hotels were raided and money and goods looted.

"It is stated that the revolutionary movement has broken out in all the cities of Bolivia and that communication with La Paz has been cut.

"The national collector of revenue at La Quiaca announces the discovery of contraband arms and ammunition consigned to Bolivians alleged to be in communication with Soviet agents, who precipitated the revolutionary movement at Villazon."

Argentine dispatches in general describe the situation in Bolivia as serious, but the Bolivian Legation at Washington stated it had been instructed by the government to deny the news from La Quiaca.

At La Paz, the All-America Cables confirmed the existence of a censorship. Before it was in force, however, government circles discounted the importance of the dispatches from La Quiaca.

UTILITY BOARD GETS NEW GAS SCHEDULE

Proposed Rates Depend on Passage of Merger Legislation.

INNOVATION IS SOUGHT

The new rate schedule which was promised by new owners of the gas company when they bought the local company a year ago was submitted to the Public Utilities Commission yesterday by George A. G. Wood, president of the company.

The rates were submitted for consideration "if and when" Congress enacts pending legislation authorizing merger of the Washington Gas Light Co. and the Georgetown Gas Light Co., which is owned by the Washington company, and loosening existing restrictions on financing the companies.

The proposed schedule, contingent on passage of the gas merger and financing legislation, follows:

For the first 2,500 cubic feet of gas consumed per meter, net 85 cents per 1,000 cubic feet and gross 95 cents per 1,000 cubic feet.

All over the first 2,500 cubic feet of gas consumed per meter, 75 cents per 1,000 cubic feet net and 85 cents per 1,000 cubic feet gross.

The new schedule contains an innovation in Washington gas rates in the form of a minimum charge per meter per month which would be applicable to all consumers. This charge was fixed at 60 cents per month net, and 70 cents per month gross. The difference between the net and the gross figures, it was specified, is to be considered the discount for consumers who pay their bills promptly. Consumers failing to pay within the alloted period of grace will have to pay the gross charges not only for gas consumed, but also for the fixed meter charge.

An additional charge of $1.50 was proposed for reconnecting gas meters for any customer within six months after a meter had been disconnected for any cause.

Mr. Wood, in an announcement published as an advertisement in newspapers, declared that the proposed "if and when" new rates would mean "a reduction of approximately $400,000 yearly" in the revenues of the gas companies, but he supplemented

PLOT TO SLAY 16 FEARED AS PAIR IS KILLED

New York Police Believe Maniac Is at Large or Conspiracy Exists.

SECOND VICTIM DIES IN LONELY SECTION

Body Discovered in Auto With Bullet Wound in Left Temple.

NOTES SENT EDITOR PROVIDE CHIEF CLEW

Code Letters Are a Jumble of Threats Involving "Secret Society."

New York, June 17 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The possibility either that a murderous maniac is loose in Queens or that a wholesale murder plot exists to kill sixteen persons, two of whom have already been killed, was received with such credibility by the New York city police today that police have been rushed to various parts of the city to search for and protect the persons threatened.

Information indicating one of these two possibilities became known today with the finding of the body of Noel Sowley, 26-year-old radio mechanic, in his new coupe in a lonely spot in Queens Village, at 1 p. m. He had been shot through the left temple at close range.

In his lap was found a clipping from the New York Journal telling of the finding of the body of Joseph Moyznsky, College Point grocer, in a little frequented spot near Bayside, Long Island, June 10. Across the top of the clipping was written in pencil, "Here's How."

Young Woman Found.

A quick move by detectives under the personal direction of Police Commissioner Mulrooney resulted in the finding of a young woman who was with Sowley when he was murdered. She is quoted as having told the police that the murderer said after he had shot Sowley, "Now you've got the same dose as the other fellow got." He then dropped the clipping into Sowley's lap.

This indication that one man did the two murders was strengthened when the New York Journal published in an extra edition late this afternoon three letters which the police believe may possibly have been written by the murderer or some one having knowledge of the murders.

An arresting fact about the letters is that one of them—the latest one received—describes both murders with great accuracy and was in the hands of Amster Spire, city editor of the

TINKHAM RAPS CANNON WHILE HOUSE CHEERS

Alleged Dealings With Bucket Shop Told by Member.

DEFENDERS LACKING IN BISHOP'S ABSENCE

$48,000 OF JAMESON DONATION STRESSED

Churchman's Denial Terms Legislator "Blustering" and "Cowardly."

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Bishop Cannon's troubled mind must have thundered yesterday with the plaintive refrain of "All Alone" as Representative George Holden Tinkham, of Massachusetts, excoriated him in the House and not one of the 200 or so members present uttered a word in defense.

Had the Southern Methodist Conference, of which the bishop wears the cloth, known the evidence in the possession of the Senate lobby committee, Mr. Tinkham charged, it would not have renamed him as head of its prohibition board.

Unless Bishop Cannon testifies under oath what he did with the $48,000 which E. C. Jameson, New Jersey capitalist, gave him in 1928, Mr. Tinkham declared, "he will stand convicted in the eyes of all honest men of having appropriated that money to his own uses."

Tinkham Filed Charges.

The lobby committee has records of payments to the bucketshop firm coinciding with the receipt of money from Mr. Jameson.

There was nothing remarkable about Mr. Tinkham's making his attack. He has been the bishop's nemesis for a long time. It was he, and he pointed out that he was an Episcopalian whose ancestors came over on the Mayflower, who filed the charges with the lobby committee.

The remarkable thing was the reception he got. He was greeted with applause from both sides of the aisle, from wets and drys alike. Some of this was unquestionably a tribue to the tenacity of the little, bewhiskered representative, but an outstanding fact is that not one of the 435 members, of all creeds and races, from the East, West and South, sought to prevent his speech, or at its conclusion when there was 15 minutes of time going begging, Mr. Tinkham having finished in less than his al-

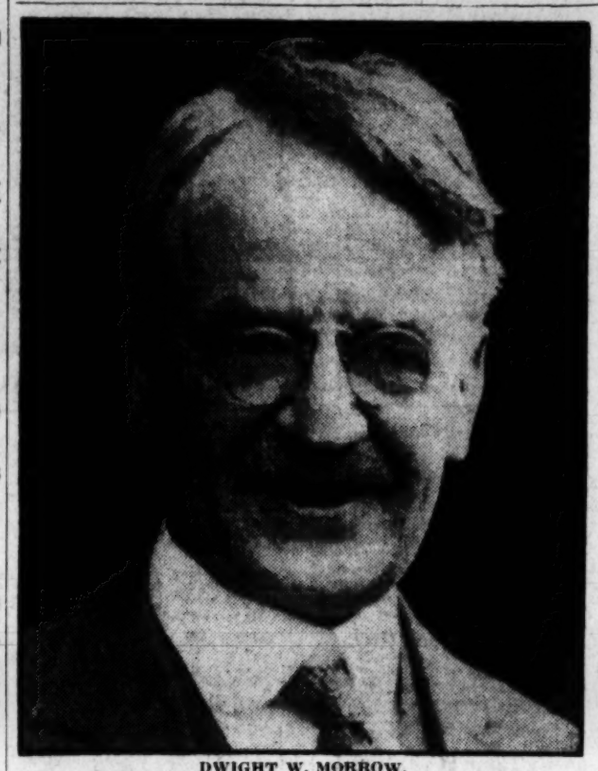
MORROW WINS G. O. P. SENATE NOMINATION IN JERSEY PRIMARY



DWIGHT W. MORROW.

Diplomat, on Wet Ticket, Has Commanding Lead in Balloting.

FORT, DRY CHAMPION, CONCEDES DEFEAT

Frelinghuysen Runs Third as Party Contest Becomes Rout.

LEADER GETS 109,069 TO 44,781 FOR FOES

Majority Expected to Reach 150,000 to 250,000 When Count Is Complete.

Newark, N. J., June 17 (A.P.).—The conceded winner of the Republican nomination for United States senator from New Jersey, Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, who in a campaign speech, urged repeal of the eighteenth amendment, tonight continued to pile up a lead over his three opponents as returns poured in. Morrow ran ahead of his opponents even in the dry, rural counties.

Returns from 1,282 districts of 3,304 in the State for the full term, United States senator gave:

Franklin W. Fort, 31,816.
Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, 12,965.
Dwight W. Morrow, 109,069.

On the basis of returns two hours and a half after the polls had closed, the Newark Evening News tonight predicted the nomination of Morrow by a majority of from 150,000 to 200,000.

Representative Fort, who entered the race as a dry with the aid of the Antisaloon League, conceded the election on the basis of returns from about one-thirtieth of the districts in the State.

Fort Wires Congratulations.

In a telegram to Ambassador Morrow at his home in Englewood, Mr. Fort said:

"Please accept my very heartiest congratulations and assurance of my earnest support throughout the coming campaign. I have not the slightest doubt you will be a fine and distinguished addition to the United States Senate."

Following the example of Representative Fort, former Senator Frelinghuysen conceded his defeat and sent a telegram of congratulation to Ambassador Morrow.

The telegram said:

"You have won a decisive victory. Please accept my hearty congratulations. I will give you my wholehearted and active support in your campaign for election."

Kelly Runs Poor Fourth.

In the contest for the unexpired term of Walter E. Edge, which runs until March 4, 1931, Ambassador Morrow ran far ahead of his only opponent, John A. Kelly, from the very first. Kelly, who also ran for the full six-year term, was a poor fourth in the returns of that contest.

The fourth candidate, former Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, was greatly outdistanced in the early returns by Representative Fort. Mr. Frelinghuysen, like Mr. Morrow, advocated repeal of the eighteenth amendment, but differed with the ambassador over the method of liquor regulation to be substituted for it. Mr. Morrow urged restoration of State's rights in settling liquor questions, while Mr. Frelinghuysen declared for some method of centralized control.

In the ambassador's home precinct he received 578 votes, Mr. Frelinghuysne received 3 votes and Mr. Fort 18.

The heaviest vote today in most places was recorded between 3:30 and 8 p. m. (Eastern standard time), when the so-called commuter vote was registered. Threatening weather in the early part of the day kept many voters from the polls, but even a light rain in the early evening could not dampen the ardor of those who

HOUSE IS ADAMANT ON $9,000,000 SUM

Its Conferees Are Instructed Not to Give In on U. S. Aid to Capital.

VOTE PASSED BY 283-16

So far as House conferees are concerned, a compromise on the deadlocked 1931 District appropriation bill now is virtually impossible.

By a vote of 283 to 16, the House yesterday instructed its conferees to insist on a Federal contribution of $9,000,000.

Whether the Senate will back up its conferees, who want a Federal contribution of $12,000,000, will be known today when Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), of Connecticut, will introduce his report announcing complete disagreement between the Senate and House conferees.

If the Senate accepts the report, Senate conferees will know that they have the support of that body, and will continue to hold out for a $12,000,000 contribution. If the report is not accepted, they will know that they will have to yield to the House.

While the House was voting on the motion to back up its conferees, Representative Robert G. Simmons (Republican), Nebraska, introduced a resolution to continue the 1930, or current, District appropriation bill.

The purpose of this is to allow the District sufficient funds to operate the local government for the coming fiscal year.

It would not provide any money for new projects, such as school buildings, however, but only so much money as is needed to run the city and to continue projects already started.

In a statement prepared for Representative Simmons last week, Maj

COMPROMISE HELD NEAR ON PAY RAISE

Another compromise on the Capper-Zihlman bill was in the making yesterday, one that will save the bill, and insure distribution of nearly $600,000 in pay raises among Washington's 2,000 policemen and firemen.

And if it materializes it will be a compromise in every sense of the word, with everybody concerned yielding here or there, including the man who has held up the bill until now—Representative Robert G. Simmons (Republican), of Nebraska.

Mr. Simmons said late yesterday that conferences between himself and representatives of the Police and Fire Departments were being continued in an effort to find a common ground on which they could agree.

After talking to Mr. Simmons, representatives of the two departments conferred with Senate conferees on the bill. From these conferees it was learned that the tentative compromise is as follows:

The Phipps-Simmons amendment to the bill which would kill the provision basing retirement pay on the new salary scale is to go out of the bill.

The step-up amendment—that is, the amendment which would require a policeman to serve seven years before he could get the top private's salary of $2,400—will stay in the bill.

The amendments scaling down raises of the officials also will stay in, and so will the amendment to increase the retirement contribution from 2½ per cent to 3½ per cent of the employe's salary.

The Simmons amendment to give a certain number of the most efficient

Chicago Mayor Cited On Eve of Crime Quiz

Illinois Legislator Lays Responsibility for Lawless Regime on Thompson and Implicates Mrs. McCormick, 'Little Red Riding Hood.'

Chicago, June 17 (A.P.).—Politics stirred today on the eve of two investigations into Chicago crime and political corruption and culminated in a rebuke to Mayor William Hale Thompson delivered at the special session of the legislature at Springfield, called to relieve Chicago finances.

"If we want a connection between the hoodlums and gangsters and politics we don't have far to look," declared Representative Michael Igoe, of Chicago, Democratic floor leader in the House. "We have a mayor up in Chicago who should be held responsible. Connected with the rotten chief of the City Hall is Little Red Riding Hood, who wants to carry the Republican standard into the United States Senate."

Ruth Hanna McCormick is the Republican candidate for the Senate from Illinois. Her primary victory last April carried the Thompson forces back into power in Cook County Republican affairs, but she disclaimed any alliance with the Thompson machine.

Igoe charged further on the floor of the House that Commissioner William Russell and Chief of Detectives John Stege, both of whom stepped aside yesterday, were made goats for the mayor.

The reassignment of the two police officers followed public indignation against gang shootings which crystallized with the assassination of Alfred J. Lingle, Tribune crime reporter, a week ago.

The city council is scheduled to start its investigation of the police department tomorrow, and a grand jury already has been instructed by Chief Justice Denis J. Normoyle, of Criminal Court, to get at the truth of the connection between crime and politics.

Also, Mayor Thompson is expected to send to the city council tomorrow the name of a man to succeed Commissioner Russell. Meanwhile, John H. Alcock, known as "the Iron Man" of the police department, has assumed command, as he has done temporarily twice before.

Although Mayor Thompson is reported as favoring a civilian for the police commissionership, it was thought he might leave Alcock in command for the remaining eight months of his term as mayor.

A henchman of Al Capone, now fighting expulsion from Miami, Fla., today got a jail sentence when Anton Rench, president of the suburb of Stickney, was sent to a cell for one year.

Rench's wife, Erna, was fined $500 and James Sinclair, a bartender, was sentenced to three months in jail and fined $500. Rench was convicted of possessing liquor, Mrs. Rench of a nuisance charge, and Sinclair of four liquor sales.

Federal Judge C. E. Woodward denied a motion for a new trial, but granted a stay of execution until June 27 to allow an appeal to be filed.

Rench was formerly chief of police of Stickney and his bungalow allegedly served as a Capone rendezvous.

Yesterday, Albert Capone, "Scarface's" elder brother, was sentenced to Leavenworth for defrauding the Government on income tax returns.

Rock and Dime Warn Man He Is Marked for Death

Police Protection Given Kansas Avenue Resident After He Receives Box Containing Grim Symbols Which Bear Mute "On the Spot" Warning.

In the picturesque symbol language of gangland, Hugh Neidomanski, 4911 Kansas avenue northwest, was served notice last night that he had been put "on the spot."

Immediate police protection was given him by direction of Acting Captain of Detectives Ben Kuhling, and relatives moved from the house to a downtown residence on Vermont avenue near L street northwest.

The method taken to warn Morris that he had been selected for death was to place on his front porch a small cardboard box, containing a small rock and a 10-cent piece. The mode of letting the intended victim know that he has been marked for death was taken from the famed guerrillas of Chicago.

The box is supposed to symbolize a coffin, the dime is supposed to be a "hot spot," and the rock warning of approaching death. People living in the house believed, they told police, that the placing of the box on the porch was no idle gesture.

Following a preliminary investigation by Detective Sergeant John Wise, Detective Sergeants Kane and Trammell were ordered to assist in the investigation. At midnight last night they were sent to the Kansas avenue address with orders to take whatever steps they thought necessary to protect every one in the house.

A Post reporter telephoned the house and was told that precautions were being taken to insure against any one being harmed.

So far as members of the family could say, there were no people in Washington they knew of who might have a grudge against Niedmanski. Racketeers who probably desire to frighten the man out of the city are credited by police with the threat.

56 Illinois Lawyers Accused of Civic Graft

Springfield, Ill., June 17 (A.P.).—The Chicago Bar Association today asked the Supreme Court to take action against 56 Illinois attorneys who are charged with being on the pay roll of the Chicago Sanitary District without giving adequate legal services for their compensation.

Autos, Tobacco, Fast Living Draw Representative's Ire

McKeown Holds Breakdown in Home Training at Bottom of Disrespect for Law; Hoover's Enforcement Commission Termed Disappointment.

Lack of proper home training, the fact that so many persons are living in automobiles, the indiscriminate smoking of cigarettes by womenfolk and high-speed living in general were trotted onto the floor of the House of Representatives yesterday as reasons for disrespect for law.

The discussion was started by Representative McKeown (Democrat), Oklahoma, during general debate on the second deficiency bill. Mr. McKeown is a member of the judiciary committee. He complained that the President's Law Enforcement Commission had not recommended anything new and in this respect was a distinct disappointment.

At the expense of being called an old fogy, Mr. McKeown declared, he wanted to say that the fundamental cause of disrespect for law is to be found in the fast living of today.

"If children were taught in the home to respect the law we would not have the situation existing today," declared Mr. McKeown. "The trouble is that about everybody is living in automobiles today. Parents are not interested in inculcating respect for law in their children, or will not take the time to train them. And we do not have the good old-fashioned religious teaching today that our mothers gave us when we were young."

Mr. McKeown said he could name a town in South Carolina where there has not been a felony committed in a hundred years, because the people bring up their children strictly and the law is respected. Even railroad trains are not permitted to operate in the town on Sunday.

Representative O'Connell wanted to know if a good deal of the disrespect for law might not be due to the fact that "grandmother, mother and daughter smoke cigarettes together these days." The Oklahoman thought there might be something in that, but did not pursue the subject.

Representative Dunbar (Republican), Indiana, asked Mr. McKeown voted after returning home from across the Hudson.

Candidates of the Democratic, Prohibition and Socialist parties, who will oppose Mr. Morrow at the polls in November for both the full and short terms, were given uncontested nominations.

Alexander Simpson, fiery antiprohibitionist, who has represented Hudson County in the State Senate for many years, is the Democratic nominee for the full term. Representing the Democrats in the short-term contest will be Miss Thelma Parkinson.

The Prohibition party's candidate for the long term is Dr. James Gilbert Mason, who was for many years a missionary in India.

Miss Esther H. Elfreth will be the Prohibition candidate for the short term. Henry Jager is Socialist candidate for both terms.

Ambassador Morrow declined to make any comment on the trend of the election, declaring he would wait until all the returns were tabulated.

"However," he said, smiling, "I seem to have carried my own ward."

PLOT TO KILL 16 FEARED IN NEW YORK

New York Journal, at 9 a. m. today, five and a half hours before Sowley's body was discovered.

The letters contain a great deal of mumbo-jumbo about an "international secret society" and "missing documents" together with an elaborate code. They threaten fourteen more persons and say that one person was to have been murdered tonight. Detectives believe they were written by a mad man, but have not entirely abandoned the theory that they may actually indicate the existence of a murder syndicate.

The letters assert that all the persons marked for death are known to the murderer. However, when the killer appeared to shoot Moyznsky and Sowley, he asked to see their automobile licenses and learned their names from the licenses.

Whatever may be the mental condition of the murderer or the purpose back of a possible plot, Queens tonight was the scene of the greatest murder investigation in its history. Automobiles and motorcycles carrying uniformed policemen and detectives patroled every road known to be frequented by petting parties. Every effort was being made to warn the motoring public to avoid places where the killer might come upon them unaware.

Woman Tells Story.

Women have figured at the scene of both murders and the quiet and unobstrusive work done by detectives tonight resulted in the locating of Miss Elizabeth "Betty" Ring, Sowley's companion when he was killed Monday night.

Miss Ring lives at Hollis, Queens, and is the daughter of David Ring, a New York City policeman. She was taken by detectives to the vicinity of the place where Sowley's body was found. It is not far from the Creedmore State Hospital for the Insane. She told the police that she and Sowley were in the coupe when a man crept up behind and shot Sowley through the left window of the coupe.

As Sowley slumped forward over the wheel the man shouted, "Now you've got the same dose that the other fellow got" and tossed the clipping through the window. Miss Ring said she leaped out of the right side of the car and fled in terror. She reached the Rockey Hill road where she hailed a bus and went to her home. Whether she was able to give the police an accurate description of the murderer could not be learned.

Insane Man Suspected.

The similarity of the two murders led dectectives to believe that an insane man is specilizing in the shooting of persons engaged in petting parties in lonely lanes and that he is obsessed with the delusion that he can make his murders more horrible and dramatize himself by furnishing a newspaper with a complicated code indicating a giant plot.

The finding of Sowley's body caused the police to link the two murders together almost immediately. Sowley was found by two Italian dandelion pickers, who told 15-year-old Edward Miller, of Queens, what they had found. The police have not been able to locate the dandelion pickers.

Miller located Patrolman James Spain, of the Queens Village Precinct, and told him what he had learned from the men who had found the body. The policeman went to the scene with the boy and found the body.

A general alarm brought every available detective to the scene. Assistant Chief Inspector Gallagher, commander of the detective division, was at the scene in less than an hour and was followed by Police Commissioner Mulrooney. Detectives who had been working on the Moyznsky murder immediately expressed the opinion that Sowley was murdered by the same person.

Dr. Briazza, of Mary Immaculate Hospital, who examined the body, said Sowley had been dead since about 10 p. m. Monday night. Miss Ring places the time of his death later, at about 1:30 a. m.

In Sowley's pocket the detectives found two of three articles purchased by him at a drug store in Jamaica Monday night. The druggist identified Sowley as the purchaser and said he had been accompanied by a woman. It was in this manner that the police located Miss Ring.

"Documents" Are Demanded.

The young woman said she and Sowley had been friends for about two years.

The letters received by the New York Journal indicated that the writer's mind was a bedlam of information gleaned from cheap detective fiction. The letters suggest that the newspaper publish them in order to persuade certain people to return "documents." They State that certain documents were taken from Sowley and that more would have to be forthcoming unless thirteen other persons wanted to face death. However, Miss Ring denied that the murderer took any documents from Sowley, although she said he looked at his automobile driver's license.

Miss Catherine May, 19, of College Point, Queens, the woman who was with Moyznsky when he was shot, is being held in $50,000 bail as a material witness. She denied tonight that she knew Swoley or had any information about a plot.

WHITE NOMINATION IN MAINE CONCEDED

Representative Wins Over Brewster as Republican Senate Choice.

GARDINER EASY VICTOR

Portland, Me., June 17 (A.P.).—With returns from yesterday's primary virtually complete, the plurality of Representative Wallace H. White over former Gov. Ralph O. Brewster for the Republican United States senatorial nomination was computed tonight at 7,123.

White's vote stood 46,366 against 39,243 for Brewster, with but 33 outlying precincts of the 632 in the State unreported. Dugald B. Dewar, "wet" aspirant for the office, polled 7,064 votes.

In a brief statement today Brewster conceded his second defeat within two years for the same nomination. He was routed by Senator Frederick Hale in 1928 by a margin of 33,000 votes.

Gov. William Tudor Gardiner drifted easily into the Republican renomination by a majority of 19,028 over his opponent, former Mayor John Wilson of Bangor. Gardiner polled 57,280; Wilson, 38,252.

Both Republicans and Democrats had contests in the Second Congressional District for the office White will vacate. Donald B. Partridge, of Lewiston, was accorded the Republican nomination by a 1,134-vote margin over his nearest opponent, State Senator Zelma M. Dwinal, while Democrats, with a light vote, nominated Col. Albert Belliveau, of Rumford, for the office.

In the biennial "off year" election next September White will oppose Frank H. Haskell, of Portland, who was unopposed in the primary for the Democratic senatorial nomination. Edward C. Moran, jr., of Rockland, who also had no opposition for the gubernatorial nomination of the minority party, will seek to oust Gardiner, who defeated him two years ago.

Two Stills Seized Near Washington

One of 1,800-Gallon Capacity Largest Captured in Months.

Two stills of 1,800 and 500 gallons capacity, respectively, were seized by Sergt. George M. Little, of the Metropolitan Police Department and Federal prohibition agents late last night on the property of Harrison Swan, 2 miles from La Plata, Md. Information regarding the stills, the larger of which is said to be the biggest seized in this territory for months, was secured by Sergt. Little.

The raiders found no one on the property, the owner or attendants apparently having been warned of the approach of the police and the Federal agents.

In addition to the stills, raiders found 35,000 gallons of mash, large quantities of empty jars, much corn meal and other materials for making of liquor. The raiding squad planned to return to the scene this morning and destroy the stills.

Bank Robber Shot By Cashier's Son

Man Who Fled on Foot Is Caught in Auto Chase; $600 Recovered.

Keller, Va., June 17 (A.P.).—A pedestrian bank robber, who held up a branch bank cashier and procured $600 here today, was wounded by the cashier's 16-year-old son a short time later in a chase and captured. The holdup man told officers he was Linwood W. Ennis, of Chester, Pa. He was wounded in both legs by a charge from a shotgun in the hands of Stanley Ames, jr., whose father had been relieved of the cash.

Officers were told that shortly after 3 o'clock, Ennis came to the elder Ames' cage in the Keller Branch of the Eastern Shore Banking Co. and asked to have a check cashed. When told identification was required he went outside and waited until the place was cleared of customers.

Returning, he shoved a pistol in Ames' face, according to officers, and demanded money. When he fled he was overhauled in an automobile by the town marshal, Charles Guy, and young Ames.

Senators Confirm Adkins as Justice

New Associate of District Supreme Court Will Take Oath Soon.

The nomination of Jesse C. Adkins to be an associate justice of the District of Columbia Supreme Court was confirmed by the Senate yesterday.

Mr. Adkins, a former president of the District Bar Association, is expected to take the oath of office at an early date. Once he has been installed the court will have its full complement of seven justices.

Under a law recently enacted by Congress, the court now is entitled to nine justices. It is up to the President now to select the additional two. He also must select two additional judges for the local Court of Appeals, a bill also having been enacted to create two additional judgeships in that tribunal.

SCHALL IS ASSURED OF PLACE ON TICKET

Minnesotan Continues to Lead Others in G. O. P. Senate Race.

CHASE AND OLSON WIN

St. Paul, Minn., June 17 (A.P.).—With victory assured, Senator Thomas D. Schall continued piling up a majority of votes over his chief opponent, Gov. Christianson, for the United States senatorial nomination on the Republican ticket as returns were reported from more than half the State in Monday's primary election. Senator Schall's lead showed a steady gain when 2,283 of the State's 3,698 precincts had reported. He had amassed 182,079 votes to 123,887 for Gov. Christianson, while John F. Selb, "wet" candidate, ran a poor third with 17,711.

Besides Mr. Schall, those certain of winning nominations were Ray P. Chase, Republican nomination for governor, and Floyd B. Olson, Farmer-Labor nomination for governor.

Ernest Lundeen, on the basis of fewer but representative returns, led Knud Wefald for the Farmer-Labor nomination for United States senator, 1,382 precincts giving him 19,680 against 11,900 for his opponent. Mr. Chase ran up a considerable lead for the Republican gubernatorial nomination. When 1,742 precincts had reported he had polled 114,181 votes with J. A. O. Burnquist, former governor, second with 64,972, and N. J. Holmberg third with 42,092.

Boy Uconscious For Three Weeks

Skull Fracture and Concussion Are Result of Fall From Horse.

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., June 17.—At 5 o'clock this afternoon Frederick Shreckhise, 8 years old, had been unconscious in a hospital here for three full weeks, or 504 hours.

On the afternoon of May 27 he was thrown from a horse, being found by relatives who instituted a search after the riderless animal returned to the Shreckhise home, near Mount Sydney, 8 miles north of Staunton. Today the lad's condition was described as "just about the same," and this report has been altered only slightly from day to day during the past two weeks. Young Shreckhise suffered a severe fracture at the base of the skull and concussion of the brain.

Paralysis is not believed to have resulted from the injury, as the boy apparently can move his limbs freely. Occasionally he has spoken a few words to friends and relatives, but always seems to lapse again into a comatose condition. In spite of the severity of the injury and the long period he has lain unconscious, physicians are still hopeful of his recovery.

SHIP SAVES $130,000 IN NEW TARIFF FEES

Olympic Breasts Tape Off Sandy Hook Ahead of Legal Deadline.

OTHER VESSELS LOSERS

New York, June 17 (A.P.).—Cutting the ocean foam under pressure of pounding engines, the liner Olympic breasted the tariff tape off Sandy Hook late today and saved importers with cargo aboard approximately $130,000 in extra customs duty.

Had she passed Ambrose Lightship after 4:30 Eastern standard time, her goods would have come under provisions of the new tariff bill signed by the President today, but she beat the deadline by slightly more than an hour, despite a slow start that had her behind schedule for the first part of her race against time.

More than a dozen smaller craft also beat the new levy by steaming in during the day, but at least four which had hoped to arrive were not yet sighted when the custom house closed for the day and consignees will have to pay the new rates in the morning. Those four were the Maimyo from Calcutta, the Exeter City from Bristol, the Soemba from Batavia and the Steeleore from Cristobal.

4:30 P. M. Legal Deadline.

The new tariff provisions officially go into effect at midnight, but actually they became effective at 4:30 as the custom house closed at that hour and no papers could be filed until morning.

Even if some of the tardy craft come into the harbor tonight they will come under the new rules, because it will be impossible to enter the manifolds until after the legal deadline.

Even as it was, an extra hour of grace was allowed racing steamers, customs officials staying at their posts to check in late arrivals. Tomorrow and thereafter duties will be levied by customs men well drilled in provisions of the new bill, which they have been studying since the act was passed by Congress and President Hoover announced that he would sign it.

Diversion from Course Hinted.

Owners of some of the ships racing to port announced yesterday that if the race were lost the ships would be diverted to a port in some other country with less stringent tariff, since importers who had ordered cargo for sale in this country would not be able to dispose of their goods except at a loss.

Late today, however, it could not be determined that any ships were actually being diverted from their courses, and it was generally believed that consignees who lost in the gamble of hissing steam and ticking clocks would swallow their loss, if such there really was, and just mark it down to the fortunes of commerce.

Friend of Caruso, Long Ill, Ends Sufferings With Gun

Gianni Viafora, Noted Cartoonist, Complains of Pain to Wife, Former Diva, Then Sends Bullet Crashing Through Brain in New York Apartment.

New York, June 17 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—"Beasts can be destroyed by society when they are in pain, but there is no way out for a human being. Why can't I be freed from this pain?"

Mme. Gina Ciaparelli Viafora, former Metropolitan Opera soprano, who sang with Caruso, ascribed no literal meaning to thiz exclamation of her artist-husband, Gianni Viofora, Italian cartoonist and illustrator, made as he stood in his studio-apartment in Seventy-ninth street this afternoon. The artist, who was 55, had been afflicted with heart disease for three years.

Mr. Viafora crossed his studio to look once again at bronze busts of a fellow Italian now dead—a great friend of the Viafora family. On the wall a plaque of Enrico Caruso and Gianni Viafora standing together held the attention of the artist the longest.

Meanwhile Mme. Viafora withdrew into an adjoining room in the studio to give a lesson to a visiting student, for she had devoted her time to teaching music since retiring from the opera ten years ago.

In the other room Mr. Viafora's fingers were hastily going through some of the burlesques and caricatures which had made his name since, as a shy Italian lad, he entered the Academy of Beaux Arts in Naples. There was a life sketch of President Wilson, and caricatures of celebrities of the opera, the stage, finance and art. Then he strolled toward his bath.

He paused once more, just outside his bathroom door, before his bust of Caruso, for he knew and had advised him the most.

"My husband has thrown his detested medicine against the mirror, I suppose," the artist's wife told her pupil a moment later. But then came the screams of a maid, and she rushed into the bathroom.

Mr. Viafora was lying, pajama-clad, on the floor with blood flowing from a wound in his head. His wife supposed it was another heart attack, for it was not until a moment later that the revolver under the body was discovered. The bullet had entered the right temple and emerged through the left. Dr. Cantor, of Knickerbocker Hospital, made the pronouncement of death.

Mme. Viafora revealed that she and her husband were planning a trip this summer to visit their friend, Beniamino Gigli, Metropolitan tenor, at his Italian villa. The artist will probably be buried in New York, though no definite plans have been made.

PRESIDENT USES SIX PENS TO SIGN TARIFF

Conferees and Mellon See Event; 887 Duties Are Increased.

RATES IN EFFECT TODAY

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover, in a simple ceremony at the White House, signed the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill yesterday and turned over to the Treasury the job of putting into effect overnight a law which has required Congress nearly a year and a half to write.

Theoretically the new law was to take effect at midnight, but actually the more than 1,000 new duties and administrative features will not become operative until the customs houses open at 8 a. m. today, Eastern standard time.

Orders went out from the Treasury that collectors were to close their offices yesterday at the usual hour of 4:30 p. m., Eastern standard time, so that all ships whose cargo declarations have not been filed up to that hour will pay the new rates at today's opening.

Taking half a dozen ordinary pens handed to him by Lawrence Richey, one of his secretaries, Mr. Hoover affixed his signature to the huge document at 12:59 p. m. At least that was the time given him by Clayton Moore, of the House ways and means committee, whose watch happened to be three minutes fast.

"Somebody give me the time," said the President as he picked up his sixth pen.

Gives Inaccurate Time.

Mr. Moore announced it was 12:59, but did not discover the inaccuracy of his wrist watch until it was too late.

Present at the ceremony were Secretary Mellon, whose department will administer the new law; Francis X. A. Eble, commissioner of customs, and Senators Smoot, Utah, and Shortridge, California, and Representatives Hawley, Oregon, and Treadway, Massachusetts, four of the six Republican conferees on the bill. Senator Watson, Indiana, and Representative Bacharach, New Jersey, the other two conferees, did not attend. The pens went to the conferees.

Carrying 1,122 rate changes, including 887 increases and 235 reductions, and a revised flexible provision authorizing the tariff commission to propose rate modifications within a limit of 50 per cent subject to executive approval, the new tariff act supplants the existing Fordney-McCumber law, in effect since 1922.

President Hoover had announced in advance he would approve the bill, as he believed the interests of business stability would be served by putting it into effect as quickly as possible.

Flexible Clause Praised.

He feels the new flexible clause will go a long way toward eliminating politics from tariff-making and enable the tariff commission to speed up its work.

Customs officials anticipated little difficulty in administering the law, although they pointed out it would be a miracle if some slip up did not occur, inasmuch as they were called upon to effectuate almost immediately a law which began to take form on January 7, 1929, and was not completed by Congress until last week.

Sixteen customs experts from all over the country were brought here to check up the bill and regulations are being drawn as the study progresses. Whereas in the past it took from a year to a year and a half to complete new regulations, customs officials believe they will have the 1930 act going without a hitch and under completed regulations within 90 days.

Copies of the bill were mailed out only last Sunday to the 49 customs districts, including Alaska, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Virgin Islands, it is expected that the island possessions and Alaska for a few days will experience the most difficulty in checking shipments.

COMMITTEE VOTES ON PACT MONDAY

Favorable Report to Be Made to Senate on London Naval Treaty.

DELAY REFUSED 14 TO 4

By ALBERT W. FOX.

The Senate foreign relations committee agreed yesterday to vote on the London naval treaty on Monday next. The vote will be on Chairman Borah's motion to report the pact favorably to the Senate.

That this motion will carry by a wide margin was indicated yesterday when the committee voted 14 to 4 against Senator Hiram Johnson's motion to deter consideration of the treaty until receipt of the widely-discussed secret documents from President Hoover. Those voting to support the Johnson motion were Moses, Shipstead, Robinson, of Indiana, and Johnson. Senator Black would have voted to support the motion but was absent from the meeting.

Between now and Monday there will be a cessation of activities concerning the pact excepting that Senator Johnson will discuss the treaty over the radio tonight. Mr. Johnson will write a minority report to accompany the submission of the Senate. Another report dealing with the secret documents issue is also in the couse of preparation.

Will Discuss Secret Documents.

The committee's action on the Johnson motion yesterday means that the debate over the secret documents is to be transferred to the Senate floor when the special session begins. The Senate is not expected to finish its legislative program until toward the end of next week.

The understanding now is that the special session will meet early in July and that discussion of the pact will begin in earnest shortly after July 4. The administration's program for keeping senators here until the treaty is acted upon has been practically perfected, but there remains some uncertainty as to how it will work out in practice.

In view of the fact that so many senators desire to be away from Washington in July, for one reason or another, there is more interest at the moment in arranging for vacations than in considering the pact. A move to defer a vote until next November is gaining headway and several senators, friendly to the general purpose of the pact, have announced a readiness to support a motion to vote in November instead of in July or August.

Postponement Plans Strengthened.

The secret documents issue has strengthened the hands of those senators who favor postponement. Senators Norris and Blaine are now understood to favor deferring the vote or proceeding with caution unless or until the secret documents are transmitted to the Senate.

Senator Robinson, minority leader, may leave this week for Arkansas to begin patching up his political fences in time to stave off threatened opposition at the coming primaries. It will be necessary for Mr. Robinson to meet political attacks directed as his alliance with the Republican administration in the treaty matter, especially as it is being charged that the treaty is to be used as an administration asset in the coming fall elections.

By returning home this week, it may be possible for Senator Robinson to be back in July and remain until the treaty battle is concluded.

BRITISH HANG ARABS FOR SLAYING JEWS

Strike Follows Execution of Trio, Intensifying Row in Palestine.

RIOTING TROUBLES HAIFA

Jerusalem, June 17 (A.P.).—The execution of three Arabs convicted of having murdered Jews during the Palestine riots last August, today precipitated another difficult situation for British authorities in dealing with the Moslem population in the Holy Land.

The three men were hanged in the prison yard at Acre. The Arab executive, supported by Christian church leaders, vainly attempted to obtain a reprieve for them.

Arab leaders immediately countered by calling a general strike throughout Palestine, which was rigorously observed by Moslems. British police guards in Jerusalem and other important cities were reenforced and kept on the alert.

At Haifa, rioting broke out and Police Superintendent F. M. Scott, of Tel Aviv, temporarily on duty in Haifa, was injured in checking the rioters. In Jaffa, police broke up a demonstration.

The police hope to arrest the assailant of Mr. Scott, who was slightly wounded by knife thrusts. They took into custody three Arabs, accused of inciting to violence.

The bodies of the executed Arabs were surrendered to the Arab executive by the government this afternoon for burial in Acre. The executive guaranteed that no demonstrations would accompany the funerals.

Forbes Confirmed As Envoy to Japan

Mexican Post Slated to Be Filled Next if Morrow Is Nominated.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate yesterday confirmed the nomination of W. Cameron Forbes, of Massachusetts, as Ambassador to Japan.

The nomination, which was reported favorably by the foreign relations committee, was called up in the Senate late yesterday by Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, who explained there had been no opposition to the appointment.

Forbes was confirmed instantly. His confirmation fills the last major diplomatic vacancy. In the event Dwight W. Morrow received the nomination for senator from New Jersey in yesterday's primaries, the post at Mexico City will be the next major position for the President to fill.

EIGHT LAKE VICTIMS GIVEN UP FOR DEAD

Finding of Mechanic's Body Causes Hope to Dwindle for Seven Others.

ERIE YIELDS SHIRT, CAP

Toledo, Ohio, June 17 (A.P.).—The belief that eight prominent Toledoans, who have been missing since Saturday when they started for Pelee Island in a speedboat, lost their lives in Lake Erie, was accepted by relatives and friends here tonight, following the recovery of the body of John Liptack, 25, mechanic on the boat.

Liptack's body, encased in a life preserver, was found this afternoon by the crew of the Coast Guard Cutter 173, two miles southeast of West Sister Island, a few miles from where the speedboat was found Saturday night, minus all passengers.

The hands on a wrist watch worn by Liptack were at 10:50. Coroner Frank G. Kreft expressed belief that the watch stopped when the man entered the water. This would indicate, he said, that the eight missing men were pitched into the water less than two hours after they left Toledo.

Liptack was clad only in a shirt, undershirt and socks, indicating that he had discarded his other clothing in a desperate struggle to save himself. Coroner Kreft said his death was due to exposure, not drowning.

The finding of a shirt containing the initials of Herbert W. Nauts, another passenger on the boat, and a brown cap, believed to have been worn by Internal Revenue Collector Nauts, father of Herbert Nauts, and also a passenger on the boat, led Coast Guard officials to believe that all of the eight men were tossed to their death in the choppy waters of Lake Erie.

Veteran lake men said that unless others in the boat managed to get life jackets, it may be several days before their bodies come to the surface. Coast Guardsmen, who have twenty boats searching the lake, said they will continue their efforts to locate the other missing men. Airplanes and private boats also scanned the lake today in the search that has been going on since Sunday.

DRY OFFICER SLAIN, ONE SHOT IN CHASE

Two Other Agents Injured as Automobile Crashes Tree After Gun Play.

LIQUOR RUNNERS ESCAPE

Goldsboro, N. C., June 17 (A.P.).—Two suspected liquor runners early today fired on four prohibition enforcement agents who were pursuing them in an automobile, killing one and wounding another.

P. L. Flinchum, 33, was killed and H. V. Andrews, 41, wounded in the left arm and right leg. B. A. Dale, 40, and F. E. Street, 52, the other agents, were bruised and cut when the automobile which Flinchum was driving swerved from the road and crashed into a tree after he was shot.

The liquor runners escaped after the shooting. Officers apparently were without a clew to their identity beyond the meager descriptions the enforcement agents were able to give. The liquor car was of a low-priced make and descriptions of it were sent to neighboring towns and cities.

The four agents were attached to district enforcement headquarters at Wilson. They received a "tip" that an automobile load of whiskey would be brought through Goldsboro some time during last night and came here to intercept it.

Shortly after 3 o'clock this morning an automobile which they believed to be that they were seeking was sighted 2 miles from Goldsboro. Failing in their efforts to halt it then, the agents followed it in their automobile.

The 2 miles into Goldsboro were made at what Andrews afterward described as a 70-mile-an-hour clip and near the City Park here the agents' car drew near its quarry.

Andrews said one of the suspected liquor runners then turned and began firing at them through the rear window of his automobile. Until then, the prohibition enforcement agent asserted, he and none of his companions had drawn a pistol or fired a shot.

The gunfire continued for a few minutes in a running fight until Flinchum was shot through the forehead and the agents' car wrecked. The four enforcement officers were taken to the Goldsboro Hospital, where Flinchum died.

CAROL AT THRONE SWORN IN AS KING OF ROUMANIA

HOUSE FIRM ON LUMP SUM

Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, estimated that, if the 1931 bill failed and the 1930 appropriation were continued, the city would lose more than $1,000,000 in maintenance money and more than $14,000,000 for new projects.

At that time, however, Maj. Donovan did not know that the continuing resolution would authorize money for continuance of projects already started.

It is estimated that between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000 will be available for continuing such projects, thus reducing the amount which the city will lose as the result of failure of the appropriation bill to about $11,000,000 or $12,000,000.

How Projects Are Affected.

To illustrate the way incompleted projects will be affected by the continuing resolution, experts at the Capitol yesterday singled out the case of the Alice Deal Junior High School.

For this project, an appropriation of $500,000 has been authorized. Of this sum, $200,000 has been appropriated.

It was carried in the current or 1930 appropriation bill.

The pending bill which now is in danger of dying, carries $300,000 for the school, a sum sufficient to complete it. If the bill dies, this item dies with it.

Under the continuing resolution, however, the District may spend the same sum on the school in 1931 as it spent in this fiscal year—that is, $200,000.

The report announcing disagreement on the 1931 bill was submitted yesterday by Representative Simmons, who afterward made the motion that the House insist on a $9,000,000 Federal contribution.

Parliamentary Point Involved.

Senators who have been handling the bill did not like the idea of the House acting on the disagreement report first. It was their understanding that, under the rules, the Senate should have acted first.

Parliamentary experts declared, however, that the Senate would have acted first only in case the conference had been "effective."

Mr. Simmons told the House that an effort had been made by local newspapers to involve the President in the fight over the appropriation bill.

"So far as I know," he said, "the President has taken no action whatever in this matter."

The President's attitude, he said, was reflected in the report of the Budget Bureau, which recommended a Federal appropriation of $9,000,000.

Mr. Simmons did but little talking on the bill himself. Instead he yielded his time to other members, most of whom were in sympathy with him.

Garner Opposes Measure.

Minority Leader Garner, who has been with Mr. Simmons all along, characterized the National Capital as a heaven for "tax dodgers." The more the Federal Government contributes toward upkeep of this city, he said, the more such tax dodgers will be inclined to come here.

"The universal rule in the District when the Government needs property," he said, "is to exact double the value of it from the Government. That is and has been the rule. It is absurd to say that people who pay a tax rate of only $1.70 on a fifty-cents-on-the-dollar assessment are not being well treated."

The other side of the picture was portrayed by Representative Anthony Griffin (Democrat), of New York, at one time a member of the subcommittee that handled the District appropriation bill.

The question, he said, was not one of the tax rate here. Instead of condemning the people for having a low tax rate, he said, Congress ought to compliment them. Nor, said he, did the question concern whether $9,000,000 was too much or not enough.

40-60 Ratio Recalled.

"The point I want to accentuate," he said, "is this: That the law on the statute books provides that the contribution shall be 40 per cent. The ratio of 40-60 is now the law.

"That law has been evaded by virtue of the motion of the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Cramton), who was able to convince the committee that $9,000,000 was enough."

Representative Ross Collins (Democrat), of Mississippi, a member of the District appropriations subcommittee, interrupted to say that the House had a right to substitute the lump sum provision for the 60-40 law.

Mr. Griffin replied that it was an "arrogant assertion of a right."

The New Yorker said that the Federal contribution, instead of being continued as a definite lump sum year after year, ought to be put on a definite, scientific basis, which bears some ratio to the obligation of the Federal Government to the District government.

Now, he said, it is left to the "arrogant domination" of a few men in the House who bear animosity toward the National Capital.

Moore and Griffin Agree.

Representative R. Walton Moore (Democrat), of Virginia, urged approval of his bill creating a commission to settle the problem of fiscal relations, and Mr. Griffin agreed with him that such a commission was needed.

Minority Leader Garner declared that the House itself was a sufficient commission.

"The thing to do is to pass this bill as usual," he said. "Let the Senate make its bluff and then let us call the Senate's bluff, and the bill will pass before the end of the session.

"It has always been done that way and always will be. I hope there will be a 100 per cent vote on this issue and I think a member will betray his constituents if he votes to have the Government contribute more to this refuge for tax dodgers."

Chairman Snell of the rules committee said that the viewpoint of Mr. Simmons and the other House conferees probably was identical with that of 95 per cent of the House members, and also that of the average American citizen.

Chairman Wood, of the appropriation committee, agreed with him and declared that there were untold millions in cash and securities lying untaxed in bank vaults of this city.

Georgian Backs Simmons.

Representative Crisp (Democrat), of Georgia, who many years ago abolished the plan of having the appropriation bill financed on a 50-50 basis, told Representative Simmons not to mind the criticism of citizens and newspapers. He himself, he said, had been criticized even more harshly.

Majority Leader Tilson declared that the low tax rate of $1.70 on every $100 of assessed value was proof that the city was not under a burden.

When the House gave him the overwhelming vote of confidence, Mr. Simmons walked from the floor with a wide smile on his face.

Members who voted against the motion to insist on the $9,000,000 lump sum were as follows:

Republicans—Bowman, West Virginia; Campbell, Pennsylvania; Houston, Delaware; Lampert, Wisconsin, and Zihlman, of Maryland.

BOTH SIDES GIVE IN ON PAY RAISE PLAN

policemen and firemen a $5-a-month bonus will go out.

Presumably if this compromise is agreed to all around Representative Simmons will allow the bill to go to a Senate and House conference, where the amendments can be adjusted.

History of Legislation.

The House adopted the amendments before passing the bill, and then sent it to the Senate. There the amendments were disagreed to and the bill sent to conference.

When the bill came back to the House, Mr. Simmons objected to sending it to conference because he knew House conferees would be members of the District committee and therefore sympathetic toward an unamended bill.

Charging that sponsors of the bill had broken faith with him, Mr. Simmons persuaded House leaders to keep the bill from going to conference, and they have stood behind him until now.

Retirement Pay Improvement.

The amendment to kill the provision placing retirement pay on the new salary rates is one of the most important, and, from the standpoint of the policemen and firemen, one of the most objectionable in the bill.

Many former policemen and firemen, say the sponsors of the bill, are now "up against it," and it is to help them as much as those on the force that the bill was drafted.

Thus, if Mr. Simmons agrees to throw this out, it will represent a real concession on his part.

Speedy Sentence Handed Man Who Shot Policeman

Arlington County Rumrunner Indicted in 10 Minutes and Receives Nine Years; Is Suspect in Ashland, Va., Murder Case.

Within four hours after his arrest in Washington, Leroy Woodson, 26 years old, of Richmond, Va., was tried and sentenced yesterday to nine years in the Virginia penitentiary for shooting Raymond Crack, Arlington County policeman, during a rum chase on February 12, and for transporting liquor.

The case set a record in Arlington County in court procedure. A special grand jury took less than ten minutes to return two indictments, and Woodson pleaded guilty to both charges when taken before Circuit Judge Walter T. McCarthy.

The young defendant told the court he had been transporting liquor for about three years and was carrying two .38-calibre revolvers for fear of hijackers at the time of his encounter with Crack. He said he did not know until the day after the chase that he had shot a policeman.

Woodson was arrested about 9 o'clock yesterday morning by Detective H. K. Wilson and Arlington County Policemen James D. East and Jack Conway. He is said to have been operating a farm truck from Maryland to Washington since the escapade.

Harry Sweet, companion of Woodson in the rum chase, was indicted in February for transporting liquor. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to six months in the county jail. He will be released in about a month.

Richmond, Va., June 17 (A.P.).—Leroy Woodson, sentenced to nine years in State Prison today in Arlington County for the shooting of County Officer Raymond Crack and violation of prohibition laws, also is indicted as a suspect in the murder case of Harry A. Smeeman, Ashland police chief, detectives here said late today.

The warrant for Woodson in connection with the death of Smeeman last June 30 was issued for the man in another name, by a Hanover County grand jury, police said.

INTERVENTION ASKED OVER DISTRICT BILL

President Is Urged to Act to Save Tuberculosis Item in Measure.

HEALTH GROUP MEETS

A resolution urging President Hoover to intervene in the deadlock of the 1931 District appropriation bill, so that the item providing for a fund for a tuberculosis sanitarium for children will be saved, will be sent to the White House this morning by the public health committee of the Washington Board of Trade.

This action was decided upon by the committee at a meeting last night after talks, recommending the step as imperative, were made by Mrs. Ernest R. Grant and Wallace Hatch, of the Tuberculosis Association of the District. Mrs. Grant announced that there are 500 children known to be afflicted with tuberculosis in the District and that facilities will care for only 58 of these and then only through the summer.

The District bill contains provision for the initial fund of $300,000 with which to begin immediately construction of the children's tuberculosis sanitarium. If the bill fails to pass, the work of the tuberculosis association will have to start anew, Mrs. Grant announced.

Coordination of health activities in the District in the Council of Social Agencies was urged by Willard Smith and Mr. Hatch. The committee pledged cooperation with the council and recognized it as the logical leader of health work in the District.

A description of "how a" tuberculosis hospital was started in Bengal, India, was given by Mrs. George F. Becker, a Washington woman who founded the tuberculosis association in India.

Dr. D. Percy Hickling, one of the pioneers in fighting tuberculosis in the District and chairman of the public health committee, presided.

cause he expected favorable winds much of the way.

The take-off for the run East was made perfectly, the big plane slipping into the air without any trouble once the engine was warmed up.

Brock was at the controls, with Schlee behind him in a separate compartment, where he worked the radio with which the plane was equipped, to get weather reports and to give bulletins on the progress of the flight. Schlee said that the T. A. T.-Maddux Lines would keep the fliers informed of weather conditions.

Clear weather over southern California was predicted here. Storms were expected in Arizona, New Mexico and west Texas. Rain was predicted in the Louisiana and Florida area.

The record seekers won wide notice a few years ago when they flew from Detroit to Tokyo via Europe, with some thrilling adventures. They were dissuaded from attempting a flight from Tokyo to San Francisco.

whether he thought the Wickersham commission could bring in any better recommendation than the Oklahoman had just made.

Mr. McKeown thanked him for the compliment, but was afraid his colleagues would consider him rather old-fashioned.

One trouble with the Wickersham commission, he said, was that its members knew very little about "common, ordinary practice of the law." Its members were accustomed to handle big cases.

Representative Boylan (Democrat), New York, wanted to know if it would not be far better for folks to take time to train their children properly than for Congress to be from day to day passing new laws creating new criminal offenses. The Oklahoman agreed it would.

POMP MARKS PLANS FOR BYRD GREETING

Brother to Fly From Capital for Participation in Ceremonies.

FAMILY AWAITS EVENT

New York, June 17 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The most pompous pageant since Lindbergh's return from his Paris flight three years ago has been planned to welcome Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd Thursday when he returns to the United States from sixteen months of aerial exploration in the Antarctic.

The plans for the city's greeting to the Navy officer who has flown over the two poles and the Atlantic were made public today by the press department of Grover A. Whalen, chairman of the mayor's committee for the reception of distinguished guests, and while they follow the familiar formula of New York municipal welcomes, they are on a much more elaborate scale than the city has seen in the run-of-the-mine receptions of the past two years.

Three Vessels to Greet Party.

Three vessels, instead of the solitary Macom, will greet the Byrd expedition ships, the Eleanor Bolling and the City of New York, at Quarantine, and a parade of Navy and Coast Guard vessels, yachts and tugs, all dressed in flags and bunting, will convoy them up through the harbor to the Battery, while all shipping in the bay whistles a salute.

A column of nearly 3,000 troops, battalions of Sons of the American Revolution and Boy Scouts will parade up Broadway to City Hall.

And, finally, in the ceremony at City Hall, not merely will Mayor Walker present a painting to Admiral Byrd and the city's medal of valor to his officers and men, but Chancellor Elmer E. Brown, of New York University, will confer the honorary degree of doctor of laws upon the explorer and the Public School Athletic League will give him a medal inscribed "Achievement Through Fitness."

Brother to Fly to New York.

Although the families of the officers and men of the Byrd expedition will be taken down the bay on the steamers Macom and Riverside, Harry F. Byrd, former Governor of Virginia, will be the first to greet the homecoming explorers. The Navy assigned him a seaplane today which will bring him up from Washington tomorrow and will fly him out to sea from Valley Stream Thursday to land him, if the sea is not too rough to permit the transfer, to his brother's ship.

With him will be Col. W. D. Newbill, adjutant general of Virginia; H. G. Shirley, Virginia highway commissioner, and William Carson, chairman of the State conservation board. Lieut. Rutledge Irvine will pilot the plane.

Gov. Pollard Reaches City.

Admiral Byrd's wife, children and mother were expected to arrive in town tonight from Washington.

Gov. John Garland Pollard of Virginia and his official party arrived at the Hotel Vanderbilt today. In the group were the governor's daughter, Miss Suzanne Pollard; Mayor J. Fulmer Bright of Richmond; Col. Peter Saunders, secretary of state of Virginia; J. Stewart Bryan and Gen W. H. Cocher.

Admiral Byrd and his men will stay in the city only one day, for they must entrain at midnight Thursday to journey to Washington to be received at the White House by President Hoover and to be entertained at a luncheon by the National Geographic Society, but the members of the expedition will return here Friday night and Admiral Byrd, after a two-day reception at Richmond by his native State, will rejoin them Monday. His schedule is filled with engagements as far ahead as July 11, when he will travel to Chicago, his New York headquarters announced today.

Endurance Plane Ends Sixth Day

Chicago Brothers Soon to Start Second Week Over City.

Chicago, June 17 (A.P.).—The City of Chicago, endurance plane, tonight was soaring over Sky Harbor airport toward the start of its second week of continuous flight. Completion of the sixth day was marked at 4:40 p. m. (C. D. T.) today.

The flight is strictly a Hunter family affair. Two brothers, Kenneth and John Hunter, are piloting. The plane is refueled and provisioned from another by Walter and Albert Hunter, their brothers. Kenneth is only 21 years old.

Kenneth and John are using the same plane they flew last summer for 263 consecutive hours in a former attempt to surpass the world's record of 420 hours, which is still held by the St. Louis Robin. At that time the plane was known as the "Chicago—We Will."

Navy Officers Ask Oil Conservation

Elks Hill Legislation That Has Hung Fire for 18 Years Pushed.

(Associated Press.)

Immediate enactment of legislation contemplated for eighteen years to conserve the Elk Hills (Calif.) Naval Oil Reserve No. 1 and other reserves was urged before the House naval affairs committee yesterday by high ranking officers of the Navy and members of the Federal Oil Conservation Board.

The desire of Secretary Adams for passage of the Britten bill, to permit the exchange of other reserve lands for holdings of the Standard Oil Co. of California, in the center of Reserve No. 1, or their purchase, was expressed to the committee by Admiral Charles F. Hughes, chief of Naval Operations.

Rear Admiral H. H. Rousseau, chief coordinator of the Navy, with Dr. George Otis Smith, director of the Geological Survey, and Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones, all members of the Federal Oil Conservation Board, testified in behalf of the legislation.

WORK INAUGURATED ON TRAFFIC REFORM

Nine Committees Appointed to Conduct Revision of Capital Rules.

MEET WITH GEN. CROSBY

The Commissioners' new traffic rules revision body got under way last night with much the same personnel among the membership of the traffic advisory committee and advisory council which has had to do with traffic revision in the past.

Capt Herbert C. Whitehurt, chief engineer and coordinator of the District Engineer Department, presided as chairman of the meeting which was held in the office of Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby. Gen. Crosby is responsible for creation of the new council and committee to improve traffic conditions and regulations.

There was little speechmaking. Gen. Crosby said that there was one thing which there seemed to be something like unanimity among District residents and that was that traffic conditions should be improved. He made no specific recommendations to the gathering.

Capt. Whitehurst, chairman of the advisory committee, told the meeting that he had conferred with George W. Offutt, chairman of the advisory council, and it had been decided that the two bodies should act as one, with a joint executive committee to be appointed later to which the nine subcommittees appointed last night should report not later than October 1.

The work which will be undertaken by the various subcommittees is indicated by the names given each. In each case the first name is that of the subcommittee chairman. The committees and personnel follow:

Committee on parking — E. W. Brown, C. H. Frame, Rudolph Jose, C. W. Eliot and Harry M. Bedell.

Committee on automatic signals, signs and markings—Theodore P. Noyes, W. H. Harland, E. D. Merrill, W. H. Lanham and C. H. Frame.

Committee on operating regulations—C. P. Clark, M. O. Eldridge, Theodore P. Noyes, Capt. R. C. Montgomery and Selden M. Ely.

Committee on laws, codes, &c.—George W. Offutt, E. W. Thomas, D. P. Evans, Edwin Hege and M. O. Eldridge.

Committee on loading platforms and zones, public vehicle stands, bus stops, &c.—E. W. Brown, J. H. Hanna, A. F. E. Scheer, H. C. Whitehurst and C. W. Eliot.

Committee on permanent traffic organization and finance—C. P. Clark, W. H. Harland, D. P. Evans, E. W. Brown and W. H. Lanham.

Committee on disposal of worn out motor vehicles—M. O. Eldridge, Harry M. Bedell, Rudolph Jose, Lieut. Lamb and Capt. R. C. Montgomery.

Committee on license of motor vehicles—Rudolph Jose, C. H. Frame, D. P. Evans, E. W. Thomas and C. P. Clark.

Mr. Harland, traffic director, was made an ex-officio member of each subcommittee.

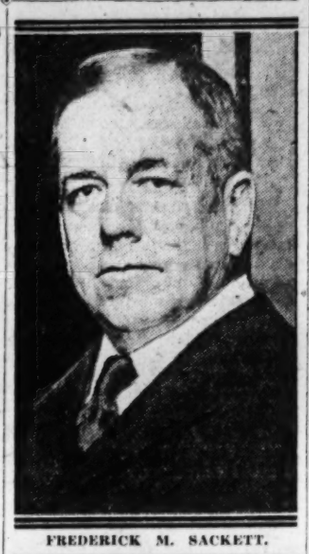
Sackett to Make Speech Attacking Utility Charges

Envoy to Germany Ignores Protest of Insull Against Talk.



FREDERICK M. SACKETT.

Berlin, June 17 (A.P.).—Ambassador Frederic M. Sackett tonight authorized a statement that despite objections by Samuel Insull, Chicago utilities magnate, he will deliver unchanged a speech he has prepared for tomorrow's session of the world power conference.

It had been earlier reported that the ambassador, disliking Mr. Insull's protest, would withdraw the speech entirely and confine himself to conveying briefly President Hoover's greetings to the delegates.

The speech, copies of which were issued in advance to American newspapermen, contains references to the public utilities problem in the United States with special bearing on the cost of such services to consumers. One passage to which it is understood Mr. Insull objected begins thus:

"I know of no other manufacturing industry where the sale price of the product to the great mass of consumers is fifteen times the actual cost of production of the article sold. My purpose is sharply to define a weakness that calls for the keenest thought in your deliberations.

"But you who are in this business should remember that among the users of your product the class which is the greatest in number and constitutes the basis of that public opinion which in the end judges and controls public utilities is that vast body of men who every month pay a 6-cent charge in their households for an article which we are constantly told is being produced by efficient electric stations for from three-tenths to four-tenths of a cent."

The ambassador said consumers might be temporarily appeased by explanations that construction costs were high for the service given to small users, and that large price reductions were made for quantity service, but that they looked "to conferences like these to recognize deficiencies in the progress of the art and to apply the correctives of science."

Farther on the speech declared, "In America there exists a rapidly growing body of public opinion, led by laymen of great ability, which demands governmental competition in rates with private power enterprises.

"So drastic is the demand that it vocalizes the thought that all water power sources should be government owned and operated. This public clamor cites with enthusiasm the delivered costs of certain municipally owned systems in neighboring countries as proof of the iniquity of charges for electricity by our privately operated plans."

No comment was forthcoming from Mr. Insull on his alleged abjections to the speech.

Transoceanic Flier To Give Up Air for Girl

Dublin, June 17 (A.P.).—A romance above that connected with the proposed transatlantic flight of the Southern Cross, still weatherbound at Baldonnel Airdrome, hovers over the adventure.

Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith, the Australian who will command the flight, will give up aviation after the flight is over for his fiancee, Miss Mary Powell, of Melbourne. He will sell the veteran Southern Cross and will return to Melbourne to marry Miss Powell at an unannounced date. A friend said today that Capt. Kingsford-Smith met Miss Powell on a steamship going to Australia and that it was love at first sight.

Train Kills Three Men In Michigan; One Is Hurt

They are believed to have been hoboes.

SOVIET PLANE ORDER CANCELED BY FIRM

"Disfavor" of U. S. State Department Calls Off Work on Bombers.

$2,000,000 DEAL IS LOST

Although the Army and the Navy, through official action of the joint Army-Navy board, found no objection to the shipment of a large order of American-built military planes to the Soviet government of Russia, word from the State Department that it "would look with disfavor" on such a transaction has caused the Glenn L. Martin Co., of Baltimore, to cancel a $2,000,000 airplane contract with the Soviet.

It was said at the White House that President Hoover had taken no part in the matter, and most certainly had not sought to prevent the contract from being carried out. At the State Department it was said one of the reasons for turning thumbs down on the deal was the fact that the United States has not recognized the Soviet government. It is probable, however, that the real reason was the fear that the fighting planes might be used in China hostilities, or even, in an eventuality, in the Indian outbreak.

The contract originated after the Soviet aviation commission, in a recent tour of the United States to study aircraft factories and landing fields, visited the Martin plant at Baltimore. The contract, which in addition to the building of twenty twin-motored bombing planes, called for training of Russian mechanics and engineers in the Martin plant and the erection of an aircraft factory in Russia, was accepted subject to approval of the Navy Department.

The Martin Co is under agreement with the Navy Department not to manufacture planes for a foreign government unless with approval of the Navy. This is because of the fact that the Martin Co. today manufacturers many of the Navy planes, fitted with special or secret combat devices.

When approval was sought of the contract Secretary of the Navy Adams referred the matter to the Joint Army-Navy Board, which passed it with a stamp of approval. The board, however, suggested that it might be wise to consult the State Department. This was done, with the resulting cancellation of the contract.

SUSPENDED

DOUGLAS DOSH.

Policeman Faces Brutality Charge

Douglas Dosh, of Bethesda Substation, Accused by War Veteran.

Montgomery County Policeman Douglas Dosh of the Bethesda substation was suspended from duty yesterday by the board of county commissioners following the filing of charges against him by a war veteran who claimed he had been beaten by the policeman while a prisoner. Should the charges be proven in police court, they declared, he will be summarily removed from the force.

Dosh was arrested yesterday when he appeared in police court at Rockville to press charges of disorderly conduct against Allen A. Stuart, a patient at Mount Alto Veterans' Bureau Hospital.

He is said by police to have raised considerable disturbance in the cell, shouting and rattling the steam pipes. Dosh, who was on duty in the station house, went downstairs to the cell to stop the disturbance. Dosh claims that the man seized him by the throat and attempted to choke him. The policeman claims he acted in self-defense.

KIDNAP SUSPECTS STRIKE COURT SNAG

Habeas Corpus Battle in Detroit Delayed and $800,000 Bonds Set.

EIGHT HELD, SIX SOUGHT

Detroit, June 17 (A.P.).—Local and State police continued their hunt for Detroit kidnapers tonight with eight alleged members of one gang booked on suspicion and information in their possession on which they were basing their search for six others.

Five of the suspects were balked in their efforts for release on habeas corpus writs today when they appeared before Circuit Judge Arthur Webster. The court adjourned their hearings for 48 hours on request of the prosecutor's office and fixed bonds totaling $800,000 for their release.

All but one were held for bond of $75,000. He was ordered held under bond of $25,000.

P. J. M. Halley, assisting prosecuting attorney, in requesting the postponement of the hearings, informed the court that he hoped to have warrants ready within forty-eight hours charging the suspects with abduction.

Capt. Fred Armstrong, of the State police, today revealed that the kidnap gang had carried off three wealthy Canadians and released them after collecting $75,000 ransom. These victims, he said, were Samuel Low, sales manager for the Carling Brewing Co., of London, Ont., who was forced to pay $25,000 ransom, and Maurice and Sydney Nathanson, operators of a Windsor, Ont., liquor dock, who are said to have been forced to pay $50,000 for their release. The Nathansons have denied that they had ever been kidnaped or forced to pay ransoms.

188 GET DIPLOMAS AT M'KINLEY HIGH

Dr. C. H. Marvin Urges Respect for Old-Fashioned Ideals in Address.

BALLOU DELIVERS TALK

Respect for the old-fashioned ideals and observance of the old-fashioned duties of citizens in contrast to some of the more modern and radical codes were urged by Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University, in the principal address at the graduation exercises of the McKinley High School last night.

Diplomas were awarded to 188 students—131 boys and 57 girls—at the conclusion of the ceremony. Parents, relatives and friends of the graduates crowded the school auditorium.

Dr. Abram Simon, of the Board of Education, presided, and Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, made a brief talk. The invocation was pronounced by the Rev. Simpson B Daugherty, pastor of the United Brethren Church. The interhigh school orchestra played.

Maurice Albert Tschantre delivered the salutatory and John Reder Shipman gave the valedictory. H. Dale Davis, vice principal, read a list of scholarships and honors which included the names of the following students who were graduated with distinction: The Misses Dorothy B. Baines, Margaret Ann Jones, Bertha Anna von Bernewitz, Eleanor M. Waite, Ada Livingston White, and Samuel W. Cochran, Augustus R. Glasgow, jr., David A. Hill, Henry A. Kroll, Robert E. Lines, James P. Marshall, Herbert F. Mitchell, jr., John R. Shipman, and Maurice A. Tschantre.

It was announced that Aubrey Spencer's name will be engraved on the Michigan Club honor trophy for distinction in leadership, scholastic work, character, and athletic attainment.

Miss Jessie Coope, vice principal, presented the following class to each member of which F. C. Daniel, principal, gave a diploma:

Teacher Denies Exploiting Talents of Violin Prodigy

Program of Difficult Concertos as Simple for Ruggiero Ricci as Swimming Is for Fish, She Says, in Habeas Corpus Case.

New York, June 17 (A.P.).—Playing a program of difficult concertos before an audience of thousands is as simple for Ruggiero Ricci, child violin prodigy, as swimming is for a fish, Miss Beth Lackey, guardian of the lad and his brother Giorgio, testified in Supreme Court today.

Her testimony was given in habeas corpus proceedings brought by the boy's father, Pietro Ricci, San Francisco bandmaster, who seeks to regain their guardianship on the grounds that she is trying to exploit Ruggiero by having him give ten concerts this fall and winter.

Leaning tensely forward, her hands clasped, Miss Lackey, who appears to be about 30, said Ruggiero felt no self-consciousness or embarrassment when playing in public. She quoted him as saying, after a concert last winter, "Gee, sister, won't it be grand when we do this often?"

She said that although she had received numerous offers for the boy violinist to make tours of Europe, South America, the United States and the West Indies and to make a sound picture, she had "no intention of taking him abroad."

She had decided, she said, after consultation with Louis Persinger, the boy's violin instructor, to confine Ruggiero's public appearances this year to the ten concerts scheduled.

Miss Lackey said that since the withdrawal of the financial support of Frederick H. Bartlett, of Chicago, a director of the Sinclair Oil Co., she had met all expenses of the six-room apartment where she and the boys now live with money she earned as a violin teacher. She said she had never received any remuneration for her services from Mr. Bartlett or his wife, the funds which they contributed being devoted entirely to the boys.

The net proceeds from two of the three concerts which Ruggiero gave last winter had been placed in the bank, she said, and no part of them had been converted to her own use. The third concert was a courtesy performance for which he received no pay.

Miss Lackey will take the stand again tomorrow for cross-examination by Former Attorney General Carl Sherman, counsel for Pietro Ricci.

16 Inter-Family Slayings Bring Page County Survey

Special to The Washington Post.

Luray, Va., June 17.—Local criminologists and sociologists are making a survey of past crime conditions to ascertain the cause for the many interfamily murders in Page County.

The situation has been emphasized by the killing six days ago of Fred Cubbage, 19, by his grandfather, Jacob Cubbage, 80. Various reasons are given for sixteen of the twenty-four cases in this county in which the slayer and slain were relatives.

Former lax marriage laws which allowed cousins and sometimes those more closely related to marry are held responsible for many of the tragedies. These marriage laws in recent years have been changed, but their effect is still in evidence. The sixteen local interfamily slayings in recent years are: T. H. Brown, who shot and killed his son, William Brown; C. L. Fox, who shot and killed his wife, Mrs. Maggie Fox. Before this Fox is alleged to have killed his father, William Fox. After this C. L. Fo shot and killed himself. Prior to this Simpson Cubbage choked his wife to death.

Following this case Newton Kibler shot and killed his uncle, Willis Kibler. In a short time after the Kibler-Kibler slaying, L. G. Rufner shot and killed his uncle, Isaac Rufner. In turn followed the killing of Mark Walker by his father-in-law, J. D. Rufner, father of L. G. Rufner, who had slain his uncle. In rapid succession came the slaying of Noah Fox by his son-in-law, G. D. Riley. Shortly after this Thomas Campbell was stabbed to death by his cousin, Amos Campbell. Following this tragedy came the killing of Edward Nauman by his relative, Virgil Stoneberger, preceded by the killing of Mrs. Sudie Ryberg by her husband, Henry Ryberg. Succeeding the Ryberg-Ryberg murder was that of Houck Breeden by his cousin, Herbert Breeden.

The other eight recorded slayings in this county were those in which slayers and slain were not relatives. Only one of the 24 slayers suffered capital punishment.

Little Book Star Witness In Trial of 42 'Rum Rebels'

Coeur D'Alene, Idaho, June 17 (A.P.).—A little book in which L. L. Leighty, city clerk of Wallace, Idaho, testified a record of collections of fines regularly assessed against liquor dealers were kept, was introduced as evidence here today in the trial of 42 "rum rebels," charged by the Government with violation of prohibition laws.

Defendants, who include numerous city officials, Mayor Herman J. Rossi, W. D. Herrick, a former mayor, and R. E. Weniger, former sheriff, went on trial in Federal Court yesterday.

A big book, the regular police court docket, also was introduced as evidence Leighty said the little book was placed into service after Mr. Herrick, then mayor, told him "not to keep the record of illicit collections in the city's official volume."

The clerk said it was customary, as a means of keeping the treasury filled, for Chief of Police W. J. Bailey to bring a fake charge against owners of questionable resorts and to make the record show they had pleaded guilty to overparking or disorderly conduct, and that fines were then assessed.

There is no allegation of personal graft in the Government charges, it being contended the funds were used for the city which needed the money."

PROTECTION ASKED FOR CITY BUILDERS

Buy-in-Washington Council Wants Clause Inserted in District Bill.

TO CORRECT WAGE EVILS

The Buy-in-Washington Council yesterday adopted a resolution asking Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, chairman of the Senate District committee, to insert in the District appropriations bill a clause that would provide that all proposals for estimates on District projects should insist that bids be made on the basis of the scale of wages paid mechanics and laborers in Washington.

Local contractors have complained to the council that they are frequently confronted with out-of-town builders who underbid them on Federal jobs in Washington because they import laborers and pay them a considerably lower scale of wages.

The council has been instrumental in obtaining for Washington contractors since its organization six weeks ago approximately $1,600,000 worth of business that has ordinarily gone to outside concerns, it was learned at the weekly luncheon in the Press Club.

The wage clause was asked in a report submitted by a committee composed of John B. Colpoys, E. J. Murphy, E. A. Rule and Luther C. Steward.

Dry Agent in Oklahoma Is Acquitted of Slaying

Guthrie, Okla., June 17 (A.P.).—W. W. (Snake) Thomason, veteran prohibition enforcement agent, was acquitted today by a Federal court jury of a murder charge arising from the slaying last July 4 of James Harris and Oscar Lowery, during a liquor raid on the Harris tenant farm home near Tecumseh, Okla. The jury was out less than 10 minutes. Introduction of evidence was brief.

Judge Edgar S. Vaught, presiding, pointed out that the testimony did not indicate Thomason participated in the actual shooting of Harris and Lowery. The judge said in his opinion the evidence was insufficient to warrant conviction.

Official Gets 10 Years For Theft of $605,000

St. Louis, June 17 (A.P.).—Frank L. Berryhill, former sales manager and a director of the First National Co., investment subsidiary of the First National Bank, today pleaded guilty to embezzlement and was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment by Circuit Judge Taylor. Company auditors announced in court the total of his peculations was $605,000.

Speculation in the stock market was given as the cause of Berryhill's defalcations. His loss was reported to have included $250,000 of his own savings in addition to $605,000 in securities which he induced customers to leave with him. Berryhill surrendered yesterday after two weeks' disappearance.

If you desire a clear skin you must keep your blood in good condition.

Skin troubles and sallow complexion speak of body weakness — a deficiency in the red-blood-cells.

A lovely, clear skin is within your reach

S.S.S.

WITH the last blemish gone, confidence returns. More friends, more invitations—more good times. With the joy and pride of possessing a clear skin, self-respect increases.

First impressions cannot be good without a clear skin—first impressions are quickly made and are not soon forgotten. Old friends may excuse pimples and secretly sympathize, but new acquaintances may not be so charitable. Skin blemishes are not inviting. Neither can they be covered up. They embarrass. Hold people back. Steal away joy and happiness.

A lovely, clear skin is within the reach of all. To you who have lost it, hope is offered, that you, too, may have a beautiful skin, rose-petal in texture, pretty as a picture and without a single pimple.

Skilled physicians recognize the appearance of skin eruptions as being an indication that the body's power of resistance is low.

The natural way to remedy this condition is to restore the red-blood-cells to normal.

This is why so many thousands have been enabled to free themselves of these unsightly blemishes and painful skin annoyances by taking a course of S.S.S.

In a hostess it's Graciousness

in a cigarette it's Taste

THE SUCCESS OF A HOSTESS depends upon her ability to make others feel at home; that of a cigarette, upon better taste.

HOW ELSE EXPLAIN Chesterfield's constant gains, its ever-mounting popularity with smokers everywhere?

THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE for the delicate mildness and rich aroma that belong to Chesterfield, nor for Chesterfield's unique blend and cross-blend. "In a cigarette it's TASTE!" Yes, and in a Chesterfield, it's . . . "TASTE above everything".

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield cigarettes are of finer quality and hence of better taste than in any other cigarette at the price.

TARIFF AND MARKETS.

Monday's stock market collapse, because it followed on the heels of the President's announcement that he would sign the tariff bill, was attributed in some quarters to that fact. Yesterday, however, the market firmed. If the break came as a result of the announcement that the tariff was to become law, then the recovery should be attributed to the fact that upon sober consideration business and industry concluded that they stood to benefit from the new tariff. It is significant that it was the opposition to the tariff measure that insisted upon linking the market flurry with the President's statement.

If prospective approval of the tariff had anything whatsoever to do with the market flurry—and this, in view of other influences at work, may be doubted—it is because of the thoroughly reprehensible effort certain interests have made to turn the tariff bill to political or selfish commercial advantage. Importers, of course, do not look with pleasure upon tariff increases, and in New York, particularly, importers exert considerable influence. The Democratic party is casting about for a campaign issue that will weld together its inharmonious elements and conceal its internal troubles, and it hopes that it can win by attacking the tariff.

The new tariff is designed to help all Americans. It is drawn to speed the wheels in American factories and its beneficent effect will be felt by all business and industry. It will react to the advantage of Democrats and Republicans, resulting in greater prosperity for all the American people, and because it will make the wheels of industry spin, in the long run it will have a favorable effect on the prices of securities. The new tariff will not raise commodity prices. By freeing American industry from the bogey of foreign competition, it will enable American industrialists to concentrate their attention upon the main task in hand, which is to develop their processes and improve their product until it is superior to and cheaper than the competitive foreign article that is kept off the market by the tariff.

American exports are not affected by the tariff. With all the agitation regarding threatened "reprisals" by foreign governments, no reprisals have been made. Foreign buyers take American goods because their customers demand them. No foreign dealer in American-made wares can afford to turn his business over to some rival in order to join in "reprisals" against the United States tariff.

BALTIMORE'S SANITARY CRUSADE.

Baltimore is awakening to the fact that some of the stall keepers in her markets are neglectful of sanitary conditions. Several merchants have been cited to show cause why they should not be fined or imprisoned for failing to obey the ordinances. This sudden energy on the part of the authorities may be due to the fact that the association of dealers in one of the markets, disgusted with the lax methods of some of their associates, recently petitioned the city fathers to get after the delinquents.

Fifteen or more years ago a determined campaign was made in Washington to protect the food supply of the inhabitants. Agents of the Health Department visited restaurants, markets, stores and all other places where food was exposed for sale, and many dealers were fined for failure to observe ordinary sanitary precautions. One of the "reforms" brought about through that campaign for clean food was the order to wholesale dealers, in meats particularly, to cover their supplies with canvas, nets, or other protective material when sending from the warehouse, or cold storage plant, to the retailer. For some weeks, or perhaps months, this order was rigidly observed. But the authorities grew lax in their vigilance and the dealers grew careless, so that today it is common to see a truckload of beef or mutton carted through the streets of Washington with no other cover than the blue sky. The awakening of Baltimore to the necessity for enforcing sanitary handling of food supplies should attract the attention of the health authorities of the Capital, so that the rules for the protection of foods against contamination may again be promulgated—and enforced.

THE TREATY MAKING POWER.

Addressing the graduating class of Juniata College during the commencement exercises at that institution recently, Henry P. Fletcher, former Ambassador to Italy, took occasion to suggest to his hearers that they consider whether or not it would be advisable to amend the rules and regulations of Congress so as to provide for the participation of members of the Cabinet in the debates. No amendment to the Constitution would be necessary to assure the participation of these officials in the deliberations of either the House or Senate.

Mr. Fletcher sees in the growing custom of appointing senators on diplomatic commissions, such as that which recently negotiated the naval treaty, a recognition of the necessity for something like participation on the part of the President's official family in the consideration of such measures in the Senate. Like other men who have held diplomatic positions, the former ambassador appears to think that a treaty is more or less sacred and should not be subject to emasculation or amendment in the Senate without giving the Secretary of State, who is the medium of negotiation between foreign governments and their representatives, on the one hand, and the United States on the other, full opportunity to appear on the floor of the Senate to defend the action of his department in the framing of the agreement.

"You might profitably stop to consider in this connection the treaty making or rather treaty-marring power of the Senate," said Mr. Fletcher. Then he spoke of the interest which the States had in treaty making, when most of such conventions had to do with the relationship between the Federal government and the Indian tribes. "State interests were more individualistic then, but in the course of 150 years these individual interests of States, as States, in our foreign affairs have almost entirely disappeared."

Mr. Fletcher called attention to the fact that instead of inviting the Secretary of State to explain a treaty on the floor of the Senate he is admitted only to the committee on foreign relations, and not always is he invited even thus far. The treaty making power, said Mr. Fletcher, is given in effect to 33 "supermen" who happen to be senators, "but who are not, in any single case, elected because of their special knowledge of or interest in foreign affairs."

This arrangement strikes Mr. Fletcher as a negation of democracy. But it may be argued that the makers of the Constitution were not trying to set up a democracy. Perhaps they thought that democracy had been allowed all that was safe to grant in other parts of the Constitution.

SCHOOL VACATION.

The ring of the school bell this morning will be answered by light-hearted youngsters, happy in the knowledge that its doleful note will not again be heard until next September. There will be a heartache or two when the report cards are handed out and recipients are informed that they failed to "pass," but of the 74,500 pupils who today put away their books and pencils the majority will be promoted to the next higher grade. More than 12,000 students will begin their vacations this week from the high schools. Some 50,000 will be released from the grade schools, and more than 10,000 from the junior high schools.

Washington's child population will be more in evidence in the streets now that school is out. Washington motorists should take into consideration this fact and resolve to drive carefully so that the school vacation shall not be marked by tragedy.

ETHAN ALLEN'S PORTRAIT.

Incredible as it may appear, an exhaustive, three-year search by John Pell, new associate editor of the North American Review and biographer of Col. Ethan Allen, has failed to disclose any authentic portrait of the hero of Ticonderoga. Even the statues in the United States Capitol and the Vermont State House are not authentic, having been posed by Allen's nephew. It is believed, however, that several portraits of Allen were made by the journeymen painters who went from door to door with canvases on which the body had already been painted and which awaited only the head. As such pictures were done by Copley of Allen's wife and her mother, and of his brother Ira, as well as of many of his friends and associates, it is unlikely that the man who, according to his latest biographer, was "an astute publicity man, particularly fond of making an impression, of wearing bright uniforms, and of saying and doing dashing things," should fail to have one done of himself. Mr. Pell hopes that at least one contemporary portrait can be unearthed of the hero of Vermont and for that purpose offers a reward to any one making the discovery. The picture would be included in the collection of relics treasured in the Fort Ticonderoga Museum.

A CANNIBAL PLANT.

A cannibal plant has been discovered in the desert hills of southeastern California by the scientists of the Bureau of Plant Industry, which, notwithstanding its cannibalistic instincts, is of great value as human food. One of the local names of this latest addition to the known flora of this country is "sand root," because it lives and thrives in the sandy soil of the desert lands of Mexico and California, where the rainfall seldom exceeds 4 inches a year. But such a plebeian name as "sand root" would never suit botanists, so they have dubbed it "Ammobroma."

Ammobroma sponges for its sustenance upon "a small desert shrub" which it saps without the slightest compunction, and without which it could not live, according to Messrs. Thackeray and Gilman, of the Department of Agriculture. But it can be said for this peculiar specimen of plant life that it pays its board, in a measure, by supplying its host, or boarding-house keeper, with water, "in exchange for predigested nourishment." The host does not appear to lose anything through its generous, if involuntary, entertainment. This is perhaps due to the fact that Ammobroma does its growing largely under ground. It penetrates from three to five feet into the soil and makes its appearance above ground only in the display of a small bunch of sand-colored flowers.

The Papago Indians live entirely upon Ammobroma when other food is scarce or unobtainable, and now the Department of Agriculture proposes to experiment with its general cultivation and to find means for teaching the Papagoes how to dry and otherwise preserve it for use when other food is scarce.

THE CRUISER QUESTION

By Capt. DUDLEY W. KNOX, U. S. N., Retired,
In an Address Yesterday in New York.

The American Navy was brought into existence for the declared purpose of protecting American trade. Such has been its traditional primary function with few lapses when our ocean-going trade had dwindled to small proportions. Now that the value of our fast growing seaborne commerce has become practically equal to that of the British Empire, and every year substantially matches the amount of our national debt, we can not afford to overlook the basic fact that the primary function of a navy is commerce protection.

You gentlemen may be able to estimate the effect upon our economic life which would result from the stoppage of the $15,000,000,000 business which we do every year on the sea. I feel that the present acute business depression would be as nothing in comparison.

At the Geneva conference of 1927 the British first advanced the theory of splitting the cruiser allowances into two kinds of ships; severely restricting the number of the larger type carrying 8-inch guns and leaving a liberal quota of the smaller type armed with 6-inch guns. The American objection to this, which was strongly voiced by our delegation, was that the effect of such a change in the accepted method of limitation would not be equitable to the United States, especially in the matter of trade protection. This is a fact which is easily demonstrated, and a principle which we abandoned more recently at London.

It is well known that Great Britain has a relatively large number of big merchant liners, capable of ready conversion into valuable auxiliary cruisers mounting 6-inch guns and carrying a good quota of airplanes. They would be exceedingly useful in raiding commerce, and, obviously, the smaller and weaker the regular cruiser sent against them the more effective will be the merchant liner. While a regular cruiser mounting 6-inch guns might normally be capable of dealing with a merchant liner, she could scarcely succeed if confronted with several merchant liners. On the other hand a regular cruiser mounting 8-inch guns need not fear several merchant liners, and in justice we should have the option of building all our cruisers of the 8-inch type to meet this merchant liner menace.

The nearness of bases to an operating area has an important bearing upon the per cent of the total force which can be kept at the front. Thus bases are in an important sense an equivalent of ships and of power which can be exerted on the sea.

Let us take a simple example which will clarify the principle. A 10,000-ton cruiser can steam about 15,000 miles at economical speed. Suppose such a cruiser had to protect American trade in the China Sea from a base no nearer than Honolulu. Two-thirds of the cruiser's fuel would be consumed in going to and returning from the China Sea, where she could consequently spend only one-third of her total time.

In comparison with this a British or Japanese cruiser, operating from a base at Singapore or Nagasaki, could spend four-fifths of her time protecting commerce in the China Sea. Their marked advantage over us would be entirely due to the much greater nearness of their base.

This question of commerce protection goes to the heart of the treaty. Admiral Yarnell, one of the American technical advisers at London, and a strong supporter of the treaty, recently testified before the Senate committee on foreign relations that in the event of war between this country and Great Britain, neither one of the two main fleets would be likely to cross the Atlantic Ocean. This probability follows from the fact that neither fleet could operate at full strength so far from home, and hence by crossing the ocean would probably suffer defeat. Thus the war would automatically resolve itself into one against trade on both sides.

We have the reiterated and unmistakable testimony of Admiral Pratt, the chief naval adviser at London, that for us the treaty is predicated exclusively upon fleet combat strength alone, and without considering the protection of trade routes.

Thus we have a treaty which reverses the traditional American commerce protection principle, which we had maintained virtually from the origin of the Navy up to the Geneva conference of 1927. On the other hand Britain gets a treaty which perpetuates the commerce protection policy that she has vigorously upheld for more than a century. Under the treaty we are to have a Navy designed primarily for fleet combat strength, when a fleet combat is scarcely probable, and a Navy not properly balanced or designed for trade protection, when that is by far the most probable use to which the Navy will be put. This is in the face of an era of great expansion of American oceanborne trade, whose proportions have already reached the first magnitude.

San Francisco Chronicle: Ruth Hanna McCormick, of Illinois, suggests that we substitute the term "public service" for politics, the latter having fallen into some disrepute. BRAVERY.

Old Blithe of Heart and Twinkling Eye can dance their way along
And every carefree troubadour can sing a merry song;
But I am for that braver man with shoulders burdened down,
Who keeps a grin upon his face when most of us would frown.

It takes no grit when sheltered well to laugh about the storm,
The flabby souls can merry be where all is snug and warm,
But I am for that rarer man who suffers from the cold
And still has strength enough to smile and keep his woes untold.

Oh, most of us are quick to cry and quick to call for aid,
By most of us the frowns of woe too swiftly are displayed,
But I am for that stronger man who wears his trouble well
And hides the petty frets and cares that most of us would tell.

Yes, I am for that braver soul who carries care about
But locks it in a manly breast and never lets it out,
The man with courage for his task and patience for his pain
Who still can smile and still can sing when many would complain.

Where Nature Provides Broad Leaves, There You Find Things That Need Shade.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

Go where you will—to the mountains, the seashore, the desert or the rolling prairie—you find the work of Nature has dignity, grace and beauty of line.

Do you think this beauty accidental and meaningless?

Everywhere you find pleasant odors—the delicate scent of flowers, the fragrance of trees, the wholesome smell of earth.

And everywhere you hear pleasant sounds—the ripple and splash of water, the song of birds, the majestic rumble of thunder.

Do you wonder why?

There is a "scientific" explanation—which means a truthful and logical explanation.

The sky is blue and grass is green because these colors are more pleasing and restful than others.

And when any quality or trait appears consistently in the works of Nature, it appears because it is essential to the wellbeing of Nature's creatures.

As sunshine and rain are necessary to the physical welfare of man, so beauty is necessary to the normal development and continued good of his mind and spirit.

If that is true, and the truth of it is so obvious that it isn't debatable, here is another particular in which man proves himself his own worst enemy.

For man destroys beauty and makes ugliness, and his centers of culture are uniformly hideous and full of offensive sounds and smells.

Never doubt that he pays for his sins.

His crimes against Nature and against his fellows, and all of his petty meannesses and his miseries are due in large measure to the environment he has created for himself.

Do you think two children will develop into adults of equal strength of character, equal capacity for the enjoyment of life, equal poise and compassion and tolerance, if one is reared in an atmosphere of beauty and the other is surrounded by ugliness?

You know they will not.

Beauty is an attribute and an inspiration of decency.

The man who builds an ugly house injures his neighbors no less than the man who is responsible for hideous noises or offensive odors.

And when men learn the truth, the perpetrator of ugliness will be suppressed as a nuisance—as hurtful noises and odors now are suppressed.

Man is not mere meat, but a soul; and to rob him of the beauty that Nature provides as fodder for his soul is to make him a brute.

A FEW MORE HONORARY DEGREES.

Dooplebaum, Theophilus P., elevator operator extraordinary: To you, Mr. Dooplebaum, we award, with a high sense of public service, the degree of master of throttles, for your distinguished conduct in announcing in a clear voice, before closing the gates, that your elevator made no stops below the eighteenth floor, and for never registering pleasure at the spectacle of a trapped passenger who wanted to get off at the fifth story.

* * * *

Krazzel, Hugo M., athlete, bag puncher and heavyweight pugilist: We are glad to bestow upon you the degree of doctor of unprecedented candor, with extra ribbons attached. Although a prominent boxer engaged in many championship bouts, you achieved a distinctly different place in history by stating, when asked for a last minute statement: "I haven't any idea how I am going to fight tonight. My opponent is as good a man as I am. Luck will have a lot to do with the outcome. If I win I expect to get all I can out of the championship through vaudeville engagements, &c., and will not fight a dangerous man again for five years."

Mr. Krazzel, you command our deepest respect.

* * * *

Zipper, Elwood H., business man unusual: Words can not convey the pleasure we feel in awarding you your choice of any six degrees in the showcase. During the past eight months you have furnished America with an outstanding lesson in originality of thought and novelty of expression. Repeatedly asked since last October "How is business?" you have courageously departed from the conventions and replied, "I have no reason to complain. In view of all the money I made during the past six boom years I would be a piker to squawk because pickings have been somewhat leaner in the past few months."

You deserve, Mr. Zipper, the acclaim of the country.

Bunce, Mrs. Lydia Tippets, wife, mother and housekeeper unique and extraordinary: Mrs. Bunce, the finest degree we have in the house would be inadequate as a badge of merit. You stand head and shoulders above all women of this fair land through the accomplishment of what had come to be considered an impossible achievement. You have kept a bathroom medicine cabinet in such order and so free of superfluous bottles that anybody could locate a desired lotion, ointment or pill without shouting for assistance. It is further to your credit that the eye-cup was always on the same shelf and that you never made a practice of putting old razor blades in the tin box marked "Headache Powders."

BASEBALL NOTE.

Secretary of the Navy Adams has refused to name a new cruiser after Brooklyn. On the ground, perhaps, that it is best to wait to see what she does in the world's series.

But he might have compromised and named it after Bissonnette, or Babe Herman.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Historic Hagner House, at 1812 H Street Northwest, Finally Disappears.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There has recently been demolished in your city a house which had an unusual history. No. 1812 H street northwest was unique, I think, in having a third story added to its original plan of two by an act of Congress, in recognition of the great services rendered the Government by its owner, Hon. Peter Hagner. It was built about 1825.

Mr. Hagner was born in Philadelphia on October 1, 1772. In 1792 he received from President Washington the appointment of accountant of war, removed to Washington with the Government, and in 1807 was appointed by President Monroe, third auditor of the Treasury Department and continued to serve in this office under every President from Washington to Taylor, giving fifty-six years to the service of his country.

The house was the scene of a tea-party given to Mrs. Madison. Peter Hagner was one of the founders of historic St. John's Church, senior warden and vestryman. For many years a Hagner served in these capacities. Seven sons and three daughters grew to manhood and womanhood in this house. The eldest was Capt. Charles Nicholas Hagner, U. S. Topographical Survey; Maj. John Randall Hagner, Army Pay Corps; Thomas Holme Hagner, eminent lawyer, of Florida; Richard Henry Hagner, lawyer, and Dr. Daniel Randall Hagner, of Washington.

Two sons returned to Washington to live and purchased a part of their father's original property—Gen. Peter Valentine Hagner, three times brevetted in our wars with Mexico, and Justice Alexander Burton Hagner, whose record of over 24 years in the Supreme Court of the District, is one of unexampled brilliancy. Two of his decisions are of special interest—the famous Potomac flats case, and the opinion determining the southern boundary of the District of Columbia. His decision was affirmed by the Supreme Court of the United States.

Houses a hundred years old will soon be unknown in this new Washington, and it is a matter of deep regret to a few to see them go.

FRANCES NELSON WORTHINGTON.

Reprisals and Boycotts by Foreign Countries or Industries Would Cost Them Dearly.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The first reprisal against the new American tariff, reports an astute and reliable American newspaperman writing from Paris, is involved in an agreement reached among British, Belgian and German copper interests to withdraw large purchases of copper and non-ferrous metals from the United States and place them elsewhere. What is about to be done in copper, he adds, can be done with reference to cotton, oils, grain and other raw materials with even greater facility. But how long can a boycott against American products last?

The world does not buy American products for sentimental reasons. There is not a nation that would not, if it could, topple Uncle Sam from his high perch to grab for itself some of his trade and some of his prosperity. The nations buy from the United States because they can obtain better bargains in the American market. They buy finished products because they are better made, better adapted to the requirements of their peoples and, all factors considered, cheaper. They buy copper, oil, cotton and other materials because their quality is superior and their cost is less.

Suppose Britain, Belgium and Germany boycott American copper? France, Italy and other countries will continue to use American metal, and, because of lesser cost and superior quality of the raw material they will be in a position to undersell the firms in counties bound by the boycott. As a result, economic forces will be put into motion that will lead inevitably to the breakdown of the boycott.

Every time the American tariff has been adjusted there has been talk of reprisals. The position of world leadership America holds today proves that there have been no effective reprisals. Because trade is ruled by economic law and not by sentiment there can be no reprisals.

Senate Naval Treaty Should Be Judged by Its Own Terms, Not by Outside Papers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "Federalist," in his letter appearing in The Post on the 14th, states that he has tried but failed to understand why the President has given his approval of secrecy on documents requested by the foreign relations committee of the Senate. It is perfectly evident that "Federalist" is not in favor of the naval treaty, just as it is equally evident that certain senators who have demanded this correspondence are not in favor of it.

It is perfectly clear to every high school boy and girl that the treaty document itself is what the Senate is supposed to consider, just as in the case of any other contract; and it is upon this contract that the Senate should accept or reject it. What might or might not have been said in any discussions prior to the drawing up of the treaty contract has no more bearing on the document in its finally accepted form than the Declaration of Independence has to do with what I should eat for dinner. "Federalist" must know this, just as every member of the Senate knows it.

The only excuse certain members of the Senate have for asking for the correspondence preceding the treaty conference was the hope that it might reveal something to support their objections to the treaty, although they well know that it has absolutely nothing to do with the document as written and presented to the Senate. All contracts are interpreted on the basis of the language contained in the contract itself. This is so simple and of such long recognition that no one should be led astray when the President is called upon to furnish Congress with something that has no bearing whatever on the merits of the document under consideration.

CENSUS FIELD WORK NEARS COMPLETION

Next Task Is to Decide Upon Newest Congressional Reapportionments.

PLAN BASIC BULLETIN

(Associated Press.)

With field work on the census nearing completion and supervisors offices rapidly being closed out, the next big job for the Census Bureau is compilation of the basic bulletin on which congressional reapportionment will be figured.

Census Director William M. Steuart yesterday described the prodigious task which must be done by December, so that each member of Congress may have his or her own handbook of the census to study while the legislation is in process.

This first 1930 census publication, he explained, will show the population by States, by counties and by cities, towns, boroughs and other political subdivisions. It will be recapitulation and verification of all announcements made in the field by supervisors.

65,534 Announcements Made.

A total of 64,534 such announcements already have been made, the director said. Each carried the phrase, "Subject to revision," no idle statement when applied by the scientifically accurate Census Bureau.

Each enumerator's portfolio—73,533 of them have already been received—is being carefully scrutinized and meticulously checked to see that the computations are correct, that the descriptions conform with the boundary lines.

This is called the "hand count," because it does not call for use of the highly specialized computing and coding machines, which have been developed by the bureau. Two hundred people are now engaged in this "hand count."

Compilations are Complicated.

Their compilations have been greatly complicated by a "last call" for enumeration, which is likely to cause changes in many census totals announced in the field.

"To make our figures as nearly accurate as is humanly possible and to insure a reapportionment fair to all, we have had our supervisors ask all individuals not enumerated to advise them of the fact," said Mr. Steuart.

"Thousands of schedules are being received from those who think they were not enumerated. In some cases these arrived in time for the supervisors to make revisions in their own offices, but a large majority of them are being checked here in Washington."

Cost of Production Sought.

Meanwhile, Senator Borah (Republican Independent), Idaho, who voted against the bill, introduced a resolution to direct the tariff commission to investigate the differences in cost of production in this country and abroad of a variety of articles. He enumerated men's and women's shoes, furniture, cement, hose, shovels, spades, scoops, forks, rakes, scythes, sickles, grasshooks, corn knives and drainage tools.

Introduction of this resolution and a number of proposals for changes, which have been offered in the House, brought from one of the tariff leaders the remark that Congress already was faced with a "young tariff bill."

Little hope was held for action at this session upon those before the House, although it had been thought at one time that a proposal would be considered to increase the new rate of 2.12 cents a pound on Cuban refined sugar. It was said yesterday that this matter would not be pressed.

There was a crackling of tariff discussion in both the House and the Senate during the day.

Farm Relief Attacked.

Charging that the tariff act would hamstring the farm board by making the disposition of farm surpluses more difficult, Representative Nelson (Democrat), Missouri, launched an attack in the House against the accomplishments of the administration in farm relief.

Mr. Nelson contended that in setting up "the highest tariff wall in history," the United States was creating ill will and resentment that would undo the work of agencies seeking world peace.

In the Senate, the decline of the stock market and the tariff were joined as a subject of debate between Senators Smoot and George (Democrat), Georgia.

Mr. Smoot said that whether or not the bill had been passed, the market speculation would continue.

"The lambs are being frozen out but the stock market will recover," he said.

Senator George contended that if the export debenture plan had remained in the bill there would have been no short selling of agricultural commodities.

Legge Confirmed For Farm Board

Senator McKellar Is Only Member to Oppose Chairman's Naming.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate yesterday confirmed the nomination of Alexander Legge for reappointment as chairman of the Farm Board. Mr. Legge was approved by the Senate without a record vote and after brief discussion.

The Senate also confirmed nomination of Charles C. Teague, of California, for reappointment on the Farm Board, representing the fruit and vegetable industry.

Senator McKellar (Democrat), of Tenn., voiced opposition to Mr. Legge, declaring "I regard him as wholly unfit for his post." With a chorus of ayes the Senate then approved the Farm Board chairman, Mr. McKellar alone voiced a "no" on the viva voce vote. Messrs. Legge and Teague were reappointed for six-year terms.

UNREST DIMINISHING IN INDIA, IS BELIEF

Official Statement Avers That Opposition From Natives Is Doomed.

AIR ATTACKS EFFECTIVE

Bombay, India, June 17 (A.P.).—An official statement covering the Indian situation for last week, issued tonight, indicates that the government believes the unrest caused by the nationalist campaign is diminishing.

"There are signs in some parts of the country," says the documents, "that although members of the congress are in no way relaxing their efforts, misgivings have increased regarding their aims and methods among many who were at first inclined to view the civil disobedience movement with toleration, if not with approval.

"Active opposition on the part of those who frankly disapprove of it is steadily increasing with the belief that it is doomed to failure."

The statement declares aerial operations have been successful in driving back individual forces of wild tribesmen on the northwest frontier, but admits that there is no material change regarding general unrest in the Peshawar area. This frontier area has been unsettled for a long time.

The government announced that propaganda was being actively spread among frontier tribesmen, one method being dispatch among tribes of "emissaries carrying baskets full of bloodstained clothing (in some cases procured with assistance of local butchers) and other tokens of alleged wholesale massacre."

Mrs. George Will Live in Washington

Daughter of Mr. Curtis to Spend Summer in Bay State.

By JEAN ELIOT.

ALTHOUGH Mrs. Charles P. George's proposed visit to her father, Vice President Curtis, will be of brief duration, next winter will see the Vice President's daughter established in Washington. For Maj. George, now on duty at Fort Sill, has been ordered to Fort Myer and will come to his new station in September, his family joining him there after spending the summer at Siasconset, Nantucket Island, Mass.

Mrs. George and her two children, Anne and Curtis, were due in Washington yesterday to stay with Vice President Curtis and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Everett Gann for a few days, but their departure from Fort Sill was delayed by floods and they will not reach town until this morning. They will be here only until Friday and will then go on to Siasconset, where they have a cottage for the summer.

Vice President Curtis and Mr. and Mrs. Gann are lingering on at the Mayflower, their vacation plans being still nebulous and dependent upon how long the extra session of the Senate keeps the Vice President in town. They hope to spend at least a few weeks at Mr. and Mrs. Gann's pleasant home in Cleveland Park, but if they decide to go away will probably put this off until after their return.

However, with summer suddenly upon us, discussion of holiday making is in order; and, although most of the Cabinet members are remaining in town for the present, several of the "Cabinet wives" are slipping away. Mrs. Mitchell, wife of the Attorney General, and Mrs. Davis, wife of the Secretary of Labor, are in the vanguard. After motoring to Williamstown, Mass., to be with Attorney General Mitchell when he received an honorary degree from Williams College, Mrs. Mitchell has started for her home in Minnesota to remain several weeks, but she is planning to return to Washington the middle of July. Mrs. Davis and all the little Davises went yesterday to Ventnor, N. J., where she has taken a cottage for the summer. Secretary Davis will spend as much time with her as he can, but it is not likely that he will have much vacation with his campaign activities in Pennsylvania to supplement his duties at the Labor Department.

Mrs. Lamont, wife of the Secretary of Commerce, expects to start late this week for her home at Lake Forest, Ill., where she will spend most of the summer. Miss Gertrude Lamont will join her mother there after attending the boat races at New London on Saturday. Miss Lamont spent June Week in Annapolis and more recently went to West Point for the commencement festivities. Miss Caroline Hyde, daughter of the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Hyde, also attended the gayeties at the Military Academy and the Naval Academy—but that's another story.

The date of Mrs. Adams' departure is somewhat dependant upon how she is feeling, as she has long been ill, but she expects to leave shortly for Massachusetts. In addition to their residence in Boston, the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Adams have a summer home at Minto, Mass., and a place at Concord, where they usually spend the autumn months.

The Secretary of State and Mrs. Stimson are lingering at Woodley, a charming place in summer, and the Secretary of War and Mrs. Hurley are making no summer plans for the moment. Secretary Mellon, of the Treasury will probably go abroad in the late summer, as is his custom, and presumably at some time in the summer the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Hyde will visit their home in Missouri and the Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Wilbur will go to California for a few weeks.

Miss Marjorie Mondell entertained a company last evening in compliment to Miss Alice Huston and her fiance, Mr. Fulton Lewis.

Guests also included Miss Catherine Huston, Miss Mildred Huston, Mrs. Warren Hendricksen, Mrs. James Knox Cockrill, Miss Virginia Harris, Miss Elizabeth Woodward, of Trenton, N. Capital Judge To Go to Peru As Delegate

Miss Sellers Appointed Special Envoy to Child Parley.

With the appointment of Judge Kathryn Sellers, of the Juvenile Court, as special delegate from the State Department to the sixth Pan-American Child Congress in Lima, Peru, from July 4 to 11, comes further proof of the ever widening channel of interest in each other's progress displayed among lands of the Western World. Also representing Federal departments at the congress will be Miss Katherine Lenroot, daughter of Judge Irvine L. Lenroot, of the United States Court of Customs and Patent Appeals.

Miss Lenroot will represent the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor, which, with the Public Health Service, will name several other delegates to Lima. They will leave Washington within ten days, joining delegates in New York from various parts of the country.

The appointment of Judge Sellers to the important mission represents distinct recognition from the State Department of her outstanding work in the Juvenile Court, which has covered a period of years marked by success in the phases of endeavor which works in conjunction with the Children's Bureau. As assistant chief of the Children's Bureau Miss Lenroot is listed in the Congressional Directory, thus following the footsteps of her distinguished father.

Although primary representation at the congress will be from the Children's Bureau and from the Public Health Service official appointments come from the State Department which, in this instance, exercised its elastic powers resulting in the appointment of Judge Sellers as special emissary.

CANNON FLAYED IN SPEECH AS HOUSE MEMBERS CHEER

lotted time, did any one arise to defend him.

The House had ample warning of what was coming off, too. The speech had been well advertised.

It was a far cry, indeed, from the time when the bishop could control that House.

Mr. Tinkham recounted the situation. Bishop Cannon was given $65,300 by Mr. Jameson for his anti-Smith activities in 1928.

Under the corrupt practices act he made four reports dealing with his expenditures in the campaign, but made no mention of the $65,300, according to Mr. Tinkham, until Mr. Jameson's contributions came out through the old Senate campaign expenditures investigating committee early in 1929.

Record of Telegrams.

This committee had ascertained that Mr. Jameson had contributed $172,000, all told, to political activities and it asked him for an itemized account. Mr. Jameson communicated with Bishop Cannon, and the latter telegraphed him, according to Mr. Tinkham and evidence before the lobby committee, as follows:

"After careful examination records think statement should be 'Paid headquarters committee anti-Smith Democrats seventeen thousand three hundred paid Virginia committee anti-Smith Democrats forty eight thousand making total sixty five thousand three hundred.' This will correspond exactly with our official reports."

Bishop Cannon then, according to Mr. Tinkham, filed an accounting of the $17,300 with the House under the corrupt practices law.

$48,000 Balance Under Scrutiny.

It is the remaining $48,000 that he has refused to testify what he did with, contending that it was expended in Virginia and therefore did not come within the corrupt practices act.

Mr. Tinkham said:

"The Federal corrupt practices act requires the report of receipts and expenditures of an organization operating "(1) in two or more States, or (2) whether or not in more than one State if such committee, association or organization (other than a duly organized State or local committee of a political party) is a branch or subsidiary of a national committee, association or organization.' The anti-Smith Democrats were operating in 'two or more States' and the work of the organization in Virginia was part of the work of the committee organized at Asheville 'to carry on active work throughout the Southern States to secure the defeat of the Democratic nominee for President and of which Bishop Cannon was chosen chairman."

To divert attention from his refusal to explain what he did with the money, Mr. Tinkham continued, Bishop Cannon "appealed to sectarian prejudice, as his wont, charging that Roman Catholic interests were conspiring against him."

But the reason he would not testify before the committee, Mr. Tinkham charged was because he "feared" a series of questions which Mr. Tinkham asked publicly for the first time in the long drawn out fight with the bishop. The important ones of them follow:

"Why he wished the money contributed by E. C. Jameson paid in cash?" The evidence is that seven out of the nine payments by Jameson were in cash and Mr. Jameson has testified that this was at Bishop Cannon's request.

"Why he wholly concealed until February 15, 1929, receipt of the money he had received from E. C. Jameson . . .?"

"Why on February 15, 1929 he reported the receipt of only $17,000, when $635.00 had been received from Mr. Jameson?"

"Why in his telegram of February 12, 1929, to E. C. Jameson instructing Mr. Jameson what to report to the Senate committee appointed to investigate presidential campaign expenditures concerning Mr. Jameson's contribution to him of $65,300 he stated 'This will correspond exactly with our official reports,' when he knew at the time that he sent that telegram that it would not correspond with his official reports because no official reports had been made of those contributions, either under the Federal law or under any State law, and if it was not in his mind to make it correspond with such report as he might make and did make several days later to the clerk of the House of Representatives?"

Interest in Kable & Co.

"Whether or not at the time he was receiving money from E. C. Jameson he owed any money to Kable & Co. or Harry L. Goldhurst, who operated a 'bucket shop' and who subsequently was prosecuted and convicted by the United States Government for using the mails to defraud and with whom Bishop Cannon is now known to have had extensive transactions shortly before his receipt of contributions from E. C. Jameson?"

"Whether or not he had any dealings with one Joseph Radlow, a partner of Harry L. Goldhurst, who subsequently, it is stated, organized with said Harry L. Goldhurst a 'bucket shop' under the name of the Cosmopolitan Fiscal Corporation and who also was later convicted of using the mails to defraud?

"Whether or not he had dealings with the Cosmopolitan Fiscal Corporation organized by the said Joseph Radlow and Harry L. Goldhurst?

"Whether he incurred any financial obligations in connection with extensive stock options signed by the said Joseph Radlow and executed October 4, 1928, when he was receiving contributions from E. C. Jameson?

"Whether any of the money received from E. C. Jameson was used by him on account of any personal indebtedness?"

(Associated Press.)

In a statement telegraphed from Louisville, Ky., Bishop James Cannon, jr., yesterday termed Representative Tinkham (Republican), of Massachusetts, a "blustering, cowardly congressman" for attacking him on the floor of the House under immunity from prosecution for libel.

"When Congressman Tinkham shall give to the press over his personal signature the statements reported by the press as made by him today on the floor of the House of Representatives, where he is immune from prosecution for false, libelous statements," the Cannon statement read, "he may command the respect of honorable men, but making such attacks on the floor of the House, where he knows his immunity from prosecution, brands him as a blustering, cowardly congressman appealing especially to his wet, Roman Catholic voters to retain him in office."

UTILITY COMMISSION RECEIVES NEW RATE SCHEDULE ON GAS

this statement by telling reporters that the new management of the company had begun improvements in operating methods which would result in material savings annually, although just what the savings would be could not be forecast at this time.

The proposed new rate schedule which will be formally before the Utilities Commission if Congress approves the legislation the owners of the gas companies want, will mean a material reduction in existing rates for large consumers.

There are, according to Public Utilities Commission records, 104,000 gas consumers. The average consumption is 4,200 cubic feet a month. This figure includes large business concerns and other large consumers. The average domestic consumption is 3,400 cubic feet per month. There are approximately 103,000 consumers who pay the present domestic rate.

The present gas rates, which have remained undisturbed since November, 1923, provide a rate of $1 per 1,000 cubic feet up to 50,000 feet consumed per month.

Consumers who use more than 2,500 cubic feet of gas per month will get the 85-cent rate on their first 2,500 feet consumed and the 75-cent rate will apply only to gas consumed in excess of that amount, Mr. Wood said.

Larger Consumption Sought.

Mr. Wood said the new schedule was "worked out hurriedly" but was designed to induce greater consumption of gas. If the merger and financing legislation is enacted by Congress there will be other proposals by the new owners, he said. Involved in these are plans for erecting a by-product gas plant, utilization of natural gas, and reduction of the existing 600 B. T. U. standard required by the utilities commission. That standard is the measurement of the heating power of the gas.

Mr. Wood said that it is contemplated eventually to reduce the standard to around 550 if the utilities commission approves. The loss in heating power, he said, is about proportionate. He pointed out that Washington now has one of the highest standards required in any city using artificial water gas—which is the description of the method of manufacture of local gas—and that even at 550 the standard will be high.

Only five cities in the country will have lower gas rtaes than Washington if the new rates ever become effective, Mr. Wood said. Asked what the company would do if Congress did not approve the pending merger and financing legislation he said, "We will cross that bridge when we come to it," refusing to go beyond the formal statement made to the Utilities Commission that the new prices were submitted so "that the same may be ready for immediate action if and when the proposed legislation for the merger of the Washington Gas Light Co. and the Georgetown Gas Light Co. becomes a law, as embodied in Senate bill No. 4066, or any amendment thereto satisfactory to us."

Other Cities' Charges Compared.

The only cities which will have lower gas rates, if the contingent prices are put into effect, will be Baltimore, Detroit, Milwaukee, Minneapolis and St. Paul. Comparative monthly bills on the basis of 4,000 and 5,000 feet consumption, together with the required standard for Washington and these cities, were given by Mr. Wood as follows:

Washington, 600 B. T. U., $3.75 and $4.50; Baltimore, 500, $3.40 and $4.05; Detroit, 530, $3.16 and $3.95; Milwaukee, 520, $3.20 and $3.95; Minneapolis, 550, $3.56 and $4.45, and St. Paul, 550, $3.60 and $4.50.

The new owners of the gas company, Mr. Wood intimated, will be willing to toss the dormant fight over valuation of its properties into the discard and start off with a new valuation, if the pending legislation goes through and the new rates are approved by the commission.

Carpenter Pleads Bankruptcy.

Homer P. Galentine, a carpenter and builder, of 5816 Colorado avenue northwest, yesterday petitioned the District Supreme Court to adjudge him a bankrupt. Galentine lists liabilities of $29,055.64 and assets of $20,610. Secured claims of $22,300 are included in the liabilities.

THERE has been presented to the Public Utilities Commission of the District of Columbia a Schedule of Rates to be effective when Senate Bill 4066 for the merger of these Companies has become a law, and after approval by the Public Utilities Commission. This Schedule of Rates has been submitted in accordance with statement made by our representative in the hearings before the Public Utilities Commission.

The Schedule of Rates applied to our present sales of gas will mean a reduction in our Revenue of approximately $400,000.00 yearly and make for SUBSTANTIAL SAVINGS to our CUSTOMERS. This loss in revenue we expect to make up through popularizing the use of gas by reason of lower rates provided for in our schedule.

The Bill making possible these savings to our Customers is before the HOUSE and SENATE and it is our hope that before adjournment the Bill will be passed and make possible a high order of Service at reasonable rates.

George A. G. Wood
PRESIDENT.
WASHINGTON GAS LIGHT COMPANY

At the Source of a Nation's Strength

THE skyscraper metropolis, as well as the merest village, is nourished by its gas reservoirs. The giant industrial plant and the tiny cottage are equally dependent on gas. This ideal fuel, whether natural or manufactured, supplies the heat and power that keep the wheels turning. The Gas Company, therefore, has an immense responsibility to the public. We trust that our record of service reveals the extent to which we feel our responsibility.

THE GIRL IN THE AIR - - -

BY JULIE ANNE MOORE

If he saw that her eyes had grown suddenly red during her brief absence, he gave no sign of it, but helped her in and went around to get in on the opposite side.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Janet Decker—Eighteen, gorgeous, a stenographer-clerk in the Peerless Employment Bureau on West Main street.

Fred Turner—An automobile mechanic, sadly soft on Janet.

Henry Frenda—A clerk in the office of the Great Eastern Air Transportation Co., at Mount Tobe and Fred's chief rival.

Bernice Terrell—Employed in Cooney's laundry and Janet's best friend.

Temple—An official of some sort in the Great Eastern.

Janet gets a call from Temple saying he wants her to find a stenographer with "plenty of nerve" as flying secretary to Tolbert, president of the Great Eastern. She says she will do her best and let him know next day. Fred Turner runs in for a minute while Miss Miller, in charge of the employment office, is at lunch. He is kissing Janet when Miss Miller walks in. Miss Miller fires Janet on the spot. Janet talks it over with Bernice and they arrange to have Temple call at Bernice's house for an interview with Janet next morning. Henry Frenda takes Janet for a ride and gives her a book on aviation. He also tells her about a mysterious wealthy lumberman who is staying at his mother's house near the airport. Janet meets Temple and gets the job, but her mother objects to her taking it. Fred calls and asks her to marry him. She agrees to think it over. A night call from Temple says he will want her to report early next morning, and will send for her.

CHAPTER IV.

As Janet had expected, her father came to the rescue at the last moment. She had not told her mother about Temple's call the night before, and when she broke the news at the breakfast table next morning Mrs. Decker threw up her hands, as if in despair, and turned to her husband.

"I've told her a dozen times she can't take that job, William, and still she insists. I can't argue any more. She's your child as well as mine, and if you don't want to see her dead in an airplane accident, or her reputation ruined by some of these long tongues, you'd better do your talking now. She's too headstrong for me. I give up."

Now Mrs. Decker should have known by long experience that the first part of her argument was sound and sufficient; but to suggest that some one would talk about a member of his family for doing what they had a perfect right to do if they saw fit was to nullify everything that she had said before. Mr. Decker simply wouldn't have any of his clan stretching the necks to please the neighbors.

"I don't know why she shouldn't go to work at the airport if she wants to, mother," he told her. "She's old enough to think for herself now and there's a great future in flying. If they'd had airplanes back in the Spanish-American War, things would have been different."

"It's too bad you can't talk about anything but that old Spanish-American War," Mrs. Decker declared. "Janet's got no business up in the air, and flying around with two men and no chaperon is . . . is terrible. In the eyes of the gossips, anyway," she added, weakening her case still more.

"The trouble is, mother, that you and I are getting old. We're out of step with the younger generation. Flying is the thing right now and Janet wants to get in on the ground floor. I don't blame her. If I was a few years younger, I'd go out there myself and get a job. . . . Will the job pay as good as the employment office, Jan?"

Janet recognized her cue. "I don't know what it pays exactly, dad, but Mr. Temple said the salary was very attractive."

"You hear that, mother?" Mr. Decker said impressively. "A very attractive salary. And that means more than she got at the other place. Progress right off the bat. I tell you, mother, there is a big opportunity in aviation and we can't cut Jan out of her chance. It wouldn't be right."

Mrs. Decker knew that she had lost and raised her eyebrows to signify that the responsibility for the terrible things that were likely to happen was not upon her shoulders.

"All right," she agreed reluctantly; "you can go, but your father'll be sorroy he humored you if he doesn't mind."

Mr. Decker had on his lumber jacket and battered cap, all ready to take his tools and go to work. He was a carpenter and a good one, and there was rarely a day he wasn't in demand. With his hands on the knob of the porch door, he turned to Mrs. Decker.

"I wish you wouldn't let it bother you when people talk about us, mother," he told her. "But if you hear anybody saying ugly things about Janet, you tell me and I'll punch somebody in the jaw on general principles."

"No wonder your children behave so," Mrs. Decker said hopelessly. "Your father sets you a bad example." But Mr. Decker was out of hearing. He was taking his tools from the porch cupboard and singing softly: "In the good old summer time, in . . ."

"He's a darling if there ever was one," Janet declared earnestly, and went quietly out of the room.

In the living room Janet found the morning paper where her father had thrown it after taking a hurried glance at the editorial page before breakfast. She picked it up absently thinking to scan the headlines and help her mother with the dishes before Temple came. Temple had said he would be there before 8:30. But the moment her eye fell on the first page she knew what it was that Temple had hinted at in his telephone conversation the night before.

AIR BANDITS SHOOT DOWN GREAT EASTERN AIRPLANE.
Pilot Injured, But Will Recover, Doctors Say.
ROBBERS GET STUNG.
Craft Had Nothing of Value Aboard, Field Officials Declare.

So that was it, thought Janet. But what could this attempted robbery have to do with Tolbert's sudden return from Canada and plans for an immediate return journey today? Time would tell.

Hearing her mother coming, Janet shoved the paper behind the couch and pretended to be interested in a book. It was, she saw, the book Henry Frenda had given her. Airplanes, airplane engin . A lot of stuff about learning to fly. She turned the pages idly, waiting for her mother to go back to the kitchen.

And then, as the leaves slid under her finger, she discovered something on the last page she had not seen before. It was written in pencil, carelessly, perhaps hurriedly:

"Wn 110"
"Ww 215"
"Vb ri Qb 39 Dikkiq ojf dein vbj"

Interesting, but what did it mean? No doubt it had something to do with airplanes; some note Henry had scratched down while he was reading, maybe.

When Janet looked up her mother was standing by the kitchen door staring at her curiously. Janet threw the book on the table and walked over to her. "Why don't you stop worrying about me, Mud? Nothing's going to happen to me, and from now on I'll be able to do more for the family finances than I ever have before."

Her mother kissed her tenderly and gave her a gentle push toward her room. "Go on and get your things on, child. They'll be here for you any time now." And as Janet hesitated she added: "There never was a mother that didn't worry about her brood, honey. I'll stay wake nights until I get used to it. You won't be back tonight?"

"I don't think so, Mud. Mr. Temple talked like Mr. Tolbert would probably want to go off somewhere today. We may get back, but don't look for me. No matter how long I'm off, now later, just remember that little Janet is looking out for herself. And just as soon as I begin to draw some real money, we'll have a party and some new clothes, darling. I want to see you dressed up like you are in that picture with Dad taken when I was a baby. You did have some pretty clothes then, didn't you, Mud?"

"There weren't so many of us," Mrs. Decker said simply. "I've got clothes enough. You'll be the first one to need some things when you get enough money to buy them."

Janet thought of the little dresses waiting for her at Mrs. Terrell's. What would her mother say if she knew her daughter had borrowed a hundred dollars from a young man with which to purchase them?

It was 8:20 when an imposing sedan stopped before the Decker door. Janet had thought she would have Temple come in long enough to meet her mother, but when she peered out the window, she saw that Temple had sent a substitute.

Apparently, no man could work at the airport unless he was over 6 feet. He was fully as tall as Temple, slightly broader through the shoulders, and very erect.

Janet waited for him to ring the bell, then slipped on her coat and hat, picked up her little suitcase and opened the door.

His hair was light brown and his eyes were as blue as her own. It is not particularly to her credit, but the instant she saw him she thought: "His mouth is not too big; he's really better looking than Mr. Temple."

"Good morning," he said pleasantly. "Are you Miss Decker?"

"Right," said Janet, and gave him her suitcase. "I thought Mr. Temple was coming." Before he could answer, she said: "I'll be out in one minute; I want to tell my mother good-by."

When she approached the car something more than three minutes later, he was waiting by the curb, holding the door open for her. If he saw that her eyes had grown suddenly red during her brief absence, he gave no sign of it, but helped her in and went around to get in on the opposite side.

As they drove away, Janet saw a curtain move slightly in the living room window and she tried vainly to swallow the lump in her throat.

"This is Temple's car," he said quietly," and it's a regular refrigerator. You'll find there's less wind coming up through the floor if you set a little closer to me."

Janet glanced up at him quickly and saw for the first time the smile that was to haunt her many long nights before this adventure was at an end. It was a smile that tore through the barriers of convention and did something to you.

Janet responded by laughing happily and moving nearer to him.

He said: "You were expressing your disappointment that Temple didn't come for you——"

"I was doing nothing of the kind. I understood he was coming and I was a little surprised to find you standing there instead; that's all."

"Oh, I wouldn't blame you in the least," he assured her. "Temple is a most engaging young man, and from what he told me last night, you rather knocked the breath out of him."

"What are you talking about?"

"Not physically, of course. He was stunned to find you so amazingly pretty. He couldn't talk of anything else."

Janet directing, he drove to Meadow street and waited before Bernice Terrell's house while she ran in with her suitcase to collect her new things. When she came out, the suitcase appeared to have almost doubled in size, and she carried a large, strongly tied box in addition. They talked about the meagerness of the modern girl's dress, but when she is starting out with a fresh wardrobe, no week-end bag will serve her need.

They continued on Meadow street to West Main and presently turned right on to the Thomaston road, Janet doing her best to hit upon a congenial topic of conversation, and her young man making staccato comments upon life and the universe in general.

"I wonder," he said, suddenly, "if you know what you are running into?"

Janet, taken by surprise, said: "Do you mean I'm running into something unpleasant?"

"Oh, not necessarily. Have you ever been up?"

"No, but I'm dying to. Is that the worst?"

He was silent for a moment, then asked, "Did Temple give you any idea as to what the job involves?"

"Why, yes." She hesitated to repeat what Temple had said in confidence. This young man might be employed at the airport, but it was quite possible that he knew nothing about its business affairs. "I don't think I'm running into anything I'd be afraid of," she told him.

"I hope not," he said, agreeably. "I suppose I'm naive, but you just don't look like the sort of girl you're representing yourself to be."

"Hmm!" said Janet. "Now explain that."

"Well, if anyone asked me, and I didn't know better, I'd say you were some ambitious debutante going in for a career to dodge the social mess. You're quite sure you aren't?"

Janet knew that he was teasing, but she said simply, "You saw where I live."

"To complete the illusion, perhaps," he suggested. "I've heard of them doing that, though I never knew one."

"That's funny," said Janet. "It's funny to me, anyway, because if I'd ever been in what you call the social mess, I'd still be in it."

"You think you'd like it?"

"I'd adore it. If I've got one overpowering desire, that's it. I'm a woman, and every woman has the same dreams; to——" She remembered her conversation with Fred and suddenly grew silent. "You know what they are," she continued a moment later. "It's simply feminine to want to be in the social whirl."

"I suppose so. But you don't really aspire to it; I mean with an expectation of getting in?"

"Why not?"

He turned that strangely disarming smile upon her. "I should say it wasn't worth the effort. Besides, you're too complete as you are to want to be something else."

Janet met his smile with her own. This, she knew, was pure and undisguised flattery, but it was totally unlike Temple's impersonal compliment. This young man said nice things to her, not because he believed them to be true, but because he wanted to please her. There is a distinction many a young man might study to his advantage.

"You're a man," said Janet. "Men who are not born into money and fuss have not time for the rich or the socially prominent. A woman has. Do you remember what some professor said to a bunch of college boys about marrying the boss' daughter?"

"That was Prof. Roberts, of M. I. T.," he informed her. "The very small and insignificant portion of his address on which the newspapers laid so much stress was, 'Don't marry your stenographer; marry the boss' daughter.' But you don't subscribe to any such doctrine."

"Not hook, line and sinker," said Janet; "but there's something in it. I turn it around to fit my case. 'Don't be a stenographer all your life,' I say; 'marry the boss' son and live in clover.' See?"

His smile had faded. "I say," he protested, "that's rather cold-blooded, isn't it? Where does love come in; or doesn't it?"

They were slowing down before the old gate house and a moment later had turned right on to the Greystone road. A spring wagon pulled over to let them pass.

"Of course love comes in," Janet said, uncertainly. "But it'd be terribly easy to love some one who could give you everything you'd always wanted, wouldn't it?"

He shook his head solemnly. "Perhaps we'd best change the subject. Our ideas there are hopelessly apart . . . Do you know any one at the airport?"

"Mr. Temple, of course; and Henry Frenda. He works in the office, I think."

"I don't seem to recall him," he told her. "But there's a Mrs. Frenda living in that house off to the right there. See it? Up on the hill."

Janet said: "That's Henry's mother. She takes boarders."

"Boarders?" he repeated. "I shouldn't think there'd be much demand for board or quarters out here."

"Maybe not. All I know is that Henry said they had a lumberman, or somebody like that, staying at their house. Gosh! There's the airport already. The last time I was over this road we were two hours getting this far. The old place has changed."

A long row of hangars loomed up on the skyline, and the low drone that could fairly be heard as they came up the hill was steadily increasing in volume.

At the crest of the hill they rode through the main gate and followed the road behind and paralleled to the hangars.

Half a dozen airplanes were in the air; another was just leaving the ground; an enormous craft with three motors was blowing up a cloud of dust before one of the hangars. It was the first time Janet had been in such close proximity to commercial aviation and she felt little waves of excitement running through her.

Midway the row of hangars the car turned sharply and drew up at the very edge of the field, a few feet from the entrance to a low, attractive little building that Janet took to be the office. Before a hangar on the opposite side a figure in tan denims stood on the top of a step-ladder and bent over the engine of what, to Janet, was the most awkward-looking airplane conceivable. She thought it might be Temple, but his face was not visible.

"It was mighty nice of you to bring me out," Janet said to her young man as he opened the door for her, "but you never did explain why Mr. Temple didn't go for me."

He indicated the denim clad figure atop the ladder. "He won't let a mechanic touch that thing," he declared. "And when he's getting ready for a hop he just about makes the engine over. He wouldn't leave it to keep a date with the Queen of England."

There was that charming smile again. It said to her now: "We've been together for quite awhile, haven't we? The ice is broken. We mustn't waste any more time with convention." It occurred to her suddenly that she didn't even know his name.

"There may be more proper way to go about it," Janet said to him; "but since we're both working around this place, we might as well get acquainted."

He bowed his indorsement of her initiative.

"You know my last name," she said. "My first is Janet, and I much prefer it to anything else you could call me."

"It's a ripping name," he declared, "and I'll forget you've any other. Mine's Tolbert. The same as my father's. You'll honor me by calling me Dick."

Something contracted in Janet's breast. She saw the figure on the ladder waving a wrench aloft and recognized Temple's voice. She raised her own hand in reply and tried to smile; but it was no use. What a little fool she was! "Why hadn't he told her he was the boss' son?

Oh, oh! Off on the wrong foot that time, Janet. But tomorrow you're in for a kick you never had before.

Kaufman Selected Chest Bureau Head

Speakers' Group Meets at Y. W. C. A. for Instruction in Duties.

Joseph D. (Radio Joe) Kaufman was introduced as the new chairman of the Community Chest Speakers' Bureau at the regular monthly dinner meeting of that organization at the Y. W. C. A., Seventeenth and K streets northwest, last night. Elwood Street, director of the Community Chest, presided at the opening of the meeting long enough to announce the appointment.

Last night's meeting was the third of a series designed to acquaint the members of the all-year-round speakers' bureau with organizations affiliated with the Community Chest. It will enable the speakers to answer any specific questions concerning any organization connected with the Chest.

In accordance with a plan worked out by Miss B. Gertrude Taft, secretary of the speakers' bureau, the program was in the hands of the officials of the Y. W. C. A., and included a series of short talks by secretaries and members of that organization. Later those at the dinner visited the swimming pool, where class instruction was under way; looked in on several classes on the sixth floor, and then went on the roof, where a party was being held for young census workers who have recently come to the city.

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

—By JOHN J. DALY—

ALL those who saw Miss Edith Gresham play the adamant widow in "Your Uncle Dudley," the farewell play at the National this week, marvel at her acting ability.

It was no news to Howard S. Fisk, the former newspaper man, erstwhile commander in the Navy, and now settled down to a business career in Washington. He writes: "Miss Gresham comes from an old theatrical family. Her grandfather was John T. Ford, owner of Ford's Theater on Tenth street, where President Lincoln was assassinated. Her mother was a daughter of John T. Ford and her father was Herbert Gresham, well known with the Augustin Daly company, Daly Theater, New York. Both parents died several years ago. During her stay in the National Capital, Miss Gresham has been visiting many of her friends and relatives, including Miss Ella Ford, a cousin."

With that background, of course, the girl should be able to play character parts as she does this intricately woven pattern of a woman's ambitious nature.

* * * *

WHEN the National Theater Players fold up Saturday night, as the saying goes in the theater, Washington will be without the legitimate drama until the opening of the regular season some time in September. There are mighty plans ahead. All New York believes that the regular stage is in for a "come back," that the season in the offing is fraught with great possibilities. The producers are hard at it shaping the new plays. Several are in rehearsal, a vast number are being tried out, even this early, in such places as Atlantic City, Jersey City and points on the subway circuit, and others are being written.

* * * *

OUT in Chicago, where the residents are all wrought up over gang warfare, "The Little Show" closed its career on Saturday night last. This was the marvelous revue that got under way in the Belasco Theater last season, ran a record run on Broadway, and then went into the hinterland. Now comes word that "The Second Little Show" is the title of the next offering along the same lines. It goes into rehearsal as soon as enough chorus girls can be mustered to put on the dances.

* * * *

AT the present writing there are less than 30 legitimate attractions in New York, which gives some idea of the waning season. It won't be long, of course, before the big revues are on the way. The first to arrive was that old perennial, "Artists and Models." Earl Carroll is priming another "Vanities," and, unless rumors are wrong, Mr. Flo Ziegfeld is coming back from the Coast soon to put on a new "Follies," after his avowal that he would never stage another.

* * * *

IF Mr. Romaine Callender can be believed, and he certainly can, there is no better scenic artist in all theaterdom than Charles Squires—at the National.

LARKSPUR, HOLLYHOCKS AND FOXGLOVES.

ALONG time ago John Parkinson wrote: We call them in English Yarkes heeles, Larkes spurrees, Larkes toes or clawes." Some one has said that the tints and tones of larkspur range from the azure of the sky to the deep blue of the sea. But surely this is not all, for we find all sorts of lovely pastel shades, both pink and blue, among the larkspur.

We can not imagine a completed garden without some tall cathedral spires of delphinium. These plants must have sun if are really to bloom and favor us with healthy foliage. They demand a rich soil and a great deal of moisture. Never permit seeds to form or you will have few flowers. Constant cultivation is necessary to induce the plants to keep blooming.

If you notice even a suggestion of blight, begin to apply dry Bordeaux mixture about the crowns of the plants or give them a weekly spraying with ammoniacal copper carbonate. Bonemeal is better for the soil than manure if there is even a trace of blight in your border.

Hollyhocks do best in a soil composed of good loam and leafmold in equal parts. Keep them well watered during warm weather. Remember that when grown for a number of years in the same place they are apt to be troubled with rust. Even so early in the season readers are telling me that their hollyhocks are showing traces of this disease. If your plants are vigorous, rust isn't so serious a malady, but where you have poor soil rust is apt to impair the health of the plants. Usually a mixture of lime and sulphur, blown under the leaves, will prevent a serious attack of rust. Some growers prefer Bordeaux mixture for this purpose. If you notice among your collection any badly diseased plants pull them up at once and discard them.

Foxgloves will grow in partial shade or full sunlight if kept well watered. Be sure to cut the main flowering stem after it has finished flowering, as this will induce more to come up. Give your foxgloves an application of liquid manure during their flowering season. Do not forget that these plants are treated as biennials, so sow the seed in late summer or fall and winter the plants in a cold frame. New plants can also be started by root division.

Jane Engle INTERPRETS the MODE

Paris, June 17.

TELL you something. The new tweeds don't have that practical look about them that tweeds used to have! Maybe you've already noticed that, huh? Tweed has become a lady these days, and hasn't got that ruddy, robust, just-from-the-stable-and-out-for-a-walk-on-the-moors look about her.

I've told you about the new tweeds for fall—the so much finer and lighter weight tweed for the dress that exactly matches in everything except weight the tweed of the coat?

In Paris they sell you English tweeds, which, you can't get away from it, are the best tweeds in the world. There's something obscure about that English tweed business—personally, I think they both caught the ideas and the tweeds themselves from Scotland, but I s'pose that's none of my business. And then next to English tweeds there is, of course, the Rodier tissue, some of which is woven into tweed effects, others are out and out printed tweeds, on a kasha foundation.

And you know something else? Enjoy your tweed hat and bag that matches your suit or coat while you may, because this fall this idea is going to be out of favor!

Maggy Rouff is a name that is very well known to European elegantes, if perhaps not quite so well known in America. This is the couturier who stops at nothing to achieve the desired chic—even when an afternoon or evening coat requires five or six hundred dollar foxes to complete its collar.

And their models can be chic without such extravagance, too. As, for instance, the white silk pique sports ensemble illustrated with its red, white and blue scarf threaded through the stitched openings of the dress, its half red and half blue kid belt, and its open white jacket which allows the scarf to show.

* * * *

How people flock to the smartest places! We practically discovered Les Enfant Terribles, when it first opened in the Theater Pigalle and was oh, so chic and quiet—and now it's become so smart and popular that one can't dance there any more. Signing where next, I go there just the same whenever a theater or directing a fashion movie keeps me out until after midnight—and then I have been noticing that the all black and all white costumes which have been smart for so long are somewhat giving way to more spring-like printed chiffons. Favor seems evenly divided between the short, chic, wrappy little coats and the longer and certainly more formal ones in lame or velvet.

* * * *

The tighter the hipline the more clever the cut of the lingerie must be, else you spoil it all with wrinkles and bunches and bumps. So you proceed to make your own bloomers or shorts with the Dare leaflet of directions and next to no material. The trick is in cutting the back on the bias.

But before you proceed with the cutting, you up and send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the leaflet, or wherever would you be?

* * * *

In the big Sunday Washington Post you can always find Dare's weekly fashion letter. You should look for it.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

"They Married for Love."

DEAR Miss McDonald: When first I read your column I was a single man, and sure got many a laugh out of your sayings. About the first time I read your page you said something I never expected any woman to say, and after that I always took a squint at your article. I guess you won't even remember, but you said that "men married for love, and women married for any one of several reasons, all good." Gee, that was telling 'em! Then the next day you landed another one, a real K. O. You said "most marriages are 'second-choice' romance." Remember that sock? Oh, boy! You had me scared for a year and a half. But now I'm writing to tell you that you can't scare me any more! I'm a father! Yes, sir. How do you like that? Second choice nothing. My wife married me when I was making less than I had ever made in my life—down on my luck, down on the world. She just looked at me and, holy mackerel, how I fell! And in three weeks I was saving up for a new suit and hunting a new job, and never once did I doubt that dear little devil's love.

Well, I figured about a year to wait. She said now or never. We did it. It took. And how! Two months and I had a job, and now look at me, a father.

Honest, Miss McDonald, you ought to have a heart! But here I am still reading your wise cracks—but not scared any more. PROUD PA.

Dear Miss McDonald: Your column is so interesting to me, and today, after reading two letters, I want to write you my experience and results. When I was 16 I had received a dozen proposals of marriage. After that I lost count. I was not a flirt. My father and mother are farmers. I could have married rich men, but I wanted more than money, so I married a poor boy, wild, reckless and a drunkard. He also was out of a job, yet I married him. I forgot to tell you he came from one of the best families in Pittsburgh. That was the only thing he had in his favor, with the exception of a good war record. This is the answer I have for any one who says a man doesn't appreciate a woman's sacrifice.

My husband works seven nights a week, with one week off during the year. He brings his pay check home to me without so much as a cent taken out. He never goes out without me. I go and come as I please. He never asks what I've done with the money, although he often tells me to buy something for myself. He doesn't get into trouble or go out with the boys. It is seldom he even takes a drink. There is one thing he does put his foot down on. He won't let me work outside my tiny apartment, and "that's that."

We have a large car and nearly every morning he takes me for a ride before he rests. You want to know what I do for all that!

My husband gets $40 a week. I do all my own baking, even my bread, and let me tell you that is one thing my hubby is proud of! I make my own clothes. I keep myself nice." I save his money; $20 at least goes in the bank a week, and I love him with all my heart, and what more can I do?

We intend to buy a country home in 1930. Wish us luck and happiness. Sincerely, MRS. L. B. E.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

(Bureau of Standards, Department of Commerce.)

With regard to safety from lightning, there is no place which may be regarded as absolutely safe unless it is of such character that, even though a stroke of lightning does fall upon it, no harm will come to the occupants. For no object in the path of a thunder storm can be assumed to be immune to lightning. It does not pick or choose to any great extent among objects upon which to fall, but strikes whatever is in its way. Places which may be regarded as perfectly safe are rooms entirely surrounded by metal, rooms under ground or in a steel-framed building. Here, even though lightning strikes, the chances that it would penetrate to the interior are negligible. The next safest place is a well-rodded house.

But even in a rodded house some precautions must be observed in order to secure the maximum reduction of danger. For instance, when a thunder storm is in progress one should keep away from those parts of outside walls near the places where lightning conductors pass into the earth, and also away from stoves, fireplaces, chimneys, screened doors and windows, and telephones.

It is essential to safety to keep away from the vicinity of down spouts on the exterior of the house, and metallic masses on the interior of the house and near the walls, such as radiators, stoves and safes. For a stroke of lightning following a down spout or a lightning rod or any metallic conductor, may jump to metallic objects near by, and a person sitting in the path of the discharge is not unlikely to be injured. Briefly, when one is in the house and a thunderstorm is in progress, take a position as near the middle of the room as practicable, well away from the objects named above, and retain it until the storm is over, or at least until the lightning discharges are appreciably lessened in intensity. This is about all one can do.

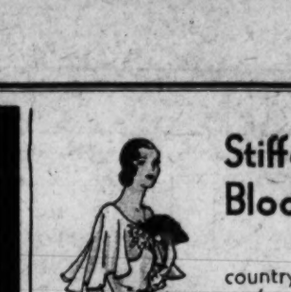
WORK ON BRIDGE

AN OPTIONAL BID.



The above hand was played in Duplicate Contract game at about 25 tables, and South had an interesting option when selecting his first bid. His hand counted 15 with every suit stopped; so, although Aceless, it met all the requirements for an original No Trump. It also had the strength requisite for an original Heart bid. (The situation would have been the same at Auction Bridge.)

Most of the dealers bid one No Trump, and their partners jumped to four, five or six, depending upon the amount of enthusiasm the four Aces produced; in all cases six was the final bid, although those who follow the theories of the 4-3-2-1 count would not bid more than five.

A few dealers started with one Heart and eventually landed at six Hearts. So at every table South was playing a small-slam contract either at No Trump or Hearts; and in every case West's opening lead was the Jack of Spades. Against either trump or No Trump the Spade (a major suit) is a much better lead than the Club (a minor suit) not only because of the difference of the character of the suit, but because a Jack-Ten-Nine sequence is a better opening than a Queen-Ten-Eight combination.

At every table at which Hearts were the trumps the Declarer made a grand slam either by ruffing dummy's Clubs or South Spades.

But when playing No Trump the Spade lead at once removed the Ace from the dummy hand, and the various Declarers made only eleven tricks—four Hearts, four Diamonds, two Clubs and one Spade. So at all the No Trump tables the slam contract was set.

While the result of this hand does not prove that a Heart was the sounder bid with the South hand, it will be conceded an Aceless hand containing a four-card King-Queen-Ten major and one suit as weak as King-x is apt to work better at a trump contract that fits with the partner than at No Trump.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"GEMINI."

IF June 18 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:30 a. m. to 10:30 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3:15 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 a. m. to 9 a. m. and from 6 p. m. to 7:15 p. m.

A negative time is augured for this date, and an inclination to let today be the effect of yesterday, instead of making it the cause of tomorrow. Guard against treachery and rivalry in love! A possible error in business judgment.

The children born on this June 18 will have sprightly spirits, an abundance of nervous energy and alert minds. They will be erratic students, enthusiastic one day and indifferent the next, although they could easily retain a place on the honor roll.

Armed with a sense of humor, a goodly amount of common sense and an invincible determination, you are prepared by nature for both the ups and downs of life. You are too philosophical to become bitter over failures and disappointments, and your ability to see the funny side of things "bucks" you up when tears are nigh. You are fortunate in being able to see the best side of everything and everybody. You are saved from a great deal because you do not hanker after the wrong things—your values are good. People find that they like to be with you, and you never seem to lack friends, both men and women.

The one word which probably describes you the best is—clean. It may be applied to acts, words, thoughts and conscience in your case. It is not in you to be tricky, mean or small, and you loathe underhandedness or the underhanded. Being full of faith, you accomplish and achieve by persistent determination. You are, of course, optimistic. It is far better to wear yourself out polishing the stars of hope than to build reservoirs for tears.

Your artistic tendencies are well developed and you have catholic tastes. You are a very neat and finished worker.

Successful people born June 18:

McDonald Clarke—"The mad poet."

The Goofus Cuckoo lays her eggs
For other birds to hatch

And yet this bird, so I have heard,
Thinks motherhood's sublime!

GOSLIN'S HOMER AIDS BROWNS TO BEAT NATS, 12-9

Pegler

NEW YORK, June 17.—Often have I heard it said that Uncle Will McCarney, the prize fighter manager, never picked a winner, but that is untrue and due, no doubt, to the fact that back in the days of the white man's hopes, Uncle Will passed up Jess Willard to pick Luther McCarthy.

Uncle Will took Luther McCarthy out West to fight a local party by the name of Arthur Pelky and brought his pick back home in a crate, for Pelky reached up with a clumsy swing to the chin and laid him dead on the floor of the ring.

Always, in this connection, Uncle Will receives the sympathy of his many loving friends. Luther McCarthy seems to figure in the piece merely as an instrumental character. He only died, but Uncle Will had to live on and mourn for his pick and for all that might have been. To just what extent he mourned for his pick and just what proportion of his grief was self-pity in his own misfortune, I can not say.

Had Luther Forgotten To Duck?

Uncle Will tells me that for some time after Luther McCarthy dropped, killed, in the first round, he was so upset that it was hard to sort out his thoughts. He liked Luther tolerably well, although Luther was just a fellow he had picked out of the pack of Willards, Brennans, Joe Coxes, Flynns, Cowlers, Rodels and John Does, who were crawling out of day coaches, box cars and saloons, and, even, it seemed, out from under hay stacks and stones, in those days, all of them hungry, greedy and unknown. Once, I believe, Uncle Will did own title to Jess Willard, but saw no promise in him and traded him off for a lemonade stand at a circus in Oklahoma.

Then he saw McCarthy and picked him, a big, strong rube who stripped lean and liked to beat people with his fists. I never heard him praised for the sweetness of his nature, and I can easily understand that Uncle Will's chief emotion in losing him so suddenly may have been not so much bereavement as a sense of material loss. If Luther had not forgotten to duck, Uncle Will might have had the heavyweight champion of the world.

Clergyman's Prophecy Held True.

There was a weird occurrence connected with the killing that distinguishes the incident beyond the common run of fatalities in the ring and emphasized the error of Uncle Will's pick. Before the fighters left their corners, some preacher took the center and exhorted all present to mend their ways, turning with a theatrical flourish at the close of his remarks to level a finger at Luther McCarthy in his corner and yell: "Even that young giant, in the full glow of young vigor and health, may not live to see the sun go down tonight. Such are God's inscrutable ways."

Uncle Will, fumbling with the water bottle and the orange peels in the corner, paid no special heed to this at the moment, recognizing a familiar preaching device of the open air clergy, but when the sun went down under a cloud and a chill swept the arena just before the bell, he felt some little uneasiness and, of course, when Luther crashed to the planks a moment later, Uncle Will took the preacher's words as prophecy and for six weeks thereafter he walked in ways of piety and not so much as a damn profaned his lips. All this gave rise to the idea that Uncle Will never picked a winner, but I must say that this is a false impression, for Uncle Will picked Gene Tunney to beat Dempsey in Philadelphia, contrary to the weight of precedent and all expert opinion.

Proves Sensation As Ghost Writer.

Will McCarney had only a social interest in that prize fight. He was hither and thither among the chaps in Philadelphia and Atlantic City, taking the waters at night with his friends and talking shop until all hours as one always does for a week before such affairs. One of Uncle Will's young friends, a journalist from way out, was not standing his entertainment any too well those nights, and Will, who had written sport himself many years before, very kindly volunteered to ghost his comrade's daily piece for the paper, an accommodation of no uncommon kind as you may have surmised if you read "Young Man of Manhattan."

Now this young man worked in a territory where there is great rivalry between the neighborhood papers and, having paid his expenses on this long journey, his paper naturally wished something unusually prescient in the way of a pick. But Uncle Will did not understand the huge responsibility of his job, and when he came to ghost the young man's selection, he chose Gene Tunney to win and gave many reasons, none of which he believed himself. Uncle Will merely fig-

8 AMERICAN GOLFERS QUALIFY IN ENGLAND; COMPSTON'S 141 LOW

Diegel Sets Pace for Invaders in British Open With 145.

Jones Has 150 Card; Von Elm and Tolley Lead Amateurs.

By FRANK H. KING.

HOYLAKE, England, June 17 (A. P.).—Archie Compston, giant golfer from the English midlands, with medal rounds of 70—71—141, led the qualifying round for the British open, with Bobby Jones and seven other Americans trailing him.

All the serious contenders from the United States, Leo Diegel, Horton and MacDonald Smith, professionals, and Jones, George Von Elm, Don Moe and F. C. Stevens, jr., the amateurs, were tonight in the select company of 112 who comprised the 100 lowest scores and ties for the hundredth place.

Others of the 290-odd who started yesterday are free to go home with their alibis, while the rest fight the real championship battle—72 holes medal play—during the coming three days.

First Three Leaders Are Britons.

Compston not only led the field but Henry Cotton, young British pro, was second with 143, and W. T. Twine, former Kent professional champion and yesterday's leader, stood third at 144. With the first three places occupied by Britons there was a tremor of rising hopes that after all there was a chance to regain the old country's long lost open title, which has gone across the Atlantic in eight of the last nine years.

Diegel tied with Percy Alliss, British pro, resident in Berlin, at 145, to lead the American group, while George Von Elm tied with Cyril Tolley with 147 to lead the amateurs among the qualifiers.

Bobby Jones was tied with six others for twentieth place in the qualifying lists. He was not a golfing machine today as he scaled the heights of Wallasey and finally checked in with a round of 77, which he considered about the worst he had played in Britain.

They made him a life honorary member of the club when he finished, but he did not make a speech about how he loves the Wallasey fairways.

Diegel Wilts After Brilliant Start.

Other disasters occurred at Wallasey. Diegel blew up after a great start which threatened Compston's lead and wound up with 75 when he seemed likely to score 70, and then a church near the clubhouse caught fire and golf fans and caddies helped choir boys and firemen to extinguish the blaze.

There were few real upsets in the qualifying tests. Arthur G. Havers, the 1923 champion, failed with a score of 159 and three of the oldsters, who nowadays play more for fun than for the title, were eliminated. Harry Vardon, 160, Alex Herd, 163 and James Braid 173.

MacDonald Smith had a fine round of 71, at Hoylake, to tie with Tom Green for the day's leadership at this course, while Henry Cotton's 70 led at Wallasey.

Moe Shaky, Finally Scoring 80.

Don Moe gave the Americans some shaky moments as he started unsteadily and continued to wobble all the way around, finally taking 80. Horton Smith played sound golf all the way, scoring 76, the same score returned by George Von Elm.

All the Americans seemed to be satisfied to qualify without trying to break any records.

Stribling-Von Porat Fight Is Postponed

Chicago, June 17 (A.P.).—The 16-round fight between Von Porat and W. L. ("Young") Stribling, scheduled for the Chicago Stadium tomorrow night, today was postponed until Friday night, due to an injury Stribling suffered in training.

Stribling damaged his left hand while boxing in his first gymnasium workout a week ago. He tore a ligament and the injury responded to treatment, but he was unable to do any heavy boxing. Consequently, he appealed for a two days' postponement to the stadium management so he could sharpen up in his boxing. It was granted.

"Strange as It Seems"—They Are Cousins.

By JOHN HIX.

MAYOR "BIG BILL" THOMPSON, of Chicago, and King George V. of England are cousins—because both are Anglo-Saxons and all Anglo-Saxons are at least thirtieth cousins.

Proof.

Anglo-Saxon—The low German tribes which invaded and occupied southern and eastern England and southern Scotland in the fifth and sixth centuries. A member of the Anglo-Saxon nation which in England was created by the consolidation of these tribes, together with native and Danish elements, and which continued as the ruling power of England until the Norman conquest. The immigrant tribes came from the shores of the North Sea, chiefly from what is now Schleswig-Holstein, and consisted of Angles, settling in the north of England, Saxons in the center and south, and Jutes in the southeast. Ethnologically and linguistically they were closely allied to the Frisians and the Dutch, and to the Danes, who later effected a settlement on the eastern coast and for a time held supreme power, as also to the occasional Norwegian invaders. . . . A person belonging to the mixed race which forms the English nation; primarily, a member of, or a person descended from, any of the races of the British Isles. (From Webster's New International Dictionary, 1930.)

Anglo-Saxon—The ancestors of most of the English speaking peoples, a race formed by the union of the German (Teutonic) tribes who settled in Britain in the fifth and sixth centuries after Christ. The most important of these were the Anglo-Saxons and Jutes. (From The World Book——Encyclopaedia.)

William Hale Thompson is of Scotch, English and Irish descent. . . . (National Encyclopaedia of American Biographies, 1927.)

Mayor Thompson says one side of his ancestry was Scotch and the other side English, he doesn't know which was which.

King George V. of England is partly German, partly English, partly Danish descent.

YANKS KNOCK TRIBE FROM 2D PLACE

CLEVELAND, June 17 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The Yankees rushed into second place today, crushing the Indians to the bottom of the first division with a heartless defeat by a score of 17 to 2. They made a clean sweep of the series and raised their total of consecutive victories to five.

Lou Gehrig, Harry Rice and Earle Combs topped the relentless sluggers with four hits apiece, and the Yankee first baseman came through with his eighteenth home run of the current campaign.

Settling the issue in the second inning with an eight-run rally, the Yankees began a battle with the elements, for lowering clouds and a slight sprinkle threatened to deprive them of an important victory.

Knock Clint Brown From Box.

They knocked Clint Brown out of the box in the second and wrought havoc with three other Cleveland pitchers. These slugging Yankees, slugging like no other Yankee Team has slugged, rolled up 21 hits for 30 bases and once again every man in the regular line-up made at least one hit.

Today the Yankees rest only a scant game behind the Athletics and have one less defeat in the important column. They return from the West with a record of nine victories and three defeats.

O'Doul's Single in 10th Spells Defeat for Bucs

Philadelphia, Pa., June 17 (A.P.).—Lefty O'Doul's single to right with Sothern on base in the last half of the tenth inning broke up a brilliant pitching duel here between Nichols and French and gave the Phils a 5-4 triumph over the Pirates.

Chuck Klein by banging out a single in the eighth inning ran his consecutive hitting streak to 26 games. Traynor hit a home run into the left field bleachers with none on in the sixth inning. Nichols was invincible in all but the sixth frame when the Pirates bunched six hits for four runs.

DEALS TONIC TO MORALE OF NATS

ST. LOUIS, June 17.—With the Nationals having negotiated more trades in four successive days than they had in three previous years and the dickering season now closed until August 31, Manager Walter Johnson tonight was as pleased as a kid with a new toy at the results as far as the Nationals are concerned.

"I am satisfied," said Walter, "that we got all the better of all three deals. Our team is right up there in the pennant race and, as I see things, these trades benefited us in all departments, besides bolstering our morale to an unestimable degree. Here we are trying to fight our way out of a slump with many of our players discouraged that we have been making little progress. Then all of a sudden we get a hard-hitting right-handed swinger in Dave Harris to fill in as a relief hitter; we lose Goslin, who has been in a slump all season and in exchange get Manush, who is going great, and a really fine pitcher in Crowder; and then we suddenly correct our infield weakness by getting Shires to understudy Judge at first.

Trades Boost Morale In Time of Need.

"Aside from the individual benefits which we drew from these deals, I believe that they have acted as a tonic and boosted our morale fully 50 per cent and just at a time when this would do the most good."

Johnson has been grinning from ear to ear ever since the first two deals were pulled but he admits that he had to give a little more than he wanted to in the last one, that of Pitcher Braxton and Catcher Tate for "The Great" Shires. "We wanted Shires," he said, "and naturally couldn't get him for nothing. I do not figure him in Judge's class as a first-sacker, but Judge is getting along in years and is down now with a 'Charley horse' attack, and we simply had to get some infield help."

"Probably the fans have not figured out how Shires will help us. In the first place, having him around not only gives us just a good a pinch-hitter as was needed, but the trade also makes Jack Hayes available as general infield substitute. True, we still have McLeod, but he is young and inexperienced, and I would hesitate in sending him in for a long stretch if we were in the thick of a pennant fight.

"Charley Horse" Is Tricky.

"A 'Charley horse' is a tricky thing when it attacks an old-timer like Judge. When he does get back, he will have to favor his leg for a while and no one knows, following an attack, when another will pop up. Now,

WASHINGTON ERRORS FIGURE PROMINENTLY IN ST. LOUIS VICTORY

TOSSED AWAY

4 Misplays in Infield Aid Browns in Two Big Rallies.

Liska and Marberry Hammered in 8th for 6 Runs.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, St. Louis, June 17.—Victory today would have sent the Nationals home in first place in the league standing, but, as they have done so many times on this trip, they failed to take take advantage of the opportunity, losing to the Browns, 12 to 9. Meanwhile the New York Yankees passed them, and the Nats are now tied with the Indians for third place.

Ad Liska and George Blaeholder were the starting pitchers and neither went the route. Blaeholder started poorly and then settled down and did well until he became overconfident and was chased off the hill in the ninth, Dick Coffman and Rip Collins being needed before the finish. Liska was unable to hold a small lead which the Nats gave him in the fourth and heard the shower call in the sixth. Fred Marberry proving no bargain as his relief, although some wretched Washington fielding did not help any.

It was a real game during the first half, but the home eighth and the Nats' ninth brought out plenty of bad ball and amateurish pitching. The Browns scored six runs in the eighth and, despite an eight-run lead, were plenty worried in the final inning, when the Nats made five runs.

Ruel Continues Hard Hitting.

Muddy Ruel was the Nats' demon hitter, getting a triple and double, although Joe Cronin came through with a homer with one on which looked mighty big at the time. This blow was not as important as that of Goslin, which came two rounds later, however, for the "Goose's" homer gave the Browns the lead which they managed to hold until the end.

Goslin and Ferrell led the home attack, the "Goose" getting a double and single in addition to his four-bagger, while the St. Louis catcher had a double, two singles and a walk to show for his four trips to the tee.

Four errors were charged to the Nationals and all figured in the scoring of alien runs. Three markers followed Hayes' miscue in the second, Myer's in the fifth cost one, while those by Bluege and Marberry in the eighth directly cost three runs and indirectly figured in the making of others.

Both teams were busy with their flails in the first three frames, when the Nats went into a 4 to 3 lead, and then the flingers got their machinery hitting on all cylinders until the Browns stepped out in front of Goslin's homer in the fifth.

The Nationals scored at least once in each of the first three innings. In the first, Rice singled with one out, took third on Manush's one-baser, and counted on Cronin's single. In

CAPITAL IS ENJOYING GREATEST SEASON IN POLO

2 Semifinal Encounters Today

Teams Prepare for Circuit Title Play in Baltimore.

Lieut. Makinney Best of Newcomers to Local Ranks.

POLO teams of the District area prepare today to close the first series of their most successful season and turn their attention to outside competition, with the circuit championship, to be decided at the Maryland Polo Club in Baltimore starting Saturday, as their first objective.

In announcing last night that most of the teams in this section will compete in the tourney at Baltimore, Col. Adna R. Chaffee, of the War Department Polo Association, and an outstanding booster of the sport here, declared the current season the most successful that polo has enjoyed here.

More teams have been organized this season, and the more teams in the field the keener the competition, he pointed out.

Strong Interest Shown By Marines.

For the first time, the Marines of Quantico have been represented by a team. Although not as strong as the more experienced teams, the Quantico four and its sponsors have shown much interest in the advancement of the game at their post. Gen. Smedley Butler, commandant at Quantico, has taken a personal interest in the development of a polo team to represent the Marines, and is largely responsible for the organization of the present squad.

Play so far this season has stamped the Third Cavalry Team as the low handicap four in this vicinity and Lieut. Mackinney, of the same team, has gained recognition as the outstanding newcomer to local ranks. Lieut. Mackinney returned from service in Hawaii late last season and immediately took his place among the ranking stars, performing on the Potomac Park green. His play has been sensational to date this season.

Washington's growing army of polo fans will witness a full program on the Potomac Park oval this afternoon. Two semifinal games of the invitation cup championship tourney are scheduled, starting at 3 o'clock. Postponement yesterday, due to rain, of a scheduled match made it necessary to play both semifinals today. The War Department Blues will meet the Infantry School, of Fort Benning, Ga., in the first game today and the War Whites will engage the Third Cavalry Four in the second encounter. Close followers of the matches to date are expecting one or more upsets today. Several upsets have marked play to date.

Only the absence of Baltimore teams has detracted slightly from the local tournaments this year. The Maryland Polo Club teams have always figured prominently in local tournaments here in recent years and failure of that club to send representatives this year was regretted by local enthusiasts.

Meet Strong Opposition In Baltimore.

The teams engaged in the events here the last few weeks will meet some strong combinations in the circuit championships at Baltimore next week. One of the District teams will likely play at the Maryland Polo Club Sunday and next Tuesday. A schedule for the circuit championships has not been announced as yet.

Fort Benning Infantry School riders are defending the championship in the invitation tournament which reaches the semifinals today. Although the War Department Blues and Whites are highly rated and either is likely to survive today, comparative records indicate that the Fort Benning and Third Cavalry teams are more likely to meet in the finals. A match between these two teams would probably attract one of the largest crowds to the oval that has ever witnessed a contest there.

As the low handicap club in local competition, the Third Cavalry Four has found it difficult to overcome advantages granted opponents. A match between the Infantry School and Cavalry teams would find the foes battling on comparatively even terms.

CANAAN set a good pace, repulsed CHICAGO'S challenges, holding latter safe for the stretch, then held on well, but was not good enough for the winner. CAPITAL CITY LEAGUE UPHOLDS 3 OF 5 PROTESTS

Ruling Costs Mt. Rainier Victory

Replay of Game With Berwyn Ordered by League Officials.

Grays, Metropolitans Lose in Complaints Before Board.

FIVE protests, three of which were upheld, were acted upon last night by Capital City Baseball League officials.

The game played between the Mount Rainier and Berwyn Teams at Mount Rainier on June 8, which the Mounts won, 4 to 0, and the Berwyn Club protested, has been ordered replayed at a later date at Mount Rainier. Third Baseman Nelson Colley, who played a half inning for Mount Rainier and was removed from the game when his ineligibility was discovered by the Mount Rainier management, was not signed at the time.

The result of game of June 8 between the Chevy Chase Gray and Rockville Teams, in the Montgomery County section, will stand as played. The Grays entered protest following the game, claiming that they were forced to play in a downpour of rain and that the umpire called the game without remaining to see if play could be resumed. Rockville won the game in five innings, 3 to 0.

Metropolitans Overruled.

A protest made by the Metropolitans against the Nolan Motor Co. Nine, claiming that player Lester Dixon was over age and ineligible to play in the senior class was overruled. Dixon's birth records show him to be 20 years of age.

Last Saturday's game between the Columbians and National Capital Insect Nines was awarded to the National Capitals. The Columbians were found to have used Scafide behind the bat under the name of Moran. Neither Scafide nor Moran were eligible to play. The decision returns the National Capitals to the top of the standings with an undefeated record.

The Colony Theater Peewees were awarded a victory over the Joe Cronins. The latter team used Outfielder Sol Weinstein under the name of Rhodes. The former was not eligible to play in the game of June 7, which the Cronins won, 22 to 2.

Decision Pending on Curtins' Protest.

A protest filed by the Curtin All-Stars following Sunday's game in which the Olmsted Grill Nine gained the lead in section B, of the senior class by defeating the Curtins, 2 to 1, has not been acted upon by the protest board. The Curtins claim that Shortstop Hessler was interfered with in fielding a ball in the first inning of the game and that both Olmsted runs were scored as a result.

STRICKLER NOT BEATEN.

Billy Strickler, boxer, was not defeated, as reported in The Post, in the Old Dominion "buck" night program Monday night in Alexandria, according to his manager, Joe Bateman.

3 Washington Crews Overwhelm Wisconsin

Madison, Wis., June 17 (A.P.).—The University of Washington overwhelmed Wisconsin today by sending three shell crews to victory over the two-mile Lake Monona course.

A crowd of 10,000 braved a steady rain and cold wind to watch the races.

The Huskies' varsity shell "Pay Streak" paid well, running well ahead of the Badgers to clear the finish flag in 10:14, the fastest time ever made in a two-mile race. By their record-breaking time, Washington was looked upon as a heavy favorite to win the four-mile Poughkeepsie classic on June 26.

Wisconsin freshmen eight lost by two and a half lengths. The winners covered the course in 10:36 to make themselves formidable contenders for the frosh race on the Hudson.

The Westerners' junior varsity won by the biggest margin, rowing the course in 10:32.5 to beat Wisconsin by almost seven lengths.

Among those entering the competition are Henry Ravenel, Dr. Charles D. Cole, Lee Kemon, Norman Damon, Alfred Newbold and E. D. Brandes. The cup is presented by Scott Turner, '02, director of the Bureau of Mines. It will become the permanent property of the first one to win it three times in a row. Play will be on a handicap basis.

WILLIAM M'CARNEY PICKED ONE WINNER

ured that all the other journalists would pick Dempsey, and wishing to be original on his friend's behalf he voted the other way.

I am advised that the young man was quite unnerved when he heard what Uncle Will had done, protesting that Tunney had no chance; that he had been a Dempsey man all along, and that Uncle Will, his pal, had made a bum of him to serve an idle whim of his own.

It also is my advice that one hour after the prize fight the young man received telegrams from the office apprising him of a raise in pay and an extra vacation of two weeks at his employer's expense. The young man was made. He was an expert. He was the only expert in five States in his part of the country with the shrewd sense to see that Dempsey was no longer himself and that Tunney was a superman.

That was Uncle Will McCarney's pick in the Dempsey-Tunney fight, a very difficult fight to pick, and it refutes the canard that Uncle Will never picked a winner in his life. People tell me, though, that when Uncle Will McCarney went to book his own wager his betting slip contained the laconic notation, "Dempsey, by a knockout."

M'CABE'S 87 TOPS CLUB GOLFERS

Shipe Has Low Net in Kiwanis Tourney With 90-19-71.

THE numerous heavy showers yesterday did not dampen the enthusiasm of the golfing membership of the Kiwanis Club, although they did interfere with low scoring. The low gross prize was won by J. E. McCabe with a card of 39—48—87, with M. H. Robb securing second prize with 45—44—89.

A. K. Shipe carried off the low net trophy with a gross score of 90, which, with 19 handicap, gave him a net 71. The second low net was won by Mason B. Williams, whose card was 99—18—81. Other prize winners were:

Low gross, first nine, R. G. Kimbell, 43; low net, first nine, J. D. Dreyfus, 52—15—37; low gross, second nine, E. Y. Johnson, 53; low net, second nine, F. G. Kenner, 53—14—39; low net, handicaps, 25 to 30, George R. Davis, 115—30—85; low net, handicaps, 18 to 24, C. A. Buxh, 108—22—86; low net, handicaps 14 to 17, W. C. Whittle, 106—16—90; lowest score on any one hole, H. J. Richardson, 2 on eighth; highest score on any one hole, G. C. Wathen, 14 on first.

Only Two Typothetae Golfers Play.

Although Carl V. Elker and J. A. Walsh courageously sloshed around through a drenching rainstorm during the tournament of the Typothetae on the course of the Washington Golf and Country Club yesterday, Elker finished with 89, they were the only two players to turn in their cards. The committee therefore decided to call off the event and hold the numerous prizes in reserve until the next tournament of the organization to be played on the course of the Rolling Road Club, Baltimore, on July 15.

Richmond Women Defeated.

A team of Richmond women golfers was overwhelmingly defeated by a team of Washington players on the course of the Congressional Country Club, the score standing 25 points for Washington and 11 for Richmond. There were twelve players on each team, with the following results:

Stribling-Von Porat Fight Is Postponed

Chicago, June 17 (A.P.).—The 16-round fight between Von Porat and W. L. ("Young") Stribling, scheduled for the Chicago Stadium tomorrow night, today was postponed until Friday night, due to an injury Stribling suffered in training.

Stribling damaged his left hand while boxing in his first gymnasium workout a week ago. He tore a ligament and the injury responded to treatment, but he was unable to do any heavy boxing. Consequently, he appealed for a two days' postponement to the stadium management so he could sharpen up in his boxing. It was granted.

Officials of the State athletic commission and Von Porat agreed to the postponement.

SPORTS POST AT G. U. TO MURPHY

Former End Named Graduate Manager of Athletics.

H. GABRIEL MURPHY, of Hogansburg, N. Y., who left the classrooms of the Hilltop with a diploma only one week ago, yesterday was appointed to fill the newly created office of graduate manager of athletics of Georgetown University. The appointment was announced by Director of Athletics Tom Mills, under whom Murphy will work.

As graduate manager, Murphy will assist in the Hilltop schedule making, arrange details for the staging of games, including ticket sales and direct the sports publicity of the university.

Murphy is 25 years of age, single, and plans to make Washington his home in the future.

He enrolled as a student at Georgetown in the fall of 1925 and played at end on the freshman football team. The following summer he suffered an injury playing baseball, which cut short his athletic career, but, against the advice of physicians he resumed football last year and won the coveted "G," serving in the role of substitute end.

Played Football at Massena High.

Murphy enjoyed much success as a schoolboy player on the Massena (N. Y.) High School Eleven during the period 1922 to 1924. He performed at end opposite Kenneth Provencial, a Georgetown star of the past three years who also graduated last week. The Massena team held the northern New York scholastic football championship during Murphy's service.

In his undergraduate days at the Hilltop, Murphy received training for the position just awarded him by assisting Lou Little, former G. U. athletic director, now head football coach of Columbia University. He won recognition from Little and the school authorities in general for the diligence and accuracy of his efforts.

Georgetown felt the need for a graduate manager several months ago when plans were being formed to carry on an extensive football program featured by installation of the Notre Dame system the coming fall. At that time Murphy's name was not mentioned in speculation over the probable appointee.

Atlantic City Abandoned As Training Camp.

Coincident to his announcement yesterday, Director Mills revealed that Atlantic City will not be the scene of Georgetown's preseason football training as had been reported. Mills said he is searching for a more secluded place and that he will make a selection within two weeks. It is understood that a place near Washington is under consideration.

For the past five years, Georgetown football squads have held pre-season training on the New Jersey coast, stopping at Asbury Park, Wildwood and Ocean City.

Risko-Uzcudun Victor May Oppose Sharkey

Detroit, June 17 (A.P.).—Interest was added to the heavyweight match between Paulino Uzcudun and Johnny Risko today with the announcement that Olympia has offered Jack Sharkey $50,000 to fight the winner.

The offer was wired to Sharkey's manager yesterday by Dick Dunn, manager of Olympia.

Uzcudun and Risko continued their training today. The fight is scheduled for Thursday night.

Japan Beats Czechs; To Face Italian Team

Prague, Czechoslovakia, June 17 (A.P.).—Japan clinched its Davis cup tennis series with Czechoslovakia today when Takeichi Harada defeated Jan Kozeluh, 6—2, 6—3, 6—2. This gave the Japanese the necessary three victories and carried them into the European zone final, where they will oppose the Italians for the right to play the Americans in the interzone final.

The Japanese, with a well-balanced team, broke even in the first two singles matches, took the lead by winning the doubles and then made certain of success against Czechoslovakia by Harada's victory today.

Western Shore Title Won by Lackey High

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., June 17.—Lackey High School's baseball team of Indian Head, Md., won the championship of the Western Shore at Clifton Park here today, when it defeated the Hagerstown High Nine, 15 to 6, thus earning the right to play for the State title next Friday. The Hagerstown Nine was the champion of Washington County.

Perryville, winer of the Eastern Shore title, will be Lackey's foe on Friday for the title.

Joe Judge Testimonial Draws Fans' Response

A gratifying response from the sports public is meeting the appeal for support of the Joe Judge testimonial, to be held in honor of the Washington first baseman on June 28, Jim McNamara, chairman of the committee in charge, stated last night.

Donations from fans are being received daily by Robert V. Flaming, treasurer of the movement, at the Riggs Bank. Ruloph Jose, well known business man and sports enthusiast, has sent the committee a check with the following message: "I earnestly hope that the sport loving public in Washington will make this a really successful event."

Jimmy Lake, manager of the Gayety Theater and Washington's most popular sports announcer, is taking a prominent role in the sale of tickets. Judge Mattingly, of Police Court, has procured a block of tickets for the Elks, of which he and Judge are members. The Elks will attend in a body, accompanied by the Elks Boys Band.

SOTHORON RECUPERATING.

Louisville, June 17 (A.P.).—Al Sothoron, manager of the Louisville American Association Baseball Team, today was recuperating at a hospital from an attact of appendicitis suffered during Sunday's game. Dr. George C. Leachman, club physician, said that an operation would not be necessary unless he took a turn for the worse.

CHAREST DUE TO RETURN TO TEAM

Champion to Play in Hotchkiss Matches; May Not Be No. 1.

CLARENCE CHAREST, one-armed District of Columbia singles champion, will start his seventeenth season of tournament tennis when he plays with the Washington team in the intercity Hotchkiss cup matches this week-end.

The 46-year-old star, who added the national veterans singles title to his long list of honors last summer, has been unable to hit his natural stride thus far this season, and may not perform in the No. 1 position in the forthcoming matches. As the first ranking player in the District, he would naturally occupy No. 1 in intercity competition, but having been prevented from practicing this season as much as usual owing to the requirements of his business, his playing condition is somewhat below par and not as good right now as that of other local players.

Considine May Be No. 1 on Team.

It would not be held surprising if Bob Considine, winner of the recent City of Washington tournament, plays No. 1, while there is a chance that that position will be assigned to either Dooly Mitchell or Tom Mangan. Charest, however, is not yet to be definitely counted out, for he has planned to get as much practice as possible on the courts before the matches begin, and if he feels he has finally reached the proper condition, he undoubtedly will head the Capital line-up.

Charest intends to enter the national veterans' tournament, scheduled in September, in defense of his title.

MOHAWKS TO PLAY.

The Mohawk and St. Elizabeth nines are to clash Thursday at 6 o'clock on the St. Elizabeth Hospital diamond.

How to Keep Well

CHANGING THE LABELS.

A CERTAIN mouth wash once displayed the following words on its label: "A most reliable antiseptic and germicide. Its action upon diseased surfaces is not only curative, but corrective, reducing inflammation and destroying all disease germs known by all doctors to be the cause of sickness and disease."

The Food, Drug, and Insecticide Administration Bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture got after the owners of this preparation for cheating and lying, and they modified their label to make it conform to law. It now uses these words: "A reliable antiseptic and germicide for minor cuts, wounds, abrasions, or burns. Gargle. Mouth wash."

Another preparation made the following claims: "An active astringent, antiseptic, and deodorant. Makes the gum firm and healthy, the breath pure and sweet, and tones the oral cavity. For pyorrhea, tender, spongy, bleeding, or receding gums, or any unhealthy condition of the oral cavity." Under pressure, this became: "An active astringent and deodorant. Is eminently beneficial. Is astringent and aromatic. Sweetens the breath. For use as a wash, spray, gargle, application, or douche."

Another preparation has these words on the label: "A delightful and purifying mouth wash. Healing, antiseptic, and prophylactic. Keeps the gums firm. Preventive treatment when pyorrhea is threatened." When the Government convinced the manufacturers that the only true statement in the label was "a delightfully refreshing mouth wash," the latter withdrew their product from the market.

Another bore the legend: "Antiseptic lotion for pimples, blackheads, acne, eruptions on the face or body, barber's itch, eczema, enlarged pores, oily or shiny skin, and similar infections of the skin." This was transformed into: "A local astringent for the skin and complexion."

A bulletin issued by the Government bureau says: "By and large, the public of today can accept at face value the statements appearing on most packages of antiseptics that are shipped within the jurisdiction of the Federal food and drugs act." They do not give any approval to antiseptics made and sold locally. The labels on these preparations may be fraudulent and deceptive in more ways than one. Second, their approval is given only to what is said on the label. If the purchaser will pay no attention to any reading matter except that which appears on the label, he will be safe and he will not be cheated. This applied only if he reads the actual words there found and applies to them accepted meanings. He must not infer anything not stated nor read into words meanings that he has borrowed from statements made elsewhere. By the word "antiseptic" the label means antiseptic as diluted and applied, as the remedy actually is when it is applied to the gums, or skin, or other parts.

The bureau has examined only about 1,000 so-called antiseptics. There are doubtless some they have not examined. The bulletin does not mention by name either the preparations disapproved or those they approve.

WAKING UP STRONG.

However, I feel just as tired as when I retired. I think I am so vimless because I don't get rested from sleep. Tell me what I should do to rise and feel like a Hercules.

I am afraid to tell you. You might hurt somebody. If you will take cold baths, exercise more and, above all, become interested in life you will have enough pep for all practical purposes. Perhaps you sleep too much.

IRREGULAR RALLY SENDS STOCKS UP

Prices Vary Little at Close as Issues Dip From Day's Peaks.

GRAINS STAGE RECOVERY

New York, June 17 (A.P.).—Stocks and commodities recovered their equilibrium today. On the share market prices rallied after the completion of necessitous liquidation in the forenoon, while wheat, corn and cotton advanced measurably from Monday's final levels.

However, stocks dipped from the day's highs in the last half hour and the close was highly irregular, with net changes in the leaders only nominal in either direction. The price index of 90 shares rose just one-tenth of a point. The unsettlement in the late trading started in the copper shares, many of which broke to new 1930 lows after another reduction in the price of the metal, and it closely followed a stiffening in the call money rate.

Stocks came out in large blocks at the opening as impaired margin accounts were disposed of. Some selling was reported to be coming from out-of-town banks which were said to be liquidating frozen loans that had been standing since the fall panic. Active issues broke 3 to 6 points in the course of this movement, but the firmness of U. S. Steel, which opened a shade higher and incidentally never got below yesterday's close, was instrumental in starting a rally. The much better tone displayed by the grain markets was also an important factor in the recovery, and by 2 o'clock or about the time President Hoover was signing the tariff, active stocks were selling 1 to 10 points above the morning's lows. The final selling virtually halved these advances.

Call Money Firmer.

The firmer tone of call money reflected the withdrawal of funds placed here by out-of-town banks for the period of the Treasury financing. This loan calling, amounting to about $50,000,000 in two days, contracted the available supply of money and the rate was advanced to 3 per cent from 2½ about midafternoon. Time money was unchanged and dull.

Steel operations, according to the weekly unofficial estimate, showed a decline of 3 per cent during the past week, bringing the average for the industry as a whole to 68 per cent. U. S. Steel's output was about 72 per cent of capacity against 75 a week ago, while the independents operated around 64. These figures are sharply below those for the corresponding periods of record-breaking 1929.

Another indication of the easiness of business was the drop of $32,000,000 in commercial borrowings, revealed by the weekly Federal reserve member bank statement. This item had shown a small gain in the previous week. New York City bank loans against securities dropped $123,000,000, but there were gains in this account at other reserve centers, with the result that the net reduction was $41,000,000.

Domestic copper was cut to 11¾ cents a pound, the lowest in some 16 years, although there was no change in the export price. Selling of the copper shares carried Anaconda, American Smelting, Granby, Calumet & Hecla, Cerro de Pasco, Inspiration and Andes to new 1930 minimums on losses of 1 to 5 points.

Wide Fluctuations Evident.

Fluctuations in numerous prominent stocks were fairly wide. American Telephone sold down to 206¾, recovered to 212 and closed unchanged at 209½. American Can's low was 121¼, its high 126 and its close 123, for a net gain of half a point. Atchison got down to the new low of 205, snapped back to 213 and finished at 212½, or 5¾ higher. Chesapeake & Ohio gained a similar amount. General Electric, North American and International Telephone were up about a point net, while Radio, Consolidated Gas and Westinghouse lost 1 to 2. General Motors, National Biscuit and Standard Oil of New Jersey closed firm. Steel, which had been as high as 162⅝, closed at 160¾, up 2½.

The advance in wheat carrier prices up 1⅞ to 2¾ cents, while corn improved 1½ to 3. Cotton closed 8 points higher to 2 points lower. It was apparent, however, that the adjustment of professional positions from Monday's lows was in some measure responsible for the advances in these markets as well as in stocks.

Foreign exchanges were again easy, with most of the leading European rates slightly off.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, June 17 (A.P.).—Reports of huge quantities of wheat being bought for Europe at prices cheaper than before the World War jerked the wheat market suddenly upward today. It was estimated that transatlantic purchases from Canada and the United States totaled 4,000,000 bushels today and that the aggregate for the last five days has been 20,000,000 bushels. Meanwhile, there were reports of terrific dust storms again sweeping over Canadian wheat territory.

Closing quotations on wheat were strong at about the day's top level, 1⅞ to 3 cents over yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1½ to 2⅛ cents up, oats 1 to 1¾ cents advanced, and provisions varying from 17 cents decline to a rise of 27 cents.

The initial impulse toward higher prices for wheat today came from unexpected comparative strength which the Liverpool market displayed. Instead of reflecting in full the preceding day's severe setbacks of values on this side of the Atlantic, Liverpool quotations today were but slightly lower, and dispatches explained that continued setbacks in prices had brought more buyers into the market. Then came evidence that Europeans were acquiring ownership of North American wheat at a bewildering rapid rate, and simultaneously word was received that crop shortage estimates were being multiplied by renewal of wide-spread high winds and clouds of dust.

Adding momentum to the ensuing upward sweep of the wheat market here were some reports that domestic winter crop yields in the Southwest would likely be disappointing when harvest operations become general. Fears were still expressed in some quarters that pressure of new wheat at terminal centers would have a depressing influence, but it was pointed out that the financial incentive to rush wheat to market had been greatly lessened, and that there was consequent diminished likelihood of an early movement of the crop. Sharp comment was heard that the wheat market today had entirely ignored an opening break in securities. Later sales in stocks and cotton, however, paralleled gains scored in quotations on wheat.

Much improved Eastern shipping here for corn was an aid to advances in price both of corn and oats.

In the provision market the effect of grain strength offset a break in hog values.

BOND SALES CLIMB IN MIXED MARKET

Prime Investment Section's Firmness Proves to Be Encouraging Note.

LIBERTY ISSUES SCORE

New York, June 17 (A.P.).—Today's bond market was the most active in several weeks. Trading was on a broad scale with many inactive issues appearing on the tape, and the total sales reaching a figure unsurpassed since the first week in May.

The general course of the market was irregular due principally to the tendency of bonds influenced by stocks to turn downward, and to the easing of secondary issues. Traders found encouragement, however, in the firmness of prime investment bonds. Although the extent of the trading in these issues was dwarfed by the activity in convertible and warrant bonds, the price movement was narrow, and the net changes for the day were about ¼ of a point either way.

Another feature was the further gain by United States Governments, which have been consistently strong for several weeks. All Liberty issues established new high prices for the year and held the top at the close with the exception of Liberty fourth 4¼s, which yielded slightly under the most extensive trading of the group.

Convertibles' Rally Weak.

Stock privilege bonds made some attempt to join the rally in stocks, but failed for the most part to recover their losses. Several new lows for the year were recorded, among them Atchison 4½s, St. Paul 5s, and General Theaters 6s. Losses ranged from a fraction to 1½ and the reaction was less pronounced than yesterday.

Among warrant bonds amusements were especially weak, with Loew's 6s off 5 points; Pathe 7s off 2, and Shubert 6s off 3.

The weakest spots in the list developed among secondary rails and industrials. Chicago & Eastern Illinois 5s lost 2 points to reach a new 1930 low. Seaboard Airline issues were more active than usual and yielded ground heavily, two issues declining 3 points to new 1930 low prices.

Texas Corporation 5s and National Dairy 5½s were the most active industrials and eased slightly, the latter to a new 1930 low mark. Oils and sugars were easier, and among the bonds in new low ground for the year were certain-teed 5½s, American Natural Gas 6½s, Cuban American Sugar 8s, Manati Sugar 7½s, and Hudson Coal 5s, the latter with a drop of 4 points.

Foreign List Irregular.

Foreign bonds were irregular. Bolivia 7s gained more than 2 points. Budapest City 6s yielded more than a point on a heavy turnover. China Hu Kuang Railway 5s broke nearly 3 points to a new low. Scandinavian issues were active and higher. German governments were steady, but municipal and industrial issues of that country eased slightly. Principal Europeans were steady and dull.

Offerings of $1,032,000 City of Plainfield, N. J., 4½ per cent gold bonds will be made tomorrow.

New foreign financing tomorrow includes the $4,000,000 Central German Power Co. 6 per cent gold note issue. It is offered at 98¼ to yield 6.50 per cent.

Among the new domestic offerings is a $24,000,000 issue of Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railway Refunding and Improvement mortgage 4½s, due 1977, at 98.

CONSERVATIVE BUYS IN STOCKS ADVISED

Waggaman, Brawner & Co. Pamphlet Discusses Security Outlook.

OPTIMISTIC VIEW TAKEN

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

"Since the severe break last November, we have maintained an attitude of advising conservative purchase of sound securities," states the June Financial Outlook, published by Waggaman, Brawner & Co., Inc., local investment bankers.

"Experience shows," it continues, "that, after a severe decline in security values and during a depression in general business, it has always proved profitable to buy securities of strong and well-managed companies. Invariably such securities are unduly depressed during such periods, due to the general pessimistic attitude of security buyers.

"We are now taking a more optimistic view, believing general business has seen the worst of the depression. Indications point to a gradual improving tendency which will develop into a broader and better business condition. We feel this so strongly that we take the position that the first stage of a new bull market is near at hand."

Merchants Transfer Directors.

All officers and directors of the Merchants Transfer & Storage Co. were reelected at yesterday's annual meeting of that concern. They are as follows: Directors John L. Newbold, jr., William J. Eynon, John L. Newbold, sr., C. B. Buck, David P. Smith, Ben L. Prince, William F. Ham, Leon Tobriner, Donald Woodward, G. Thomas Dunlop.

Officers are—John L. Newbold, sr., president; Ben L. Prince, first vice president; C. B. Buck, second vice president and secretary; David P. Smith, third vice president; John L. Newbold, jr., treasurer; Frank G. McAloon, assistant secretary.

The quarterly dividend of $1.75 on the preferred stock of the company and the semiannual dividend of $5 per share on the common stock were declared payable July 1, books to be closed for transfers from June 21 to June 30, inclusive.

Present monetary ease is not due to reduction of security loans by banks, as these loans are substantially larger than on the 1st of October, it is pointed out in the current Fortnightly Review of G. M.-P. Murphy & Co.

Commercial loans have decreased, but the three major factors mentioned in the Review as contributing to the current ease are: Money in circulation has decreased by 355,000,000, an increase of 152,000,000 has taken place in the stock of monetary gold, and reserve bank credit in forms other than rediscounts has increased over 190,000,000.

Decrease in Rediscounts.

Discussing the last mentioned, the Review continues, "The large decrease in rediscounts, however, far more than offsets such increases. Total Federal Reserve credit outstanding of about $1,000,000,000 is $510,000,000 less than on October 2. In fact, the only time since the war that it has been lower was during the summer of 1924, and even then the proportion of total reserve credit to member bank reserves was approximately the same as at present."

John R. Waller, president of the International Bank, was a speaker at the recent dinner of the 1905 law class of Yale University at New Haven. His subject was "Hadley and Taft."

W. W. Spaid, partner in W. B. Hibbs & Co., is a business visitor in New York.

Frank Owings, former cashier of the Bank of Commerce & Savings, entertained officers and employes of that institution at his summer home at Cedarhurst, on Chesapeake Bay, over the week-end.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM.

In making inquiries address Charles W. Storm, financial department of The Washington Post, and inclose a self-addressed stamped envelope for reply.

Calumet & Hecla; Curtiss-Wright.

Mrs. E. P.—Please give me some information regarding Calumet & Hecla Mining Co. and Curtiss-Wright common stock.

Answer—As a result of the recent drastic cuts in copper metal prices, directors of Calumet & Hecla at a meeting on May 20, last, announced a dividend of only 50 cents a share, payable June 30 to holders of record May 31, 1930. This dividend was not stated as being for any fixed period. In the previous quarter $1 a share was disbursed and six months ago $1.50 a share was paid. In consequence of this action, the stock suffered a severe decline and is at present selling at close to the lowest figures of the year. There has lately been some improvement in the copper metal market and a moderate advance from the extreme low figures. This has bettered the status of all the copper stocks to some extent; however, their future is still surrounded by considerable doubt, and because of this Calumet & Hecla does not appear overattractive just now.

Curtiss-Wright reported for year ended December 31, 1929, a deficit of $2,127,714, or a loss of 68 cents per common share. This deficit was before $1,619,784 profit on sale of securities. Net income for the quarter ended March 31, 1930, likewise showed a deficit, the amount being $61,449, or equal to 18 cents a share on the stock. It is obvious from these figures that the company is in no position to inaugurate dividends on the common stock, and the issue, therefore, must be regarded only in the light of a speculation.

Budd Wheel.

J. J. E.—I have saved some money with which to invest, but am undecided whether to put it in Cities Service or Budd Wheel.

Answer—Budd Wheel pays a dividend of $1 a year. For the first quarter this year there was a loss equal to 38 cents a share on the common as compared with 59 cents a share profit for the first three months of 1929. The first quarter showing, therefore, is unsatisfactory.

Earnings of Cities Service for the twelve-month period ended with April established a new high mark, and equaled $1.31 on the average number of shares outstanding, as against $1.14 a share for the preceding twelve-month period. Dividends are at the rate of 30 cents a share in cash and 6 per cent in stock, the yield at present prices being about 9 per cent. Of the two stocks, Cities Service seems preferable for long-term holding.

Petroleum Corporation of America.

H. G.—Can you let me have some facts regarding the Petroleum Corporation of America stock; also your opinion of it?

Answer—The company is an investment trust specializing in oil securities. As of April 30, last, it had an unrealized loss of $4,390,175. This loss was partly offset by net income from investments for the first four months of $1,378,878. The balance sheet as of April 30 showed cash and call loans of $10,686,478 and no funded debt. Liquidating value of the stock on that date was $31.27. An initial quarterly dividend of 37½ cents was paid December 31, last, placing the issue on a $1.50 basis.

Last November the company had $47,000,000 invested in stocks of the Prairie Oil & Gas and Prairie Pipe Line Co. The portfolio also includes stocks of twenty other companies, including practically all of the principal concerns of the Standard Oil group, total investments approximating $86,000,000. True earnings are estimated at an annual rate of $2 per share. While being a speculative investment, it appears to have added attraction because of merger possibilities in the oil business affecting favorably the securities held.

Cuneo Press.

H. O. A.—I would like to invest in a growing concern. What do you think of the Cuneo Press, Inc., common stock as an investment?

Answer—Based on the steady rise in earnings for the past six years and the growing volume of business, Cuneo Press stock may be regarded as a suitable investment issue to be held over a period of years. Income last year equaled $6.70 a share on the common, as contrasted with $4.34 the year previous. The company is the largest printer of magazines, mail order catalogues, directories, including telephone, booklets, &c. Outstanding common stock is only 171,500 shares and 25,000 shares of preferred.

In 1927 a 40 per cent stock dividend was paid on the common. Funded debt is only $1,020,000. New contracts were secured recently from the National Bellas Hess, Inc., Liberty Magazine, with a circulation of 2,500,000 copies per week, and the Fortune Magazine, in addition to the extension of old contracts to print the Hearst publications, including Cosmopolitan, Good Housekeeping, Harper's Bazaar, Smart Set, &c. The Cuneo Press also numbers among its active customers the Curtis Publishing Co., Sears-Roebuck & Co., American Tobacco Co., Butterick Publishing Co., Collier's, F. W. Woolworth, &c.

Warner Brothers Pictures.

N. R.—What is the outlook for Warner Brothers Pictures? Can you give me some idea of the earnings?

Answer—Profits for the six months ended March 1 were equal to $3.67 a share on the common, as against $3.48 for the same time last year. For the first quarter this year profits equaled $1.61, as compared with $1.48. All earnings for 1929 were adjusted to reflect the two-for-one split-up last July.

After the split, an initial quarterly dividend of 75 cents was paid, followed by one of $1 a share in December. Considering the earnings and the outlook, the stock may be classed as a speculative investment with some merit for holding over the long term.

Assault Charge Made After Shooting of Man

A charge of assault with a dangerous weapon was placed against Lawyer W. Norton, colored, 49 years old, of Tenth street, near Q street northwest, yesterday. George Grigsby, colored, 38 years old, of Rhode Island avenue, near Sixth street northwest, who, police say, was shot by him, is in Freedmen's Hospital with a bullet wound in his stomach.

Grigsby was loitering at the corner of Tenth and Q streets early yesterday morning when he was pursued by a band of men who supposed him to be spotting bootleggers. The fleeing Grigsby sought shelter in Norton's house. Norton, failing to receive satisfactory answers to his questions, shot through the door, wounding Grigsby, it is said.

U. S. Marine Band Will Aid at Play

Witcomb to Conduct for a Performance of "The Tempest."

The U. S. Marine Band will furnish music for "The Tempest," the production of the Community Drama Guild at the Sylvan Theater on Thursday and Friday. The band will play Sir Arthur Sullivan's score, which was first heard in Berlin in 1861. Second Leader Arthur S. Witcomb will conduct.

The English composer began writing this score while a student in Leipzig. After its first bow in Germany it was played at the Crystal Palace in London. This music is commonly regarded as one of the masterpieces of its composer.

Seats for the performance, which will begin at 8 o'clock, are to be obtained at T. Arthur Smith's concert bureau, at the A. A. A. headquarters, and at the Community Drama Guild office in the Franklin Building.

Junior Group Will Aid "Y" Camp Counselors

A group of junior counselors, most of them local high school students or graduates, will assist the staff of senior counselors this year at Camp Letts, the Y. M. C. A. camp for boys, on the Rhodes river, which opens Friday. Many of them have assisted at the camp in previous years.

There will be about a dozen senior counselors. Boys at the camp will be divided into groups of seven, and each group will be under the constant supervision of a counselor, who will be a college-trained man.

School Progress Will Be Reviewed

Annual District Reports to Carry Survey for 10-Year Period.

Annual reports of District school officers this year will be featured by a review of school achievements in the last ten years, according to an announcement yesterday by Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of District schools.

Itemized, these achievements will include legislation enacted, school organization, school administration, school supervision, improvement of instruction, additional schoolhouse accommodations, improvement of existing buildings and grounds and equipment.

These matters will be included in the reports of all administrative and supervisory officers. A request has been made by Dr. Ballou that the reports be in his hands by September 1.

DONALDSON ACTION UNDER ADVISEMENT BY DISTRICT COURT

Former Capital Banker in Disbarment Case Ends His Testimony.

OPINION IS EXPECTED IN PROCEEDING SOON

Defendant Denies He Used Influence to Obtain Smith Contracts.

After R. Golden Donaldson, former Washington banker, had declared that his connection with the F. H. Smith Co. and the bankrupt Boyle-Robert-Construction Co. were open and above board and constituted no unprofessional conduc, five justices of the District of Columbia Supreme Court yesterday took under advisement all evidence that had been adduced in disbarment proceedings brought against him by the grievance committee of the District of Columbia Bar Association.

The grievance committee cited Donaldson for disbarment after the grand jury which investigated affairs of the Smith Co. directed that such action be taken in his case. The committee, which prosecuted the attorney and former banker, charged that while acting as attorney for both companies he had accepted fees from the construction company to influence the award of Smith Co. building contracts.

While the justices did not intimate when their opinion would be rendered it was thought likely that it will be at an early date. Action of the justices in taking the case under advisement came after two days of testimony and after counsel for both the grievance committee and Donaldson had announced that they would not argue the relative merits of their respective causes.

Acted Only as Broker.

Donaldson on the stand emphatically declared that he had not used his influence to obtain contracts from the Smith Co. for the Boyle-Robertson firm until after he had been certain that both companies knew of his relations with the other. He reiterated statements made in his answer to the committee's petition that his work in connection with the contracts had been that of a broker and did not involve him either as an attorney or as a banker.

Prior to the testimony of Donaldson, his attorney, William E. Leahy introduced a number of character witnesses who testified as to the defendant's "he[illegible], integrity and fair dealings." Among these witnesses were: Harry Wardman, Washington real estate operator; William D. Hoover, president of the National Savings & Trust Co.; Robert V. Fleming, president of the Riggs National Bank, and John Lewis Smith, former president of the District Bar Association.

Donaldson's testimony in a measure contradicted that of Samuel J. Henry, former president of the Smith Co., who was on the stand for an hour before the noon recess. Henry declared that he did not know that Donaldson had received any compensation or contracts until after G. Bryan Pitts, former chairman of the board of the Smith Co., had so advised him in 1927 or 1928. Henry explained that he was vice president of the Smith Co. in 1926 and was elevated to the presidency in 1927, the period during which the contracts for which Donaldson is said to have received compensation were made. Henry also declared that the Smith Co. did not award contracts as favors to individuals but on the reliability of the firms which submitted bids and on the contract price cited in those bids.

Transcript Read in Testimony.

A transcript of testimony given by Pitts before the referee in bankruptcy was read into the record over objection of Defense Counsel Leahy. This testimony given in the Boyle-Robertson case was to the effect that while the witness knew that Donaldson was an attorney for the Smith Co. that he had no knowledge of any agreement between Donaldson and the construction company until the latter part of 1926 or the early part of 1927. When he learned of this connection, the transcript recited, Pitts communicated the facts to Henry.

James C. Robertson, treasurer of the Boyle-Robertson Co., and William R. Boyle, vice president and secretary of the bankrupt construction firm, were other witnesses during the day. Robertson asserted that he had approached Donaldson in connection with the proposition to secure desired contracts and that the attorney had been guaranteed payment. In connection with the specific contracts mentioned in the grievance committee charges Robertson asserted that Donaldson had been paid $100,000 approximately.

Boyle stated that he was abroad at the time the specified contracts were negotiated and learned of the circumstances only after his return and after he had sat in on several conferences with other executives of his firm.

Brittle Case to Go To Alexandria Jury

Embezzlement Indictment to Be Asked for Former Del Ray Cashier.

A special grand jury has been summoned to meet at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning in the Alexandria Corporation Court to consider the case of Clay T. Brittle, former cashier of the Bank of Del Ray, charged with embezzlement of more than $60,000 of the bank's funds, on a warrant sworn to by Nelson T. Snyder, president of the bank, and Henry P. Thomas, a director. Approximately 25 witnesses have been summoned to testify in the case. Judge Frederick W. Coleman, of Fredericksburg, will sit in this case in place of Judge William P. Woolls, who will not serve on account of his connection with the bank.

The alleged embezzlement of the funds of the Del Ray Bank resulted in its being closed and placed in the hands of a receiver, who has made a partial payment to depositors. Brittle is understood to have turned over to the bank some real estate which he owned in partial restitution.

CAPITAL GRAND JURY INDICTS 35 PERSONS

W. C. Johnson Faces Murder Charge; Nine Held on Larceny Counts.

FIVE BILLS ARE IGNORED

The District grand jury in a report made yesterday to Justice Peyton Gordon returned 35 indictments and at the same time ignored charges against 5 persons. One indictment charging first-degree murder and nine charging grand larceny featured the true bills.

William C. Johnson, Negro, was indicted for first-degree murder in connection with the slaying of Marcellus Washington, Negro, last April 26 outside a restaurant on N street southeast near First street. Washington was shot and killed during an altercation, according to police records.

Two of the grand larceny indictments charge theft of automobiles. Okey Risner is charged with the theft of an automobile rented from the Hertz Drive-It-Yourself Co. last May 6. The machine is alleged to have been recovered several days later in Kentucky at the time of the man's arrest. Leo J. Moran is charged with the larceny of an automobile belonging to the Dulin & Martin Co. on last February 16. A similar charge against the man was ignored by the grand jury when, it is understood, it was discovered that the alleged charge should be pressed in Maryland.

Elmer M. Hayden, Walter Reed Hospital patient, was charged in a true bill with grand larceny in connection with the alleged theft of a handbag containing jewels worth $175 from Miss Martha A. Montgomery, supervisor of Occupational Therapy Department. The pocketbook was in a desk drawer at the time it disappeared, according to police records. Its contents were recovered several days later and Hayden arrested after police are said to have traced a diamond sold to another person.

A charge of manslaughter against Stanton William Smith, Negro, was ignored. Smith was charged with slaying Robert Poindexter, colored, with a pocket knife last June 8. The grand jury is understood to have regarded the slaying as self-defense.

The grand jury also ignored charges of violating the national prohibition law against Louis E. Murray and George E. Lee and charges of forgery against James R. Southern.

25 New Members In Citizens' Forum

Efforts of Petworth Group to Have Library Erected Are Indorsed.

Twenty-five new members were admitted into the Citizens' Forum at Columbia Heights last night at the regular meeting in the Wilson Normal School. A committee was formed to cooperate with the Park and Planning Commission to attempt to locate a recreational center in Columbia Heights.

The forum passed a resolution indorsing the efforts being made by the Petworth Citizens Association and other groups to have a branch library erected in the vicinity of Georgia and Iowa avenues northwest. W. W. Colliette, head of a special committee, reported that meetings of residents in each block were being held in an attempt to prevent depreciation of property values.

Two members of the Columbia Heights Business Men's Association attended the forum meeting to improve the cooperation between the two groups. They also extended an invitation to the forum to attend the Business Men's outing on July 24. The organization decided to have one summer meeting, on the third Tuesday in July.

HIGHER AUTO SALES SHOWN IN DISTRICT

Pessimism About Buying Power of Public Is Denied in Survey.

NOTE OF CHEER SOUNDED

Pessimistic declarations that the buying public in Washington has lost confidence in the economic situation are contradicted by statistics just compiled by the Washington Automotive Trade Association showing an increase of about 10 per cent in sales during the first five months this year, as compared with the same period in 1929.

From January 1 to June 10 this year, the association reports, dealers here sold 21,070 used cars for District registration, as compared with 19,219 in the same period last year. Sales of 9,717 new cars during the same time this year showed practically no change from 1929.

Two other encouraging factors seen by the association are that repossessions reported by the 130 dealers who constitute its membership show a slight decrease, while the increase in cancellations of new orders has been less than half of 1 per cent since the slump in the stock market.

These facts are taken as indicating not only that the public of Washington is in sound financial condition, but also that automobile owners are finding it sound business practice to retain and use the cars they have bought.

In a statement commenting upon its figures, the Washington Automotive Trade Association says:

"Many adverse and pessimistic reports have been heard in recent months to the effect that business is in a bad way. We have been told that the public had no money, and that those who had any were hoarding it. That certainly is not borne out by the sales records of automobile dealers in Washington, which show a very encouraging gain over last year.

"Although individual members have known that their own sales sheets showed improvement, they were prepared by these depressing rumors to discover that the market in general would be less satisfactory, with sales decreased and cancellations and repossessions increased. It was extremely gratifying and encouraging to learn, however, that the situation in Washington as reflected in the automotive industry is sound.

"That dealers are finding it less frequently necessary to repossess automobiles, and that buyers who have ordered automobiles are accepting deliveries, are highly satisfactory signs. No dealer likes to lose sales through repossessions or cancellations, and it is equally true that buyers are not elated at the prospect of losing cars they have purchased.

"Although some may have found it expedient to relinquish certain luxury items, records of the Washington Automotive Trade Association show that the average buyer now recognizes his automobile as a sound economic investment in time and energy, and makes every effort to retain possession of it even though he may be forced to let other less necessary properties go."

Chief Davis' Death Called Accident

Coroner's Jury Renders Verdict in Case of Fire Victim.

A coroner's jury yesterday rendered a verdict of accidental death in the case of Acting Deputy Chief Peter R. Davis, who died after a ladder broke at the Rudolph & West fire last Friday. Chief Davis, who was on the ladder with four other men, when it broke, died three hours later in Emergency Hospital.

Sergt. Linton T. West was the only one of the men on the ladder who was able to testify. The other two, E. V. Fowler and J. E. Richter, are still confined to hospitals as a result of their injuries. O. G. Fearn, superintendent of fire machinery, and Chief George S. Watson testified that there was no structural fault in the ladder.

The testimony showed that Chief Davis called for another company on the third floor, where he was at the time. As he and Sergt. West started down the ladder they met two men of the new company coming up and tried to pass. The load concentrated on the center of the ladder caused the break, it is thought. Smoke kept the two groups from seeing the other until they met.
